Fireplace committee focuses on location, form, function

The members of the Charlevoix fireplace steering committee, front (back to camera) Jodi Bingham (left) and John Winn; and back (from left) Becky Doan, Pat Miller, Rob Straebel, Richard Hitz and Mark Buday, discuss options for the proposed community fireplace in East Park at their first meeting Wednesday.

The steering committee charged with suggesting options to the Charlevoix City Council for the location and design of a contentious community fireplace project in Charlevoix's East Park met for the first time Wednesday.

And when all was said and done for the evening, the architect consultants spearheading the effort had some direction for the committee's work.

The committee, appointed by Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson, is made up of five members: city manager Rob Straebel, and residents Jodi Bingham, Pat Miller, Becky Doan and John Winn.

Their task is to help the city council handle the biggest hot-button issue facing the city right now: The controversial community fireplace that has been proposed for East Park.

The fireplace has been a major source of contention around the community since shortly after it was approved at a special meeting on Aug. 9. After hearing outcry from community members at several packed-house city council meetings, the city council put the project on hold until spring. The council did so taking advantage of an offer from Mark Buday, the principal architect for East Park's renovations, to serve as a consultant (free of charge) to the city to help look for options for the project that might be less objectionable to members of the community.

Each member was selected to represent a group: Straebel for the city council, Winn for the anonymous donor who offered up the fireplace project in the first place, Bingham

Clerk: New law won't affect city recall efforts

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

It appears a law Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder signed just before the year's end that changes the requirements for recall petitions filed against elected officials in Michigan won't have any impact on the petitions that have already been approved for circulation against three Charlevoix City Council members.

On Dec. 20, Snyder signed a bill that, among other things, requires that a recall petition "State factually and clearly each reason for the recall." The law also requires the county election commission to meet and to "determine whether each reason for the recall stated in the petition is factual and of sufficient clarity to enable the officer whose recall is sought and the electors to identify the course of conduct that is the basis for the recall."

Picha

Kusina

Previously, the law only included the clarity requirement and not the factual requirement.

In early December, the Charlevoix County Election Commission, using the previous clarity-only criteria in place at the time, approved petition language for recall efforts against Charlevoix City Council members Jill Picha, Bryan Vollmer and Dennis Kusina. Language on all three petitions accuse the council of violating the Open Meetings Act when they met during a special meeting on Aug. 9.

During that meeting the council voted unanimously to approve a proposal to accept an anonymous donor's offer to pay for construction of an outdoor community fireplace on the western edge of East Park near the east side of Bridge Street between Mason on Clinton streets.

Objections to the project began to arise among some members of the community when construction of the fireplace began days later.

After hearing numerous complaints about the project at packed-house meetings in the weeks that followed, the council voted in September to put construction of the fireplace on hold until spring to allow more time for options to be explored for the project.

Picha and Kusina have denied any violations of the Open Meetings Act took place at the Aug. 9 meeting. The city clerk has said notice of the special meeting was posted at city hall more than 48 hours in advance of the meeting (in compliance with the act) and at a recent council meeting, city attorney Bryan Graham opined that he does not believe any open meetings act violations took place at the Aug. 9 meeting.

Charlevoix County Clerk Cheryl Potter Browe said she recently checked with state election officials who said, although the new law requiring the "factual" element for recall petition language was to take immediate effect on Dec. 20, the new requirement would not apply to petition language that had previously been approved, such as those for Picha, Vollmer and Kusina.

Clarification

A a portion of story appearing on page A3 of the Dec. 28, 2012 edition of the Charlevoix Courier that included information on a proposed city of Charlevoix ordinance regarding redevelopment liquor licenses requires clarification. One of the requirements of the proposed ordinance reads, "The applicant must have a real property interest in the real property with which the license will be used." However, in the story, in an effort to avoid using legalise, the writer substituted the words "ownership interest" for the words "real property interest." To clarify, a lease is also a "real property interest."

Bridge Drop takes baby New Year steps

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Although, much like the mythical Baby New Year it helped usher in, the Charlevoix New Year's Bridge Drop is still in its infancy, its organizers say the event has taken its first baby steps toward growing into a community holiday fixture.

The event's organizers, Rick Randall and Amanda Wilkin said they were pleased with how well the first installment of the event went.

Designed as a weekend-long event to bring people to town for the end of the holiday season, the Bridge Drop offered participants the opportunity to purchase a commemorative wristband for $5 each. The wristbands then served as the wearers' ticket to special discounts at various businesses throughout the weekend. The event then culminated shortly before midnight on New Year's Eve when the drawbridge over the Pine River Channel was raised and lowered to close in concert with the arrival of the new year.

The deck at the Weathervane restaurant served as the staging area as people gathered in the 20-degree weather waiting for the year's final minutes to pass. DJ Nicki Lee counted down the final seconds and at the stroke of midnight, the bridge closed. A firing party from the Charlevoix veterans group who usually provide three-volley salutes for events such as Memorial Day and Veterans Day ceremonies were on hand and fired several rounds to mark the arrival of the new year.

Then a three-unit parade comprised of a fire truck, float carrying this year's Venetian Queen Kelsey Way and a police car (the fire truck and police car with lights and sirens on) made its way across the bridge as many of the revelers walked alongside.

Wilkin and Randall said they heard many positive comments from people about the event and had heard a few early reports that several area hotels were busier than in past years.

Randall said he felt participation "was great" for a first-time event.

"We had a lot of people around the bridge and watching the excitement from various locations, Randall said. "The Weathervane deck and restaurant were a lot of fun and Nicki Lee did a great job doing the music and the count down. She got the crowd into it and the energy was ignited.

I think people were drawn to the Bridge Drop out of curiosity and a real interest in a New Year's event in the neighborhood. I believe those that came out were glad that they did."

A final tally of how many bracelets were sold was not available before press time Thursday, but Randall described the sales as solid.

Wilkin and Randall said the proceeds from the bracelet sales will be used to offset any costs and for seed money for next year's event.

Wilkin said, like any new event, there are many ways to improve the Bridge Drop.

"We're looking for ways to add even more excitement to the event," Wilkin said.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Members of the Charlevoix Veterans firing party and other New Year's revelers gather on the deck at the Weathervane Restaurant in the minutes leading up to midnight Monday as they wait to participate in the first-ever Charlevoix New Year's Bridge Drop event.

She said finding a way to add fireworks, and perhaps add other attractions, such as ice carving or a lumberjack show — are all ideas that have been tossed around.

She and Randall also remain hopeful, that, after its initial success, others in the community will be willing to jump on board and help in the effort.

"This year we planted the seed and generated a lot of positive enthusiasm for future New Year's events. The Bridge Drop was a great start and will grow into an annual event that will be good for our community and the businesses in it," Randall added.

Both Randall and Wilkin offered their thanks to the many people who helped out in the effort.

Tax repeal difficult, not catastrophic for city

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Just when Charlevoix city officials thought they might be able to attack a punch list of projects that have been put on hold for several years because of sagging property values, along comes another stumbling block.

On Dec. 20 Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder signed legislation that will phase out several hundred million dollars in taxes businesses annually pay on equipment.

The Michigan Legislature voted recently to repeal the industrial personal property tax during a marathon meeting in the final hours of the legislative session.

Snyder and supporters say the move encourages economic growth. Opponents counter it doesn't replace all the money the tax generates for local governments.

Although some municipalities will see some of that revenue replaced by other programs, Charlevoix is too small to qualify.

Charlevoix Treasurer Rick Brandi said although the tax repeal won't kick in until the 2014-15 budget year, his early calculations show the city will lose about $83,000 in general fund revenue and the downtown development authority will lose about $24,000.

Brandi noted that there are still a great many variables that will factor into how big the tax repeal's impact will be on the budget.

He said before the repeal, city officials were hopeful that property values would remain unchanged for this year and see a modest up tick in the 2014-15 fiscal year. Now, he said those small gains forecast for next year would essentially serve to offset the cots from the personal property tax phase-out.

Still, even if the general fund budget takes his estimated $83,000 ding (about 2.6 percent of the 2012-13 budget), Brandi said that won't likely mean a reduction in city services. Instead, he said, it will likely just mean a few more projects will have to wait a bit longer to be completed.

Health department offers tips on quitting smoking

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan wants to help you kick the tobacco habit in 2013.

The benefits of quitting smoking can be detected within the first 20 minutes, according to the American Cancer Society. In that time, blood pressure drops and, within 24 hours, a person's chance of a heart attack has already decreased. The benefits continue for years, including reduced risk of lung cancer, stroke and heart disease.

"New Year's Day is the single most popular day for giving up unhealthy habits," said Linda Yaroch, health officer for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "Quitting tobacco use provides immediate benefits and benefits that last a lifetime. It is the single best thing you can do for your health."

There are several tools and resources available to help with becoming tobacco-free in 2013:

— The Michigan Department of Community Health (MDCH) Tobacco Quitline, (800) 784-8669 (800-QUIT-NOW), provides free telephone coaching for the uninsured and for those with Medicaid and Medicare, as well as free nicotine replacement medications for those who qualify. The Quitline includes extra help for pregnant and postpartum women. Information on quitting smoking and a free printable Michigan Smoker's Quit Kit are available through MDCH by visiting www.michigan.gov/tobacco.

— BecomeAnEX.org is a free, interactive website that shows smokers how to relearn life without cigarettes. The site, developed by the American Legacy Foundation in partnership with the Mayo Clinic, offers a free, personalized quit plan and an online support community to help people prepare to quit and stay off tobacco.

— The American Cancer Society offers tools to help with quitting. For more information, contact the American Cancer Society at (800) 227-2345.

In addition, your individual health care provider can provide counseling, nicotine replacement medication, and referrals for other services.

Blushing plants are no embarrassment

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Most winters my small greenhouse provides something new. I try to start seeds of a plant or two I haven't grown before, and maybe a plant that has never bloomed decides to surprise me. This winter's best surprise came from a plant that I acquired at a garage sale the summer before last.

I do not have a specific name for the plant. It came as an orphan after all. I do know that it belongs in the general group of plants called bromeliads. Like most bromeliads it has grayish spiky leaves. The most familiar bromeliad is the pineapple, although most members of that family are what are called epiphytes. Epiphytes live attached to some other plant, often far from the ground. They manage plant life without soil or many roots, and often have clever mechanisms for getting the water and fertilizer they need. In some of them, called tank plants, the leaves form large or small cups that hold enough water to be home to small frogs. Most bromeliads have leaves covered with tiny overlapping scales that hold enough water to get the plant from one rainstorm to the next.

Those of you who visit Florida or other southern states in winter, may be familiar with what is called Spanish moss: a plant that just hangs on the limbs of trees or even on telephone lines. That plant is no kind of moss, but one of the bromeliads that gets the water it needs from the air and frequent rainfall.

Any single bromeliad plant grows a tuft of leaves, and eventually produces a stem of flowers in the middle of it. That stem dies, but is replaced by one or more new stems growing from the base of the plant.

My greenhouse bromeliad has one large stem of gray, scale-covered spiky leaves and a smaller growing stem at its base. Late this summer the larger stem (only about six inches high) produced a set of flowers. They were brilliant purple with bright yellow stamens in the center of each flower. In its natural home, those flowers would be like a neon light announcing, "Here is food and nectar, come on over." The plant needs to attract pollinators if it is to produce seeds and the next generation. At the same time that the flowers were begging for attention, all the drab, gray-green leaves on that stem turned bright red overnight. No flying insect could ignore a bright splash of red with a purple and yellow center.

My greenhouse blessedly does not have any flying tropical insects to accomplish pollination, so all the advertising was for naught. Even more remarkable than the first colorful transition, as soon as the flowers ceased to bloom and began to fade, all the red color of the leaves disappeared as well. The plant is again a set of not-very obvious spiky, gray-green leaves, which are probably of little interest to insects. The wrong kind of insects might very well consume an obvious plant.

Becoming brilliant and dramatically obvious when sex is on the agenda and reproduction is possible, and then fading to dullness, is something quite a few animals manage, but it is rare in plants. Red is most often the color of sex and/or danger for most organisms, plant or animal. Many plants develop color, but very few of them become colorless so quickly. I have never seen one gain colorful leaves and then lose color so rapidly.

Mark Twin once wrote, "Man is the only animal that blushes, or needs to." He did not know that there are blushing plants.

There are more than 2,000 kinds of bromeliads. One kind is found in Africa; all the rest grow in the Americas. Most of the 2,000 harbor surprises of one sort or another, and many of them will grow in your home with a little care.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

LETTERS to the editor

Red Cross officials offer thanks

Editor:

To our volunteers, donors and community partners in Antrim, Emmet, Charlevoix, and Cheboygan counties:

During this season of thanksgiving and reflection, I wanted to thank the residents and businesses of Northern Michigan for their generous support of the American Red Cross.

Without the gift of time from our volunteers, financial gifts from our donors, and the ongoing support of our community partners, the Red Cross could not respond to the numerous single family disasters that occur in Northern Michigan every year.

House fires are the primary emergencies the Red Cross responds to in northern Michigan. And this past year we assisted 167 people by providing them with lodging at local establishments, an allowance for food and clothing, prescription refills and replacement eye glasses.

We are committed to providing our volunteers with training that will allow them to provide the best possible service, including feeding, sheltering, client casework, and health and mental health services. This past year we issued more than 100 course completion certificates for training that will give our volunteers the tools they need to assist our clients.

Community education is another vital service we offer. In 2012, 644 people took some form of emergency education that will help them prevent, prepare for and recover from disasters in their local communities.

The Red Cross also provides a vital communication link between active duty military and their families. In all, 105 military family members attended workshops and presentations on our Services to the Armed Forces and were given information that will assist them in contacting loved ones in times of emergency.

So for all you do, thank you for your generosity and support and may all of you have a warm and safe holiday season.

Deny fireplace proposal

Editor:

For many summer years growing up working at Neff Bros. Grocery in Charlevoix, my sister, Karen, and I used to take our lunch to East Park followed by one or two quick games of shuffleboard before returning to work six days a week.

The Neff Bros. gave two or three docks to the city. After many years, the Neff Bros., later Wharfside Building and Parkside Restaurant were acquired by the city and demolished to add to East Park. Two perfectly good fish ponds and a double bank of shuffleboard courts were razed along with the center park pine tree where we used to gather to enjoy the Venetian Boat Parade. I don't recall there was any stir in the Charlevoix Community over any of the above. I don't recall about the band shell or the chamber of commerce building.

In the summer of 2012, the city of Charlevoix allowed a red glittery ram statue to be placed in the city of Charlevoix park located next to the channel near the old Coast Guard Station. I complained to the city as this "ram" was no connection to Charlevoix, certainly not a welcoming to channel boaters. I understand alternate city-approved artwork is now planned for this location.

I wrote to the city manager and planning commission with copies to the city council in September requesting an amendment to the city ordinance for all city parks in regards to changes and additions. My requested amendment is that preservation of such "sacred ground" should require, notice in writing and a hearing or hearings prior to city manager/city council approval. I have received no answers to date.

On Nov. 25, I wrote to Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. with copies to the city manager and council suggesting Veterans Park for the fireplace location.

A Second Ward council person told me "the fireplace has to be in East Park."

I thank Mr. Winn for his aid to the marina and East Park renovation project, but as a lifelong Charlevoixan, the fireplace in question should be denied.

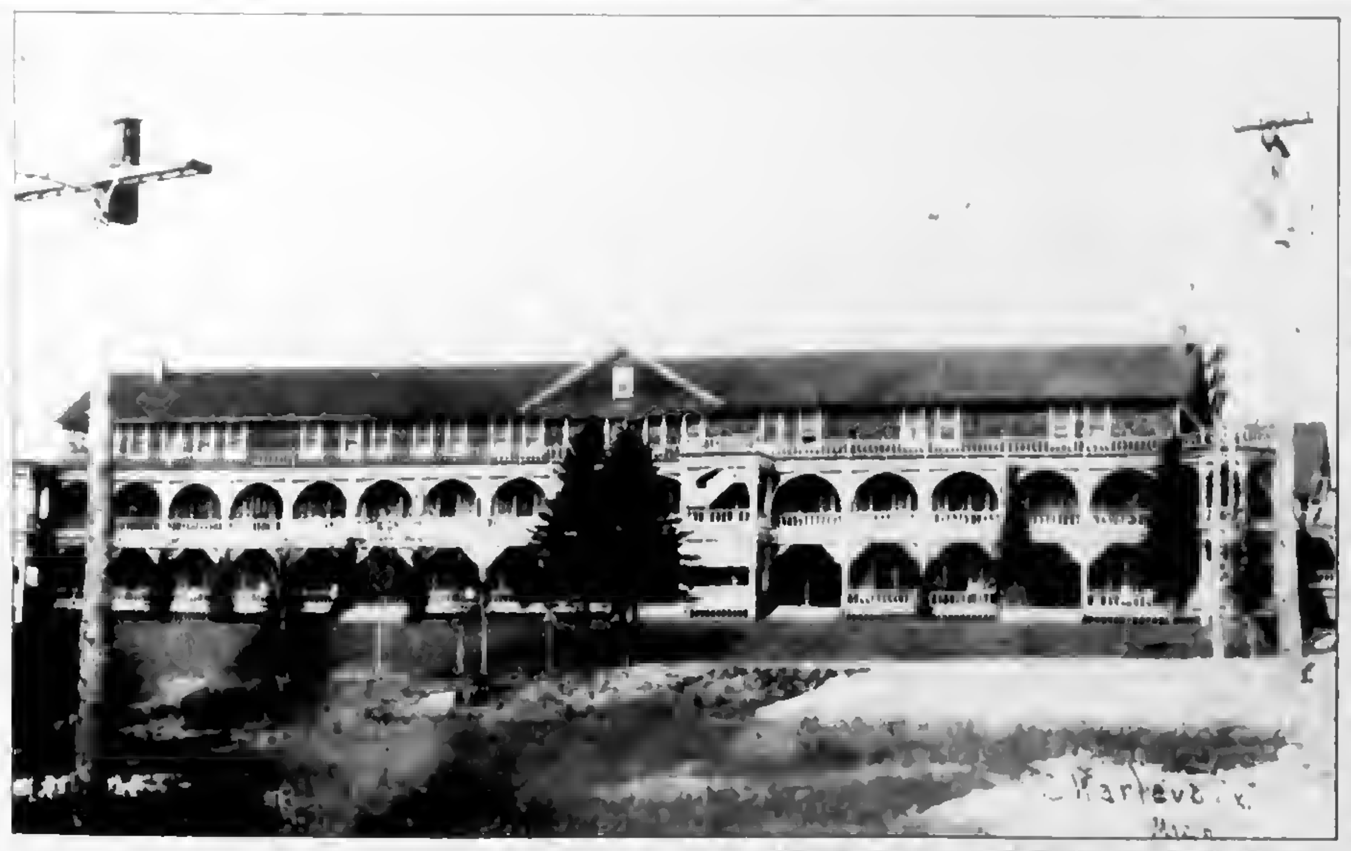
CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

One year after the Charlevoix Summer Resort, later named the Belvedere Club, was established in 1878 by Baptists from Kalamazoo, a 16-room clubhouse was erected to house members in town to supervise the construction of their cottages, who didn't want to cook on vacation, or to accommodate their own overflow guests. It became a de-facto hotel, but for club use only. The structure burned in 1886, to be replaced by a true, and larger, public hotel called the New Belvedere in 1887. But the anticipated arrival of the railroad in 1892 precipitated a series of expansions with the realization that so many more people would be now coming to Charlevoix. The hotel was already bursting at the seams. By 1902 the structure reached the size seen here, holding 87 rooms. It is difficult to visualize a structure that size occupying today's lawn on the Belvedere Avenue/Ferry Avenue corner. The Belvedere, for decades a Charlevoix landmark and institution, lasted until it had aged beyond economic viability, and was torn down in late 1960.

EAST JORDAN — Emmet County Recycling's 2012 Recycler of the Year award winner has small town roots, but international reach. Travel to any city and the company's goods are likely underfoot.

Its products, ranging from fire hydrants to sewer grates, are used in 140 countries and, following numerous acquisitions over the past 25 years, its operations span five continents.

The winner is EJ, formerly known as East Jordan Iron Works. One of the company's two U.S. foundries is located in East Jordan as well as its corporate headquarters.

While this is Emmet County's 11th Recycler of the Year award presentation, the East Jordan foundry is the first manufacturing facility using recycled materials from the Emmet County Materials Recovery Facility to win the award.

EJ cast iron products average 85 percent recycled content. This recycled content includes steel cans from the Emmet County Materials Recovery Facility that have been recycled by residents of Charlevoix, Emmet, Cheboygan and Presque Isle counties. However, these are the only cans used as EJ feedstock because the blocks of cans produced by most materials recovery facilities are of a size and consistency that aren't compatible with handling equipment at the foundry.

More typical sources include auto scrap, obsolete scrap appliances and steel from demolition of buildings collected by scrap metal yards, like A&L in Gaylord.

EJ has been buying bricked cans from the Emmet County Materials Recovery Facility since 2001.

Emmet County Recycling Director Elisa Seltzer remembers developing the system.

"When we approached EJ about recycling our tin cans, they informed us we'd need special sorting techniques and equipment to meet their specifications," she said. "Eager to secure a local market, in 2001 we found a used bricker and had it refurbished. It is still in use today."

The "bricks" are about the size of a microwave oven and weigh roughly 90 pounds each. In 2011, EJ bought 104 tons of bricked cans from Emmet County.

"We're constantly working to develop uses for our waste streams," said Tom Teske, EJ Americas vice president and general manager.

Recycling at EJ is part of the process as well as the product. It recycles all of its paper through a shredding company and collects cardboard, bottles and cans as well. Hazardous materials like fluorescent lamps, aerosol cans and electronics are recycled, too. Even its office building is reused: a portion of the headquarters structure was at one time a creamery.

Foundry byproducts from melting and molding processes are EJ's biggest out-bound recyclables. Slag — a gritty, tan mineral material produced in the melting process — is spread on area dirt roads in place of sand to improve traction when conditions are icy. The green sand which makes up casting molds is reused in production, then, at the end of its usable life, much of it is used by St. Mary Cement in Charlevoix.

From these green beginnings, EJ infrastructure access products go on to green futures, said Seltzer.

According to Teske, the products serve important functions in water, sewer and energy distribution systems and although the creation and distribution of cast iron products is energy intensive, they are very long lasting.

Because of their recycled content, EJ products are often used by architects and engineers to help earn points toward achieving green building certification for their construction projects. Their cast iron fixtures are naturally rust resistant and do not require any finish coating.

And finally, at end of their useful life, they can be recycled once again.

Audit reveals shortfalls in East Jordan accounting procedures

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — Several concerns in accounting practices were brought to the attention of East Jordan city commissioners and staff during an audit presentation Wednesday, Dec. 26, by the office of Anderson, Tackman & Company based in Kinross.

The audit covered all financial transactions between July 1, 2011, and June 30, 2012.

Most of the issues dealt with the implementation of procedures expected of local governments meant to ensure accurate accounting and to prevent fraud, that were not in place in the city's offices. Several are ongoing issues that have been brought to the attention of East Jordan officials in past years, but have not yet been corrected.

While issues with accounting practices were detected, the financial state of the city did improve over the previous year. Assets exceeded liabilities by about $13 million and the city's unassigned fund balance in the general fund was about $250,000, which was 17 percent of total general fund expenditures. That increased by $150,000 over the previous year, more than doubling the amount available for unexpected or emergency needs.

"To deal with swings in the economy and to plan for future capital expansion, the city routinely puts aside resources," the audit states. "The city has also attempted to keep expenditures to a minimum because of anticipated revenue questions."

"We're at a good percentage," said city treasurer Heather Jackson. "Last year we watched out for spending because we knew we needed a healthier fund balance."

Despite positive numbers in the city's bank accounts, the accuracy and ability of staff to keep track of those numbers was brought into question by the audit.

"Significant deficiencies" were found by the auditors in several areas.

East Jordan must, in order to remedy the deficiencies, make an attempt or evaluate if it is capable of managing its own financial statements rather than outsourcing, accurately report all accounting records and bring the marina fund balance out of a deficit.

Also, a few other practices suggested for change in last year's audit and again this year include requiring city checks to be signed by two rather than only one authorized individual, changing payroll so that proper tax records can be maintained and discontinuing the payment of sales tax on purchases made by the city's credit card, which should be exempt from paying that tax.

Issues detected this year that were not found last year included a suggestion that the city's check register should be reconciled with actual amounts of all checks written, changes in how housing commission employee payroll is recorded and the suggestion to set up a trust and agency fund to distribute taxes to local units.

Four of the five concerns identified for the first time this year have been remedied or are in the process of being remedied, according to Jackson.

A few of the items, such as the suggestion that the city no

LOCAL Highlights

Garden club to host open house Jan. 8

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club will host an open house at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 8 at the American House Charlevoix (formerly Sunnybank Retirement Community), located at 615 Petoskey Ave.

The event will include a presentation by local botanist, ecologist, educator, researcher (and Charlevoix Courier columnist) Roger Knutson on aroids.

Aroid is the informal name for a group of plants most closely related to locally-growing Jack-in-the-pulpit, and the lesser-known skunk cabbage. Most, but not all, aroids are found in tropical climates. Skunk cabbage blooms in very early spring and is capable of melting its way through a foot of snow. Other ariods include indoor houseplants philodendron and dieffenbachia.

Knutson has written three books and several research and general papers that have been published in the journal American Midland Naturalist and Science and Natural History magazines.

The public is welcome to attend and light refreshments will be served.

Bob Bartlett, 1927 - 2012

You know the uncle we all wished we had? Well, we had that uncle. Whether 3 or 83, family or friend (and there were so many), he was ... Uncle Bob.

He was a devoted teacher, a beloved and loyal friend, a revered mentor and role model, an honorable veteran, and Grand Master Mason. And, he was a simple man, one who got so much delight from the simplest of things ... from children's laughter, a sunset over Little Traverse Bay, laughing and telling stories with family and friends, a trip to the Dairy Queen with a carload of kids... and their dogs, his morning cup of coffee with his next door neighbor, puttering in his wood shop, a home cooked meal, a Bach sonata ... and of course, an off-colored joke every now and again. But most of all, he was such a decent, down-to-earth, life-affirming man, with a heart as big as the bass drum, and as wide as the swath cut by the marching band he played with throughout his high school and college years.

After completing his bachelor's degree at Central Michigan University and his masters at U of M, followed by a tour of service in the army, his love of the industrial arts, coupled with a longing to make a lasting difference in the lives of young people, led him to a lifelong career as a wood shop teacher at Trenton High School. The countless students who kept up with him long after graduation (and fellow teachers, long after retirement), never forgetting the indelible imprint he had in shaping the character of their lives, is a testament to difference he made with so many. "Mr. Bartlett" to his students, "Barts" to his fellow teachers, "Santa" to so many children at Christmas, and "Uncle Bob" to just about everyone, his was a life well lived, and everyone who knew him is better for it.

Even throughout his decline with Parkinson's, and then Alzheimer's, his good nature persevered, always punctuated by that wry sense of humor that endeared him to everyone, especially those attending to him daily. While he will be dearly missed, we will always be uplifted by the memory of his contagious laugh, his generous spirit and gentle heart, and those big bear hugs. For those of us fortunate enough to have shared this life with him, whether family or friend, he was and always will be ... Uncle Bob.

Bob was born and raised in Charlevoix, and passed away peacefully just minutes from the home of his childhood. He was the last surviving son of Clarence and Sadie Bartlett, and predeceased by sister Marian and brothers, Donnie, Gordon and Norman. He is survived by nephew and nieces: Janis Glass, and her children, Laura and Craig; Kathy Meekhof, and her daughter Marlayna; Michael Arbuckle; Deanne Balch, and daughter Bambi and Stephanie; Bobby Bartlett and David Bartlett. His surviving family owes an undying debt of gratitude to Beverley Czerwienski, who became in the last five years of his life, Bob's dearly loved and trusted friend and confidant, and indispensable "attendant" to those matters that his nephew, Michael, was unable to attend to due to geographical distance.

At Bob's request, there will be no funeral, but rather a gathering in the summertime, at his lake home in Elk Rapids, of family and friends, who will raise a glass, tell stories (and there are lots of them) and celebrate his life. If so moved, you may honor Bob by donating to The Michael J. Fox Foundation for Parkinson's Research (www.michaeljfox.org). Arrangements by Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Literacy Corps seeking volunteers

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

The United Way Literacy Corps is hoping to fill up to 100 openings over the next year, according to Martha Lancaster, executive director of the Char-Em United Way. "We would love to have 50 for the upcoming training, including the 30 who are already volunteering," she said.

"The time commitment is really flexible," Lancaster said, "depending on what volunteer position a person is interested in." The Literacy Corps offers volunteer mentors, such as Big Brothers or Big Sisters, which is the most time commitment, meeting with a student once a week. In addition, volunteers read to preschoolers, tutor students of all ages, and staff an elementary library once a week.

"We have positions for people with any kind of background, and we work to make the volunteer opportunity match the volunteer," Lancaster said. "In no matter what position, the volunteer will be trained by the United Way, in addition to receiving guidance from school and United Way staff."

Literacy Corps volunteers work with children and youth in a variety of settings in Emmet and Charlevoix counties. A training for Char-Em United Way's Literacy Corps will be held 9 a.m.-noon on Thursday, Jan. 10, at the Carnegie building, 451 E. Mitchell St., in Petoskey. This training by Char-Em United Way's education staff and Char-Em ISD specialists will provide Literacy Corps members and other youth serving volunteers with valuable resources for their volunteer experience.

The Literacy Corps is part of Char-Em United Way's education initiative "United We Read" which will recruit 150 dedicated volunteers over the next three years to read to, tutor, and mentor students in schools, libraries, day cares and other youth serving agencies.

"We are very excited to get this program under way and implemented in the community," AmeriCorps VISTA Matt Knopsnider said. "The Literacy Corps will help to impact the lives of many children in a positive way which will help them prepare for their future."

People who are already volunteering with youth and those who wish to be matched with a volunteer opportunity are encouraged to come to the training.

People interested in finding out more about the Char-Em United Way Literacy Corps volunteer opportunities should contact Matt Knopsnider at education@charemunitedway.org or call the United Way office at (231) 487-1006. To find more information on Char-Em United Way's education initiative visit the website at www.charemunitedway.org/education.

COMMITTEE

for those opposed to the fireplace; Doan for those in favor of the fireplace; and Miller for those who are undecided.

In appointing the committee, Carlson has said their role is simply to provide input to Buday as he formulates a recommendation to the city council. Ultimately it will be the council who decides how or if the fireplace project continues.

Buday has also brought on landscape architect Richard Hitz, the principal designer for the interactive water fountain and trout stream elements of the park, to assist in the process.

Early on in the meeting Buday addressed a question posed by Bingham who inquired if "no fireplace" is still an option. Buday explained that it is not the charge of the committee to determine if there should be a fireplace in the park or not. Rather, it is to suggest options for a fireplace project that might meet the intended purposes or goals of a fireplace feature in the park and that might be more agreeable to more of the community. He reiterated that the decision to proceed with a project or not will be up to the city council.

"We are going to look for the best location and design. We are not going to say 'yes' or 'no,'" Hitz said. He added, "If it really doesn't make sense it in the park, that will come out in the discussion."

Winn, who suggested the idea of a community fireplace to the anonymous donor after seeing a similar one in Holland, said the vision for the fireplace was for it to serve as a gathering space, a feature that looks warm and inviting to guests, enticing them to stop and explore the downtown — especially during the town's off-season during cooler months.

The committee members all agreed that the goals of the project were good, but the devil is in the details. Bingham, whose shop is located directly across the street from the current project location in East Park's Plaza B, said from the beginning she has thought the project was too big, in the wrong location and did not fit in with the character of the park.

"I love the idea of trying to draw people downtown for the off season, but I don't want to see it at expense of main season (and the draw of East Park's beauty).

One of the main complaints of opponents has been the impact the fireplace and its 20-foot tall chimney would have on the view of the park and Round Lake from Bridge Street. Another has been the estimated $6,700 annual cost of the natural gas to fuel the fireplace, which was proposed to be on a timer that could be adjusted seasonally and with the weather."

"One of the common comments we heard is that there needs to be some utility besides aethetics — the simple act of burning natural gas for the appearance," Straebel said.

The general consensus of the group seemed to be that to serve its purpose — to be seen and serve as a place to gather, it would need to be easily seen and accessible from Bridge Street.

After some discussion, one suggestion that seemed to gain some traction among the group was looking at relocating the fireplace to near the southeast corner of Bridge and Clinton streets (in the area of the large pine tree that serves as the community Christmas tree). Some discussion ensued about that location still being visible and easily accessed, but having less impact on the view in the center of the park.

Miller suggested that, since that corner of the park already slopes some, perhaps some kind of terracing similar to the performance pavilion at the other end of the park might work in that location.

Buday and Hitz noted that the location and suggestion could work, but the construction costs would likely go up because of the elevations.

Winn chimed in that he's been contacted by another donor who is willing to pay the added construction costs associated with the corner location. (Winn noted that the second donor is not willing to pay for the roughly $13,000 that has already been invested in the project.)

The committee seemed to have another bit of a break-through, when Miller asked if there is a reason the chimney needs to be as tall as originally proposed. The answer came from city planner Mike Spencer who was among the roughly 15 the audience members at the meeting. Spencer said he's checked with officials in the county building department who said because the fireplace is gas-fueled, there is no need for it to be a certain height for fire safety. He said it would need to be only a few feet tall — essentially tall enough to keep the heat emanating from its top safely away from bystanders.

Winn added that the reason it was originally proposed at the roughly 20-foot height was to allow the design to mimic the chimneys on some of the Earl Young homes in the community.

Near the end of the meeting, Buday and Hitz said based on what they were hearing, it seemed like they should focus their efforts on developing location options near the street and designs that were smaller in scale. They said based on the discussion, they had about three options for locations for which they would pursue some design options for the committee's next meeting.

Before adjourning, the committee set its next meeting for 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 29, again in the city council chambers.

RECALL

sponsors have until Feb. 1 to collect the necessary number of signatures on the petitions and file them with the county clerk's office in order to prompt a recall elections in May.

The remaining members of the city council, Lyle Gennett, Greg Stevens and Shane Cole, along with mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. are not currently eligible to be recalled because state law prohibits a recall petition to be filed against an elected official in the first or last six months of his or her term. Gennett, Stevens, Cole and Carlson were all re-elected to two year terms in their respective seats in November.

EJ AUDIT

longer outsource annual financial statements, are not feasible, she said, and no changes will be made.

It is too expensive, said Jackson, for the city to train staff and implement this practice right now.

One area Jackson hopes will be corrected by next year is the deficit in the marina fund.

"The main reason it went over was the dredging," she said. "Because of how many times we've had to dredge over the last few years."

In an effort to fix this problem, a silt diversion wall is being built in the city's harbor so that dredging will not be needed as frequently.

"And then we can bring the harbor up to full capacity and bring in more money," she explained.

In response to the suggestion the city should require two rather than one authorized signature for the approval of checks, Jackson revealed she was not sure whether that would be possible or not.

There are three people that could potentially be authorized to sign the checks, the treasurer, clerk and administrator. A concern, said Jackson, would be that two of the three would be out of the office on the same day when a check needs to be written.

"I wouldn't want that to happen on payroll day," said Jackson.

She said she plans to monitor how feasible it will be to make the change over the course of the year and consider implementing it.

City administrator Chris Yonker is on vacation until the first week of January, when Jackson plans to sit down with him to talk about ways they can take action to fix all problems found by the auditors.

"We'll figure out, is it practical for us to fix it? Then make the changes we see fit," she said.

Ski teams ready to hit the slopes

BY DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

When school resumes next week, ski teams from high schools around the area will be out of the gates into this year's season. Here's a look how things are shaping up for some area teams.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER/FILE

Charlevoix-East Jordan

Sue Miller welcomes back a steady group of veterans to her Charlevoix—East Jordan ski team this season.

The Charlevoix—East Jordan boys' team returns a number of key contributors including juniors Brandon Cardwell and Jonathon Lindfors. Sophomore Gabe Hawley should also be a key contributor this season. Seniors Tyler Engstrom and Jaun Dominguez Velez add to a solid group of upperclassmen.

Freshman Nate Lindors and Erik Oshaben will be first year skiers for the team.

The girls' team losses a number of skiers this season, but do return top racer Casey Keane. Junior Cora Taylor is also back for the girls this season, as is sophomore Ashlee Mumich. Kirana Santoso and Brandi Wyatt add solid depth the roster.

Boyne City

The Boyne City High School ski team has taken a step up this season, with 22 members making up the 2013 team.

Coach Bob Simpson's squad features 10 boys and 12 girls and make up a large team Simpson is particularly high on this season.

"I'm real optimistic about this year," he said. "We've got a great set of kids that have all trained real hard."

The Ramblers open the season Monday, Jan. 7, at Boyne Highlands at the Harbor-Petoskey Invitational.

Boyne began training the second week of December, but weren't able to train out of the gates until Thursday, Dec. 27.

Still, Simpson liked what he saw.

"They came out real strong," he said. "They're all really good kids. But it's a large group of kids for one coach."

Key returners for the Boys team include senior Jake Knuter, junior Corey Bohnet and sophomores Elliott Crouch and John Paul Cooper-Smith.

Bohnet competed in the state finals meet a year ago as an individual, finishing 40th in slalom.

Key contributors for the girls team return, including senior Meredith Hague and sophomore Lauren Richards.

A number of freshmen and sophomores enter their first year with the team, including freshmen Devon Baker, Spencer Binkley, Eric Patrick and Riley Myers. Sophomores Max Cuper and Nick Backus will also compete for the Ramblers this year.

Harbor Springs

A year after winning their first state championship since 2004, the Harbor Springs girls' ski team is looking to make it two in a row.

Jane Ramer's team returns in full force for the 2013 season, with a solid group of veterans leading the ship.

The girls won the Division II state title last season over defending champion Petoskey, 91-111. Harbor tied the Northmen in giant slalom with 39 points in the state meet, but edged out Bloomfield Hills Andover, 52-54, in slalom; to take the crown.

"We have the girls' team everyone is gunning for," Ramer said. "I think the girls are very focused and ready to handle the pressure of defending their title. To do this they will need to all stay healthy and focused through out the season."

Harbor Springs opens the season Monday, Jan. 7, in the annual Harbor—Petoskey Invitational at Boyne Highlands.

Their first Lake Michigan Conference meet is Thursday, Jan. 10, at Nubs Nob.

"The Rams return three All-State members to the girls squad in seniors Rose Pellegrom and Meg Shepherd and sophomore Tia Esposito. Also returning for Harbor is veteran Claire Cunningham and top All-State racer Abigail Hackman, who missed the state title meet with a knee injury.

The Rams welcome in a number of new faces in freshman and sophomores who should contribute this season as well.

The Harbor Springs boys' team lost three of it's top racers to graduation but a solid group of underclassmen to build around for the future returns.

Senior Forrest Lundgren leads the way for the Rams, the lone senior on Ramer's roster, while junior Ben Postma adds to a young, yet experienced group.

A number of sophomores are back including John Bailey, Matthew Fought, Nick Mogford and Ben Keller, while freshman Shea Fuhrman comes in as the only freshman on the team.

According to Ramer, Fuhrman has shown a strong presence already. "The boys team is a very young team with only one senior and one junior on the team," Ramer said. "The sophomore boys are a very talented group of racers and with the addition of Shea Fuhrman, they promise a productive season."

Ramer knows for the boys to capture a state title, they'll need to get past defending champion Petoskey, a veteran and talented team.

"The Petoskey Boys team has a lot of depth again this year and are basically a power house, but the Harbor boys are very competitive and have great work ethics," she said. "They are ready to go after them."

Petoskey

For most teams four state championships in six years would build a great deal of pressure to out-preform the last season, year after year.

For the Petoskey High School boys' ski team, however, this year is just another season on the hill.

The Northmen have won back-to-back Division II state championships, but according to fourth-year coach Travis Hill, there's no added pressure to live up to lofty expectations.

"We treat every year as a new year. We're going to go out and compete to the best of our ability," Hill said. "Everyone continues to work and get better run after run."

Both the boys and girls teams have been practicing in the area since Dec. 10, but a large portion of the team traveled to Mt. Hood, Ore., during the offseason to practice.

Others traveled to Colorado in November to train in a Thanksgiving camp.

The Northmen open the season Friday, Jan. 4 in Marquette at the Marquette Invitational. The first home meet of the year follows on Monday, Jan. 7, in the annual Harbor-Petoskey Invitational at Boyne Highlands.

The Petoskey boys finished the 2012 season by winning six straight meets to end the year and welcome back nearly all of last years roster.

Key returnees for the boys' team include seniors Ben Loomis, Matt Dankert and Noah Honaker and junior, Gunnar Lundteigen. All placed within the top 10 in giant slalom in the state championship meet last year.

The boys also welcome back senior Brian Erhart, a 2011 first-team All-State member in both slalom and giant slalom, who spent last year in Vail, Colo., race training.

"It's good to have him back," Hill said of Erhart. "He definitely strengthens up the platform."

The Petoskey girls finished as Division II state runner-up's to Harbor Springs last season, a year after taking the state crown.

The girls' team features key senior contributors Reilly Phillihen, Lisa Dinon, Jill Antonishen, Claire Brummler and Mikaela Nayback. Junior Mia Ciccoretti is another key returnee for the Northmen.

Both Dinon and Antonishen finished within the top 10 in both slalom and giant slalom in the state title meet.

Hill losses just one senior combined from the boys and girls team's, but it's a group of ten seniors this season that propels both teams. In his four year's as a coach for Petoskey, Hill has built a special bond with his group of upperclassmen.

"It's been great to see them grow," he said. "They've become better skiers, but more than that, also better citizens. We've had fun the four years I've been here and we've been winning in those years."

Apart from the upperclassmen, the Northmen welcome eight freshman to this year's team, a class Hill looks forward to watching preform.

"I've seen great progress in their skills," he said. "It's just a matter of time to see how well they do. Time will tell."

Hill knows with a solid group of veterans on each team, focus and preparation wont be an area of concern, even with all the success from past seasons looming.

"Each one of these athletes has a level of humbleness you don't see in other sports," he said. "We just take it one meet at a time and work our way to February."

Wolves named a game species

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Gray wolves have officially made the leap into "game species" status.

On Friday, Dec. 28, Gov. Rick Snyder signed legislation into law that designates gray wolves a game species.

According to a press release from Gov. Snyder's office, the legislation, which was sponsored by Senator Tom Casperson (R-Escanaba) removes the gray wolf from the furbearer list and adds it to the list of game species in Michigan.

Casperson introduced the legislation out of concern for farmers and the safety of Upper Peninsula residents, he said in an November interview with the Petoskey News-Review.

"If we don't take action here, we're going to create felons out of these people trying to save their livelihood, and I for one don't blame them," said Casperson in the interview. "There are regions where the wolves seem to be heavily populated. What's happened is, we have wolves right into the city of Ironwood. ... We do not want those animals roaming around with the general public."

The bill also establishes a wolf hunting license and sets fees for resident and non-resident licenses, states the release.

The cost for a resident license will be $100 while a non-resident license is set at $500.

The bill does not establish a hunting season for the wolf, which was removed from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Endangered Species list in January of 2012. Rather, it allows the Department of Natural Resources, as well as a group of stakeholders, which includes such groups as the Michigan Humane Society and the Upper Peninsula Whitetail Association, to agree upon the parameters of a hunting season.

In early December, that group met to discuss concerns regarding the wolf being designated a game species.

The Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians opposed the legislation.

"The wolf is a sacred clan species and has a prominent role in the Anishinaabek creation story," said tribal chair Dexter McNamara in a November interview with the News-Review. "In the creation story of the Anishnabe, Ma'ingan, the wolf is a brother to the original man."

Doug Craven, director of the Natural Resources Department of the tribe, outlined his concerns about how thoroughly the impacts on a wolf hunt have been studied.

Wolves aren't like deer or fish, said Craven in a November interview with the Petoskey News-Review.

"These are social groups that really heavily rely on the alpha male or alpha female," he said. "If an alpha wolf is killed, does the group die, does it move, does it fight, does it have more of a tendency to prey on livestock?"

Craven also wonders about whether a controlled hunt would solve the problem of farmers and landowners.

"Simply reducing wolves or bear in an area does not necessarily mean you've addressed that problem wolf pack or that problem bear," he said. "If you don't change the conditions that lead to bears getting into garbage or a bird feeder, then you're more than likely going to have a continued issue there. ... People think that, in simplistic terms, more wolves equal more problems, less wolves, less problems. But it's not that simple."

Hospital welcomes the first baby of the new year

MORGAN SHERBURNE
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

For the staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital, welcoming the first baby of the new year was a little extra special this year as the baby was born to one of their fellow staff members.

George Owen Donaldson was born to Jean and Corbin Donaldson. Jean is not only a nurse at Charlevoix Area Hospital, she's a nurse in the obstetrics department.

"I love it," said Jean of the department. "The people are wonderful. The doctors are wonderful. I wouldn't have gone anywhere else."

George was 8 pounds, 4 ounces and was 22 1/2 inches long. He was born at 12:42 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 4. Jean was surprised to find that George was the first baby of the new year in Charlevoix County.

"I never would have thought that he was the first," said Jean.

The Donaldsons, both originally from Petoskey, moved back to the area after living for two years in Grand Rapids. There, their first child, daughter Grace, 2 1/2, was born. They moved back to Northern Michigan a year and a half ago.

Corbin works at the Bank of Northern Michigan in Petoskey, and the family lives between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Jean said her coworkers were nearly as excited to have Jean deliver at the hospital as she was.

"There were about five nurses in the room," said Jean.

City clerk speaks out on recalls

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix City Clerk Carol Ochs wants to make one thing clear: When it comes to keeping the city council in compliance with the Open Meetings Act, the buck stops with her.

And it was a letter from a citizen that both complimented her and defended her that prompted the clerk's declaration.

During the reports section of Monday's regular semi-monthly Charlevoix City Council meeting, Ochs read a letter from city resident Julee Roth in the record at Roth's request. (Roth also submitted the letter to the Charlevoix Courier as a letter to the editor, and it appears in its entirety on page A4.)

In the letter Roth compliments Ochs for her professionalism in handling Roth's recent sizable Freedom of Information Act request for documents relating to a controversial proposal to construct a community fireplace in the city's East Park. Roth then goes on to write that Ochs should not be considered responsible for the Open Meetings Act violations that she and two other city residents have alleged in petitions they are currently circulating seeking to prompt a recall election against council members Jill Picha, Bryan Vollmer and Dennis Kusina.

Ochs

In the petition language, which was approved for circulation by the Charlevoix County Election Commission in early December, the three petition sponsors claim that the city council violated the Open Meetings Act when it met for a special meeting on Aug. 9. It was during that meeting that the council voted unanimously to proceed with the now-contentious fireplace project.

In her letter, Roth writes, "It truly saddens me to read two recent letters from city council members defending themselves by indirectly accusing Ms. Ochs of not doing her job."

When finished reading Roth's letter Monday, Ochs read her own prepared statement in response.

Despite Roth's defense of her performance, Ochs said the responsibility for keeping the council in compliance with the Open Meetings Act actually is hers.

"If there were any Open Meetings Act violations at any meeting, joint or otherwise, the responsibility would rest solely with me. If I truly believed there to be an Open Meetings Act violation at any meeting for which I am the clerk of record, I would immediately tender my resignation for dereliction of duty as clerk of the city of Charlevoix."

In response to the allegations that the council violated the act, Ochs has said on several occasions that the special joint meeting of the downtown development authority board and the city council was posted at city hall well more than the 18 hours in advance of the meet that the law requires. (It was actually posted a little more than 48 hours in advance of the meeting, Ochs has said.) Ultimately, on the day of the meeting there weren't enough members of the downtown development authority board present to constitute a quorum and therefore that board never officially convened its portion of the Multi-use garage planned on Beaver Island

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan REview

BEAVER ISLAND — The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners likes the idea of constructing a garage on Beaver Island to house road commission, sheriff's department and transportation authority vehicles and offices, but disagrees on whether the county should foot the bill for the more than $1.5 million venture.

The board unanimously agreed Wednesday that plans should move forward on the construction of the garage, but only after a joint meeting of the entities to be housed there is held to hash out who will pay for the building and property on which it is placed and who will, in the end, own the facility.

The meeting has been tentatively scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Feb. 6, at the county commission chambers.

Plans for the 8,500 square foot metal building were drawn up by Petoskey engineering firm Northwest Design Group.

Construction and design are estimated to cost, in all, about $1.4 million. The county, road commission or transit must also purchase a piece of property on which to place the building.

The final design is expected to be complete by April and, if a site is located and purchased, construction could begin by summer and be complete before the ground freezes next winter.

Current plans for the building show it heated and containing room for three plow trucks, one loader, one grader, five to six pick-up truck-sized vehicles, two sheriff's cars, a snowmobile with trailer, 24-foot boat, ATV, two transit vans, office space, an evidence room, two holding cells, interview room, maintenance area, bathroom and storage space. Additionally, a small salt storage building would be separate from the main building.

If the goal is to construct a building that houses three separate legal entities, said county legal counsel Bryan Graham, meaning the county and its sheriff's department, the road commission and the transportation authority, legal parameters must be set to establish who owns the building and who will lease the building.

COURTESY PHOTO

The current Charlevoix County Road Commission garage on Beaver Island was built almost 100 years ago and leaves much to be desired, reported road commission manager Pat Harmon. The garage fits two plow trucks, with plows removed, and one loader.

"Who is going to own this building and the land on which it is built," said Graham, is an important question to answer moving forward. "There must be a clear decision on who is financing it."

So far, all design work has been funded by the road commission.

Road commission manager Pat Harmon asked Graham whether the road

Charlevoix man pleads guilty to federal child porn charges

GRAND RAPIDS — Scott Thomas Barrett, 49, of Charlevoix, pleaded guilty on Monday to receiving via the Internet images and videos of child pornography, U.S. Attorney Patrick A. Miles, Jr. announced on Tuesday.

The case stemmed from an undercover online investigation that took place in 2011. During that investigation, an undercover officer was able to download child pornography that Barrett had made available on the Internet. Agents then executed a search warrant at Barrett's home and recovered a computer that contained a substantial collection of child pornography. Barrett gave a full confession and admitted to downloading the child pornography images and videos from the Internet.

This case is part of Project Safe Childhood, a nationwide initiative designed to protect children from online exploitation and abuse. The U.S. Attorney's Office, county prosecutor's offices, the Internet Crimes Against Children task force (ICAC), federal, state and local law enforcement are working closely together to locate, apprehend and prosecute individuals who exploit children.

Barrett faces a minimum of five years and a maximum of 20 years of imprisonment, and he will be required to serve a term of supervised release after his prison term has been completed. Barrett will also be required to register as a sexual offender.

The Department of Homeland Security-Homeland Security Investigations (HSI) investigated the case. Assistant U.S. Attorney Sean M. Lewis prosecuted the case.

Clarification

A divorce listing that appeared on page A2 of the Friday, Jan. 4, edition of the Charlevoix Courier requires clarification. The divorce listed for Trina Fournier-Davis vs. John Davis was in fact a judgement for separate maintenance. A judgement for separate maintenance carries the same file code, and is nearly identical to a divorce except that it does not "dissolve the bonds of matrimony."

Decision delayed on recycling contract

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County officials on Monday decided to hold off on deciding with whom the county will contract to haul and process recyclables in the county.

Bids first went out for the expiring hauling contract in September, but a decision has yet to be made after the buildings and grounds committee, made up of commissioners Richard Gillepsie, Larry Sullivan and George Lasater, decided Monday to table making a decision on the issue and making a recommendation to the full board of commissioners until February.

The indecision is a result of a lack of enough information, said chair of the committee, Gillespie. He would like to have a summary of not only the price of each of the contracts offered by the bidding companies, but would also like to hear a comparison of the services they will provide, he said, before making a decision.

The county's recycling committee made a recommendation to the buildings and grounds committee that Charlevoix stick with Emmet County for its recyclable processing and switch its hauling services from American Waste, which it has used for the past six years, to Emmet in an effort to bundle services and save money.

"The (recycling) committee, at this time, does not support ending our contract early with Emmet County for processing," said chair of the committee Michelle Hewitt.

American Waste is based in Kalkaska with a processing facility in Traverse City.

The opportunity to combine hauling and processing together came to the attention of recycling committee members in November, said Hewitt. The county's contract with American Waste for hauling was coming to an end and so bids were sought to find a company to provide the service. By the time of the bid deadline, the county had only received one bid from American Waste and it was higher than anticipated.

American Waste also included a bid for both hauling and processing, rather than just hauling, at a better price.

The recycling committee decided that to be fair it should get bids from all entities interested in performing either just hauling, or both hauling and processing and a second round of bids was opened at the end of November.

Rather than just one response, the committee received proposals from four companies. Two companies offered options for both hauling and processing together: American Waste and Emmet County. Two others offered bids for hauling only: Waste Management and Republic Services.

All options offered a cost savings over 2012 for the county's recycling program.

American Waste bid $180,000 and Emmet County bid just under $183,000 for a comparable amount of work for the first year of their contracts.

In a verbal statement to Hewitt, American Waste officials said its rate would increase by three percent each subsequent year of its contract with the county, while Emmet County stated its rate would remain flat for both years of its contract.

If the bid is awarded to Emmet County, three new recycling bins would need to be purchased, at a cost of $20,000.

American Waste can process recyclables without the need for separation of different materials, commented Gillespie on Monday, which could be a benefit to residents of the county.

Gillepsie directed liaison to the recycling committee, Sullivan, human resources director Kevin Shepard and maintenance supervisor Frank Shaler to draw up detailed information on the services and prices offered by each of the bidders to present to the buildings and grounds meeting Feb. 13, where a decision will be made by the committee members on what recommendation to make to the full board.

TWO YEAR HAULING BIDS:
Cost in 2012: $175,917
Emmet County: $129,864
Waste Management: $164,850
Republic Services: $169,833
American Waste: $184,235

TWO YEAR HAULING AND PROCESSING BIDS:
Cost in 2012: $261,047
Emmet County: $182,896
American Waste: $180,000

Council OKs new liquor ordinance

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix residents and visitors may one day have more places to enjoy a cold beer or a glass of wine, thanks to a new ordinance passed by the Charlevoix City Council on Monday.

By a unanimous vote, the council approved a new ordinance that would allow certain downtown business owners to apply for special redevelopment liquor licenses from the Michigan Liquor Control Commission.

The special Class C licenses, which are not subject to the usual quotas set by the liquor control commission for licenses obtained through traditional avenues, are intended to stimulate redevelopment in downtown areas.

The ordinance was the second in a two-step process to allow the licenses to be considered in Charlevoix. In May the council approved, by a 3-2 vote, to designate the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority area as an economic redevelopment district.

Since the downtown is already at its quota for liquor licenses, the only way a business in the district could get one is to buy a transferable one that comes up on the market for sale. Going rates for such licenses can range for $40,000-$60,000.

Under this program in a redevelopment district (which must meet certain criteria for public and private investment in recent years), a business owner can ask to buy a license for $20,000 if it is willing to invest at least $75,000 in improvements in the business property.

The program is intended to help stimulate growth in struggling downtowns, but when the council considered the first element of the program in the spring, many current downtown restaurant owners and liquor license holders complained that the program will do more harm than good.

Existing licensees said they struggle to get by in the offseason, and adding more licenses in an area that has a limited market could spell doom for many of their businesses.

Amid similar objections in 2011, consideration of the program never got beyond the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority board.

However in the April 16 meeting Vi Keller, the owner of Scovies Gourmet Deli, located at 111 Bridge St., came to the council requesting the designation so she could serve beer and wine with meals and sell liquor during special events or a private party. Keller has said she has no desire to turn the business into a typical bar, or extend the hours to 2 a.m.

The proposal for Scovies' license has had wide support among many city leaders and current downtown license holders, but many didn't want to see it go any further, fearing the precedent it would set.

After approval in May, the city gathered a committee made up of city officials and downtown business owners to suggest provisions for the ordinance. In presenting the ordinance to the council on Monday, downtown development authority director Keith Carey noted that the committee had originally had more requirements in the ordinance such as limiting the number to three and giving preference to businesses that have been established in the downtown for at least two years.

Carey

Carey noted, however that those provisions were removed from the ordinance at the recommendation of the city attorney who was concerned that there was no element of the state law that the city could fall back on if it ever had to defend those elements in a legal challenge.

In addition to requirements for investments into the property that would house such a special license, some of the other requirements include that the business be engaged in dining, recreation or entertainment, that the applicant tried unsuccessfully to obtain a license through traditional means, and the business must have a seating capacity of at least 25 people. The council may also consider how the business will contribute to the new or unique mix of businesses downtown and how well it meshes with and will contribute to the economic development and goals of the downtown development authority.

Carey also noted that the city council giving its blessing to a liquor license application under the special program is no guarantee that one will be issued. That decision is ultimately up to the liquor control commission, he said.

In other business the council approved a proposal to reconfigure the intersection of Clinton Street and Park Avenue as part of a planned reconstruction of the 300 block of Clinton Street this year. The design seeks to remedy a problem created by the odd angle at which the two streets meet. The solution is to create a traffic island on the Clinton Street side of the intersection that will force vehicles to make turns that are closer to a right angle. The island's design was modified slightly from the original plan to address concerns neighboring property owners had about parking and getting in and out of their driveways.

The council also set two public hearings for budget matters. One hearing will be to make the final fiscal year-end amendment to the 2012-13 budget and the other will be for the upcoming 2013-14 fiscal year budget. Both hearings were set for 7 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 18.

The council also approved a measure to lease about 1 percent (six fiber strands) of the excess capacity in the fiber optic network line the city and school district jointly own.

The council also approved the transfer of the liquor license for Kelsey B's Restaurant, 230 Ferry Ave. to T.J. Wilder Enterprises, owned by Tina Jo Wilder of Petoskey. According to Wilder's application, she intends to continue operating the business with the same bar/restaurant services that currently exist.

A.M. Fire damages home on Beaver Island

BEAVER ISLAND — Firefighters were on the scene of a fire at a home on Beaver Island's Main Street for four hours Wednesday, preventing it from spreading to any nearby structures as well as safely evacuating the family.

Beaver Island fire chief Tim McDonough said the blaze appears to have been started by an electrical problem in an upstairs bathroom at the Kathy Maudrie home at 26305 Main St. before spreading to a second room and into the roof. Firefighters were called to the home at 4:25 a.m.

McDonough noted the home sustained structural damage upstairs and water damage to the first story. He said the family did not have insurance. Three community efforts have been organized to help the family.

First, the family is in need of clothing items, men's size large, baby boy, size 6-9 months and women's large or extra-large size. Mainland residents wishing to contribute items my drop them off at Island Airways at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport and they will deliver the items to the island. A spaghetti dinner fundraiser is also set for 5-8 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 13 at the Shamrock Bar on Beaver Island. The Charlevoix Elks Lodge has also scheduled a fundraising event for the family starting at 4 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 9. The event will include music, raffles, 50-50 drawings, a cash bar and food

Last year's lesson: Cherish what matters

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

This time of year I like to reflect on the year that has passed and look into what the new year may bring.

In 2012 the media shared with us the loss of children, family homes and made us look into our souls and ask what is going on? We have been slapped in the face that mental illness does impact society and we need to address it. There needs to be coordination on what we are doing to help support the mental health field and care for families in need of support in general.

I've come to a loss of words that may accurately console those who have been reeling from losses this past year but it's more important to be available to listen and not to always speak. It's important to understand that not everyone you meet on the street or in the movie theaters or malls is armed and angry. It's important to realize that violence will always be present in our lives in some form and to do whatever you are able to do to educate your children and grandchildren on what to do to take care of themselves in an emergency. Our youth are being incarcerated as adults because increasingly more of them are acting as irresponsible adults rather than evoking the teenage qualms of what to wear and how late they can stay out with friends. Many of us, including myself, would like to return to the era of the 50s or 60s. We can't relive the past but we can take away from all the sad things that have occurred and prioritize what's important in life. Life, itself, should never be taken for granted. This year has made an impact on everyone and the eastern states even more so. It's important to realize that this may be a somber year as more than ever we appreciate good health, close friends and keeping our family near to us.

Changing the topic to weather, storms and what may be in our future, climatewise: Meteorologists report an above average snowfall this winter for the East Coast and Great Lakes while the South and Western states should be warmer and drier. So, get those snow blowers revved up and have back up plans for heat and light source. In the work world, I believe we'll continue to rely on using our computers and iPhones. I feel that information about us will be acquired via Facebook, twitter and other accounts to help those in the marketing field and not to necessarily hack us. Office workers will spend more time reading and writing emails and searching for information. Consumers will continue to become empowered with information on any topic of need on the internet. Advances in the health realm will continue to amaze us and generally we will not take our health for granted and we will make it a priority.

I feel health and wellness will be at the forefront and more of us will consider what we eat and how we feed our families. We may take a closer look at what computer games our children are playing or what they are watching on TV. Schools will continue to take the active role of keeping children safe and parents and others will learn to respect what is done to keep all safe. Armed guards will not deter violence but educating others about unusual behaviors will assist professionals to keep you safe. This will also be the year to take a greater notice in helping others and being tolerant of long lines and not always expecting that your needs are more important than someone else's.

On a better note, it's good to hear that students from Sandy Hook are settling in at their new school seven miles down the road from their former school. A boarded-up middle school was transformed to meet the needs of smaller children complete with cubbies in the same location as their previous site and classrooms replicating the same color scheme. Routine is what helps all of us and seeing familiar faces quickly warms our hearts. So as we settle in ourselves with the new year know that this columnist wishes you good physical and mental health and reminds you that the golden rule of "Treat others as you would want others to treat you" still has the same effect since the day it was written.

Recall sponsor thanks city clerk for professionalism

Editor:

To the People of Charlevoix:

Our city clerk, Carol Ochs has been a consummate professional and very easy to work with when I have requested documents and information. While I can not say thank you in person right now, I wish to publicly thank her, in front of the Charlevoix City Council, mayor and fellow citizens for her work. She is dedicated to the people of Charlevoix. In my opinion, Ms. Ochs is not, nor should she ever be considered, responsible for any of the Open Meetings Act violations (or for the other reasons) we are recalling the people who are committing the violations. It truly saddened me to read two recent letters from city council members defending themselves by indirectly accusing Ms. Ochs of not doing her job. She has, was and is doing her job properly. Thank you Ms. Ochs and thank you everyone for taking a moment to consider the truth.

With respect,
Julee Roth
Charlevoix

Editor's note: Julee Roth is one of three city residents currently circulating petitions seeking to prompt a recall election against three city council members. The language on all three petitions accuses the city council of having violated the Michigan Open Meetings Act during a special meeting on Aug. 9. One of the petitions, the one Roth filed against council member Jill Picha, also accuses Picha of failing to enforce a city ordinance regarding keeping the streets clear of debris. This letter was also read into the record at Roth's request at the Jan. 7 Charlevoix City Council Meeting (See related story, on page A1)

Health department medical director warns of prescription drug abuse

Editor:

As a medical professional, I think it's urgent to remind readers of the dangers of prescription drug abuse. It is a real issue in Northern Michigan, and is growing more serious every day.

Prescription drugs are abused more commonly than cocaine, heroin, methamphetamines, and many other illegal drugs. In fact, they are second only to marijuana in the prevalence of their abuse. Opiate overdoses, which were once almost always due to heroin use, are now happening in cases of prescription pain killer abuse. Prescription drug abuse has been declared a national epidemic by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

Many Americans benefit from the appropriate use of prescription drugs, like pain killers. But when these medications are abused, they can be as addictive and dangerous as illegal drugs.

Prescription drugs should only be taken by the patient for whom they were prescribed, and exactly as directed by a medical professional.

What can you do? First, it is essential to monitor your own prescription drugs. Keep them in a secure place and dispose of them properly. Remember that guests in your home, including friends of your children or grandchildren, have easy access to anything you store in a medicine cabinet or closet. Even medications that may not seem dangerous can cause serious health hazards if used improperly, and can be deadly if abused.

It is never safe to share prescription medications. You can set a good example for your children by never sharing your prescription drugs with family members or anyone else. Talk to teens and young adults about the dangers of prescription and over-the-counter drugs.

LOOKING BACK…

Last week, Looking Backfeatured the first of Charlevoix's three major hotels, the Belvedere, begun in 1879. This is the second. In 1898, the Chicago & West Michigan Railway, which had brought the first train to Charlevoix in 1892, opened a 550-foot-long hotel along today's Mercer Boulevard atop the terrace that runs above the depot. The mighty structure was called simply The Inn. At 250 rooms capable of sleeping up to 800 people, it was the second largest hotel in Michigan after the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island. But in order to reach its front door, Dixon Avenue had to be extended east. The dirt road sliced across the first fairway of the Chicago Club's new golf course, whose tee was just outside the resort grounds on what is now Chicago Avenue. By 1902 the club bought more land, moved the fairway north and reconfigured the layout into what is now Charlevoix's municipal course. The Inn unfortunately was able to provide very little parking for an increasingly popular automobile. The inexorable decline in railroad passenger numbers hurt it, combined with the effects of the Great Depression, so 1940 was the last season. Its contents were auctioned off in late 1941, and down came magnificent The Inn, whose likes will probably never be seen here again.

In an effort to shorten that stretch and raise the remaining $60,000 needed to get the doors open the shelter for homeless women and their children, Stevens and the rest of the fellowship will be hosting an event dubbed A Mid-Winter's Benefit Gala at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 19, in the West Garden Room at Castle Farms.

The event will include music by the Pine River Jazz Band and Sax Quartet, appetizers and desserts catered by the Grey Gables Inn Restaurant and a host of items that have been donated by area individuals an businesses for a silent auction.

Some of the auction items include a water tube from Dry Harbour Marina, a collectible plate collection painted by artist Utz Thurgood, tickets to Beaver Island by Fresh Air Aviation, baseball tickets to a Beach Bums game in Traverse City, golf packages and much more.

A Mid-Winter's Benefit Gala will take place in of Castle Farms on Saturday evening, January 19th beginnig at 7 p.m.

Tickets to the gala are $15 per person and $25 per couple and may be purchased at the fellowship, which is located at 1204 Bridge St., or by calling the office at (231) 547-8040.

Stevens said the group's priority is now getting the home's new heating system funded so they can proceed with insulation, drywall and flooring as well as new siding and repalcing the roof in the spring!

Stevens said she hopes the group's target date to open the home is late spring of this year.

Last year the Joppa House project took off when Third Day received a donation of a former convent building on the St. Mary Church property and a parcel of property at the corner of State and Garfield streets about a block away. The house was moved to the property, and efforts to renovate the structure to serve as the Joppa House have been ongoing ever since.

Organizers had hoped to have the home open by June,

"It has been so rewarding to watch Castle Farms change over the last 10 years, transforming itself into a gem for the community. I feel honored and privileged to have had the opportunity to grow with the company, and most of all, to work for (Castle Farms owner) Linda Mueller," O'Connor said.

O'Connor has been a member of the Castle Farms team since its inception in 2003. She holds an associate's degree from Northern Michigan University, and a bachelor's degree in management and organizational development from Spring Arbor University. O'Connor is a certified professional wedding coordinator through the Association of Certified Professional Wedding Consultants, and has personally coordinated hundreds of weddings. In 2011, O'Connor was awarded the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce Ambassador of the Year Award.

"Castle Farms has built its reputation on providing old-world charm with modern-day amenities and world-class service," Mueller said. "Anora has played a huge role in that equation, and I cannot imagine the Castle being what it is without her. I expect the Castle will continue to grow, develop, and be a positive member of the Charlevoix community, thanks to Anora's influence."

Castle Farms, of Charlevoix was built in 1918 by Albert Loeb, then-acting president of Sears Roebuck Company, as a model farm to showcase products available in the company's catalog. The farm closed in 1927, following Mr. Loeb's death. Forty years later, the Castle was sold and used as an art studio, then as a rock concert venue. Mueller purchased the property in 2001, and restored the into the venue it is today.

Mary Louise (Ouvry-Alspaugh) Sheppard, 79

Mary Lou Sheppard, longtime Charlevoix resident and owner, with husband Glen, of "The North Woods Call," passed away at home, Dec. 29 surrounded by family and friends.

Mary Lou, daughter of Leon and Juanita (Hardy) Ouvry, was on born May 18, 1933 in Detroit and grew up in Traverse City and Mancelona. She later lived in Bellaire before moving to Charlevoix in 1960 with her first husband James Alspaugh.

Mary Lou's passion in life was her gardens of flowers and vegetables, which she shared with friends and strangers alike. Her yearly report of numbers of quarts of raspberries picked tickled her pink as did all the new friends she made through letting them come dig bulbs in her garden. Through the North Woods Call she thoroughly enjoyed her involvement in conservation issues in Northern Michigan and she contributed greatly to the quality of life Up North that we all share. Mary Lou led a full life, attending concerts, visiting friends, sisters, children, and walking with her precious dog Bitzy. Her only regret was not being able to travel for the next 10 years. Of dying from cancer, she said "This is not what I had planned!"

Mary Lou was preceded in death by husband Glen. She is survived by her daughters, Cyndi Gardner, Oakley, Calif., Pamela Alspaugh, with Mary's dog Bitzy, Bellevue Wash., Sherry Marshall, Midland, Mich., and Jacalyn (Sass) Anderson, Elk Rapids, Mich.; 10 grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Mary Lou wished to thank her many friends and family for their company and assistance during her illness. Her family and friends will have a celebration of her life later in May. Please share thoughts, anecdotes, stories and photos with Mary Lou's family on their online guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com/Guest-Books. For a more lasting memorial, the family asks that Mary Lou be remembered through memorial contributions to Hospice of Michigan, Traverse City Branch.

Investment Mistakes to Watch For...at Different Stages of Life

As an investor, how can you avoid making mistakes? It's not always easy, because investing can be full of potential pitfalls. But if you know what the most common mistakes are at different stages of an investor's life, you may have a better chance of avoiding these costly errors.

Let's take a look at some investment mistakes you'll want to avoid when you're young, when you're in mid-career, when you're nearing retirement and when you've just retired.

When you're young ...

Mistake: Investing too conservatively (or not at all) — If you're just entering the working world, you may not have a lot of money with which to invest. But don't wait until your income grows — putting away even a small amount each month can prove quite helpful. Additionally, don't make the mistake of investing primarily in short-term vehicles that may preserve your principal but offer little in the way of growth potential. Instead, position your portfolio for growth. Of course, stock prices will always fluctuate, but you potentially have decades to overcome these short-term declines. Since this money is for retirement, your focus should be on the long term — and it's impossible to reach long-term goals with short-term, highly conservative investments.

When you're in mid-career ...

Mistake: Putting insufficient funds into your retirement accounts – At this stage of your life, your earning power may well have increased substantially. As a result, you should have more money available to invest for the future — specifically, you may now be able to "max out" on your IRA and still boost your contributions to your employer-sponsored retirement plan, such as your 401(k), 403(b) or 457(b). These retirement accounts offer tax advantages that you may not receive in ordinary savings and investment accounts. Try to put more money into these retirement accounts every time your salary goes up.

When you're nearing retirement ...

Mistake: Not having balance in your investment portfolio – When they're within just a few years of retirement, some people may go to extremes, either investing too aggressively to try to make up for lost time or too conservatively in an attempt to avoid potential declines. Both these strategies could be risky. So as you near retirement, seek to balance your portfolio. This could mean shifting some of your investment dollars into fixed-income vehicles to provide for your current income needs while still owning stocks that provide the growth potential to help keep up with inflation in your retirement years.

When you've just retired ...

Mistake: Failing to determine an appropriate withdrawal rate

Upon reaching retirement, you will need to carefully manage the money you've accumulated in your IRA, 401(k) and all other investment accounts. Obviously, your chief concern is outliving your money, so you'll need to determine how much you can withdraw each year. To arrive at this figure, take into account your current age, your projected longevity, the amount of money you've saved and the estimated rate of return you're getting from your investments. This type of calculation is complex, so you may want to consult with a financial professional.

By avoiding these errors, you can help ensure that, at each stage of your life, you're doing what you can to keep making progress toward your financial goals.

City moving forward with zoning ordinance overhaul

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

City of Charlevoix officials are moving closer to ironing out elements of a proposed extensive overhaul to the city's zoning ordinance.

The city's planning commission has had the hood up on the draft ordinance since it was first unveiled last year and has made many amendments based on public involvement and comments, additional research that has been completed, and specific provisions that they feel will benefit Charlevoix in the future, city planning director Mike Spencer said in a recent update on the process.

He noted that the planning commission has formed a four-member subcommittee that has met twice to develop some recommendations for the full planning commission to consider. The next planning commission meeting has been scheduled for 6 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 22, in city council chambers.

Many of the areas of discussion have come up based on issues the city has had with how the current ordinance addresses or defines some things. Examples of some issues the commission has been discussing include:

— After some discussion in December the planning commission decided to continue to allow short term rentals (less than one week) in single family residential areas. They directed staff to come up with appropriate language to clarify this. The discussion took place after a few people had expressed concerns about the practice of allowing the short term rentals.

— The commission will also be working on establishing language that clarifies the definition of a "dwelling unit" and what uses should be allowed in accessory structures. Recently the city's zoning board of appeals heard a case that centered around a beach house and whether or not it qualified as a "dwelling unit" because sometimes people sleep in it.

Other items the commission will be considering include:

— Specific requirements for size and height of boathouses.

— Lot coverage requirements, specifically as they relate to the marine commercial overlay district. What is appropriate in all zones specifically areas around the water?

— Where to allow bed and breakfast establishments and parking and sign requirements for them.

— Regulation regarding accessory structures, landscaping, parking requirements.

— Setting rules for which projects can be approved by the zoning administrator and which must have a development plan review.

— Rules for temporary structures and uses such as greenhouses or seasonal businesses.

— Rules for athletic courts in residential areas.

Spencer said city officials continue to seek public input on all these and any other matters related to the new zoning ordinance.

The draft can be reviewed online by going to www.cityofcharlevoxi.org and then clicking on the "Click here for Zoning Ordinance Amendment Updates" link.

Ultimately the planning commission will approve its final draft ordinance and will present its recommendation to the city council. The council will then conduct a public hearing on the proposal and will have the final say on its approval.

East Jordan fights to secure funding

Dredging project to be focus of effort

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — East Jordan city commissioners will hit the pavement this week in a grassroots effort to secure a $26,500 grant from the Michigan Waterways Commission that was promised to the city, then withdrawn.

The commissioners will approach local businesses to sign a letter to the state demonstrating a need for the grant and will leave an unofficial petition at a few of the businesses for area residents to sign.

The grant was originally meant to be used for a silt diversion wall between the Jordan River and the city's municipal harbor in Lake Charlevoix.

The city will move forward using its own funds to build the wall, necessary to maintaining the viability of its public harbor and marina, after the Waterways Commission, in an emergency meeting, placed a hold on the distribution or use of any previously awarded grants other than those for dredging.

The freeze on grants for projects such as the silt wall will stand until the needs of emergency dredging across the state are met, the Waterways Commission decided.

The purpose of the wall would be to reduce the deposit of sediment into the harbor, cutting down on the need of the city to dredge as frequently.

City commissioners learned in December there is a possibility the grant for the diversion wall could be converted to a grant to help out with the cost of dredging this spring, which can cost anywhere from $50,000 to $100,000, according to the city administrator.

With that hope, commissioner Paul Timmons suggested the commissioners, business owners and chamber of commerce in East Jordan draft a letter to the Waterways Commission quantifying and demonstrating the need of the viability of the harbor to the economic vitality of East Jordan in an effort to be awarded a grant to dredge its harbor.

Each of the city commissioners has been designated a region of the city in which they will speak to all the business owners about the letter.

All of the letters will be bundled, along with the petitions, and presented to the Waterways Commission at its meeting at the end of February.

32nd Sno-Blast on tap this weekend

AEBRA COE

Participants in the 2012 Sno-Blast parade

EAST JORDAN — Mother Nature again doesn't appear to be cooperating, but despite the unseasonable warm weather forecast for this weekend, all scheduled Sno-Blast 2013 Events for Friday, Jan. 11, through Sunday, Jan. 13, are still on with the exception of the East Jordan Sno-Mobilers Club radar runs and drag races. The two snowmobile race events have been rescheduled for Saturday, Feb. 16, at the same location and time.

Some of the festival's other events include, a frozen pancake toss, antique snowmobile show and softbal gamel.

Typically, a "couple thousand" people make it into town over the weekend of the festival, estimates East Jordan Chamber of Commerce director Mary Faculak.

The Sno-Blast all started with snowmobile races at the snowmobile club more than three decades ago, she explained, then slowly expanded over the years, taking on new traditions.

"I'm pleased with what it's become," she said. "It's a lot of fun."

The activities begin Friday evening with a chili dinner at the senior center, sales in downtown businesses, a parade, lantern lift, glow-in-the-dark drama presentation by high school students and the crowning of the 2013 Belle of the Blizzard and Winter Knight.

The winter pageant has been a part of the festival for many years, said Faculak. The winners of the pageant will be announced directly after the parade through Main Street led by grand marshal Erv Prevo, 77, a lifelong East Jordan resident, active member of the East Jordan snowmobile club and Air Force veteran.

On Saturday, many celebrants choose to head out to the East Jordan Sno-Mobilers clubhouse for an antique snowmobile show featuring as many as 70 rare, vintage, antique and souped-up sleds, as well as snowmobile drag races and a frozen pancake toss.

Visitors can expect to see a few very rare sleds, including a 1936 Eliason snowmobile with an Indian engine, a 1964 Fox Trac as well as Mercuries, Scorpions and other brands that were once manufactured but are no longer.

For those less inclined to stay outside, or for a quick warm-up, other Saturday Sno-Blast activities in East Jordan include roller skating at Harvest Barn Church and a teen dance at the civic center.

The weekend wraps up on Sunday with a pancake breakfast at the Sno-Mobilers clubhouse and a movie for families at Jordan Valley District Library.

"It's getting to be that time of year, the holidays are over, people want to get out and be active in the area," said Faculak.

"This is a weekend where there's something on that schedule for everyone," she said.

meeting. Charlevoix resident Gabe Campbell, one of the other recall petition sponsors, has said the fact that the authority's board did not meet is part of his contention that an Open Meetings Act violation occurred.

Ochs went on to clarify some misconceptions she said she's heard in the community about the ongoing recall efforts. She noted that although the controversy surrounding the council's handling of the community fireplace issue is at the at the core of the recall efforts, the petitions seeking the council members' recall make no mention of the fireplace.

Ochs said, "The current recall petitions, in order to be circulated, could clearly state that they are proposing a recall based on how the council members in question voted on the fireplace. They (the petitions) do not (mention the fireplace)."

Ochs also went on to clarify for the public that a successful recall of any or all of the three council members will not automatically overturn the original decision to approve the construction of the fireplace.

First the vacancy or vacancies on the council would have to be filled, then the new council would have to make the necessary votes to overturn the original decision to construct the fireplace.

"For anyone to say they know with any certainty that they not only know who will fill the possibly vacant council seats, but also how that makeup of council would vote on any particular issue is grossly misleading to the registered voters of the city of Charlevoix."

According to council rules and procedures, after one regular meeting has passed since a particular action is taken, the only way the council can reverse an earlier decision is by first passing by a two-thirds vote, a motion to suspend the rule about reconsidering previous actions, and then a second two-thirds vote to actually reverse the action.

The fireplace project was originally proposed at a city council meeting in early July by city resident John Winn. Winn has said he had been approached by an anonymous donor in his 80s who originally wanted to make a contribution to the interactive water fountain in East Park. Since that project is essentially complete, Winn said he suggested the fireplace idea to the donor, based on a similar structure that is in downtown Holland. As originally proposed and approved by the city council, the fireplace would be about 8 feet wide at its base and taper to about 4 feet wide at the top of its chimney for a total structure height of about 20 feet. The location was to be the park's Plaza B, which is located along the east side of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason streets. Winn has said that the purpose of the natural gas-fired fireplace would be to serve as a gathering space in the downtown and that would also serve as a feature that would give a warm and inviting feeling to passing motorists — especially during the cooler off-season months.

When construction of the fireplace began shortly after the project's Aug. 9 approval, members of the community began crying foul complaining that the structure is too big and will block views of the park and Round Lake from Bridge Street. Other complaints have centered around the estimated $6,700 per year in natural gas costs for an amenity that opponents say is of little or no value. After hearing the chorus of complaints, the council put the project on hold until spring to allow time to look for design and/or location alternatives to be explored.

commission and county could jointly own the facility rather than one or the other.

"I have no problem with that from a legal perspective," said the attorney.

"I think the first thing we have to do is figure out how to pay for this," said commissioner Chris Christensen. "Originally we were going to get the piece of land for free. We need to discuss whether we are willing to spend money on it."

Christensen suggested that a number should be established for what it would cost to meet the sheriff's department's needs on the island, then any cost above that should be the responsibility of the transit and road commission.

"I'm not questioning the need. I'm questioning the process and who is paying for it," he said.

A grant that would have covered a portion of the cost of the project was denied the road commission in 2012.

"We've got to get it done," said commissioner Richard Gillespie. "We should look at the bigger picture, Beaver Island has been paying taxes to the county for 100 years, but there's no county facility there."

The current facility on Beaver Island which houses road commission equipment and vehicles leaves much to be desired, reported Harmon.

"It's not much," he said of the garage built in the 1920s that currently houses two plow trucks, without their plows, and a loader. The rest of the road commission equipment on the island is stored outdoors including the plows, spare tires, a truck, tractor and patch wagons.

He would like to see the new building owned jointly, and funded jointly, by the county and the road commission, said Harmon.

GIRLS VARSITY BASKETBALL

Rayders down Elks

Fall to Red Devils' in OT

EAST JORDAN — After dominating the first half of their game against East Jordan Tuesday, the Charlevoix Rayder girls varsity basketball team couldn't hold off the Red Devils' solid defense and shot-making in the second half.

The Red Devils overcame a 12-point third quarter deficit en route to topping Charlevoix, 52-46, in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

Valerie Peters finished with 15 points, while Paige Poindexter added 10 points and 12 rebounds and Holley Carson had eight points and six rebounds as the Red Devils improve to 3-5 overall, 2-2 league.

"It was a nice team win," East Jordan coach Steve Hines said. "Charlevoix dominated in the first half and we were down 12 at halftime, stayed even with them in the third and in the fourth had a nice quarter."

East Jordan's Brianna Newberry connected on a 3-pointer with just over a minute to play in regulation, then made three free throws with 40 seconds left to tie the game at 41-all at the end of regulation.

In overtime, the Red Devils went 5-of-5 from the free throw line, while Peters added a basket following a Carson steal to seal it.

"In the fourth quarter and in overtime, we went 10-of-12 from the free throw line, that made a huge difference," Hines said. "Val Peters hit a bucket and made some free throws along with Holley Carson, Brianna Newberry made that 3-pointer and Paige Poindexter controlled the boards. It was a combination from a lot of different players that made it special."

For Charlevoix, 3-4, 2-2, Madeline Boss had 16 points and three steals, while Sydney Carlson had nine points and three steals and Karley Pearsall added six points and nine rebounds.

"We played really well in the first half, but we didn't play as intense as a game in the second half and gave up a lot of easy buckets," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said.

East Jordan also won the JV game, 35-23. For East Jordan, Lindsay Schroeder had 12 points, while Constance Wynkoop added eight points.

On Friday, Jan. 4, the Madeline Boss had 11 points, five rebounds and four blocks as to lead the Lady Rayders to a 40-35 Lake Michigan Conference win over Elk Rapids.

"We played better with better ball movement tonight," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "We had trouble getting the ball in the basket at time, but our hustle made up the difference."

The Rayders went into halftime with a 19-15 lead.

During the third quarter, Charlevoix led by as many as nine before the Elks cut into the lead in the fourth, but couldn't bounce all the way back.

Also for Charlevoix, Sydney Carlson scored 10 points, Karley Pearsall added six rebounds and three blocks while Katie Hyhl had five rebounds and three steals.

For Elk Rapids, Rachel Hintz led all scorers with 12 points.

On Wednesday, the Rayders traveled to St. Ignace where they struggled against the Saints falling 74-24

For Charlevoix, Madeline Boss had seven points, while Katie Hyhl added five points and Sydney Carlson had three assists. Rayders are now 3-5 overall.

For St. Ignace, 8-0 overall, Kelley Wright had 18 points, Sarah Cullip had 16 points and Abbey Ostman added 10 points. The Saints are ranked No. 1 in the Class D Associated Press girls' state basketball poll.

Charlevoix also lost the JV game, 38-16. For the Rayders, Olivia Storm had eight points.

BOYS' VARSITY BASKETBALL

Rayders' record stays perfect with win over EJ

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

Sometimes, you'll take a win however you can get it.

For the Charlevoix High School boys' basketball team, that's exactly what they walked away with in mind Tuesday after defeating Lake Michigan conference opponent East Jordan, 67-52, in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

"As a coach, as a player, you learn that you'll take wins however you can get them," Charlevoix head coach Adam Wood said of the win. "At the same time, we have higher standards and I think the ceiling is higher for this group."

At this point, however, Charlevoix's record speaks for itself, as the Rayders moved to 5-0 overall with a 3-0 stand in the Lake Michigan conference.

East Jordan fell to 2-4, 0-3.

Charlevoix senior Tanner Catt led the way for the Rayders with 19 points and five assists including going 9-for-9 from the free throw line. Junior center Zach Hankins added 13 points and 16 rebounds.

Charlevoix was propelled throughout the night by a 17-of-22 mark from the free throw line, in a old fashioned slugfest early.

Hankins scored the Rayders first eight points before being forced out with a bloody nose. East Jordan then found their footing with an early run.

"I thought (Hankins) did a nice job tonight, he was our big scorer. We wanted to throw it in there early," Wood said. "It was difficult at times, but I like what Zach did especially."

A 13-5 run for Charlevoix ended the first with the Rayders holding a 21-10 lead.

East Jordan upped the tempo in the second quarter; jumping off to a 12-5 run and trimming the Rayders lead to just two, 26-24, with four minutes left in the second.

That was before Charlevoix hit the double-bonus at the free throw line as the Rayders would close the second nailing 8-of-8 from the line, making it a 34-26 game at the half.

"They beat us up on the boards, I think that was the difference," East Jordan coach Darrin Weber said. "Anytime they went on any run we gave up second and third shots."

In the third, Charlevoix quickly moved back to attacking the boards, putting together a 14-4 run to begin the half.

The teams traded baskets following in the third with the Rayders closing out the quarter up 57-41.

East Jordan would open the fourth hitting three 3-pointers to cut deficit to 10 points.

Charlevoix would hold on from there, however, but with nine 3-pointers on his Rayder defense in the game, Wood knows it's an area that needs to be shored up.

"That's something we were harping on the boys throughout the game," Wood said. "I don't think we adjusted well as the game went on. It's something we'll spend a little more time on as we go."

For the Red Devils, Noah Bacchus finished with 16 points and five assists, while Joseph Manville added 12 points and six rebounds.

Charlevoix junior Justin Pearl had 12 points, while senior Charlie Hamilton added seven points.

In the JV game, Charlevoix defeated East Jordan, 75-19. For Charlevoix, Nick Plude had 21 points, while Ryan Joy added 12 points.

Charlevoix 51, Elk Rapids 45

On Friday, Jan. 4 Charlie Hamilton had a game-high 20 points while Zack Hankins added seven points and 11 rebounds as Charlevoix improved to 4-0 overall, 2-0 league 51-45 conference win over Elk Rapids.

"It took both teams to get up to game speed tonight after the long break," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said.

"I was proud of the guys, they were able to grind it out and find a way to win."

The Elks, 3-3, 0-2, took a 12-9 lead at the end of the first quarter before Charlevoix held Elk Rapids to just four points in the second qaurter to take a 31-28 halftime lead.

Charlevoix then outscored the Elks 9-3 down the stretch to collect their fourth win in as many starts.

For Elk Rapids, Adam Trautman scored 15 points and seven rebounds and Cole Walker added 14 points, five rebounds and three blocks.

BOYS' FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

After sluggish start, Rayder freshmen defeat Elk Rapids

Jordan Adkins and Walker Drost combined for 34 points to lead the Charlevoix Rayder boys freshman basketball team in a 42-36 win over conference rival Elk Rapids at home on Friday, Jan. 4.

Adkins scored 20 points and Drost put 14 in the winning effort. Hunter Cox also chipped in four for the Rayders.

Charlevoix fell behind early, and was down 10-7 at the end of the first quarter. But the Rayders clawed back to a slim 22-20 lead going into halftime.

Charlevoix broke it open some in the third quarter putting in 18 points to the Elks' nine.

The Rayders were only able to manage two points in the fourth quarter, but that was enough as the defense was able to limit the Elks to just seven in the final stanza.

Charlevoix coach Joe Soloman said he thought his team came out a bit sluggish in the first half.

"We were getting beaten down the floor quite a bit and it appeared as if the Christmas break had taken a toll on our conditioning," Soloman said. "Late in the second quarter I put Kyle Illendon and Weston Ramsey in the game and they seemed to really give us a lift heading in to halftime and that carried on to a really strong third quarter. "We took an 11-point lead into the fourth and while we didn't score much we were able to limit Elk Rapids' possessions and pull out the victory.

"Jordan Adkins had a terrific game on both ends of the floor, and Walker Drost played nearly every minute of this one and did a nice job of running our offense," Soloman said.

DNR to reduce stocking of Lake Michigan chinook salmon

Medusa Creek to see 2/3 reduction in fish stocked this year

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Over the course of the year, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has decided to reduce Chinook salmon stocking in Lake Michigan by 66.9 percent.

Until now, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana state agencies stocked 3.3 million Chinook salmon fingerlings in Lake Michigan, according to the DNR. Last year in Michigan, the DNR stocked 1,688,500 fingerlings.

Now, the state will stock just 559,000 salmon. Some areas of Lake Michigan will take a harder hit than others, said Dave Clapp, station manager of the Charlevoix Fisheries Research Station. Medusa Creek in Charlevoix will take a 67.3 percent hit while the Grand River near Grand Rapids will receive no Chinook salmon stocking whatsoever, though it is stocked with steelhead and coho salmon. Fairport in the Upper Peninsula will also receive no stocked Chinook salmon.

Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana will take a smaller hit. That's because those states have less natural reproduction than Michigan, said Clapp.

A collapse of the chinook salmon fishery in Lake Huron spurred the decision.

"The decline (in Lake Huron) happened over a couple of years, around 2003, 2004 was the dramatic drop, but none of these things happen over just one year," said Clapp.

The Huron fishery collapsed mainly because of an imbalance of the predator-prey relationship. There were too many salmon for their primary food base — alewives, which can comprise up to 90 percent of a salmon's diet, though Clapp said there's some evidence that invasives such as round gobies are creeping into the predator fish's diet.

Adding to the numbers of fish in Huron was that there appeared to be "really huge amounts of natural reproduction, mostly on the Canadian side of the lake," said Clapp.

By 2010, charter fisheries reported less than 0.2 fish caught per trip on Lake Huron, while charter fisheries reported 1-2 fish caught per trip on Lake Michigan, according to the DNR.

Barry Aspenleiter, a Petoskey resident, has operated the Ruddy Duck Charters, a charter fishing service, out of Petoskey for 29 years. He says he supports the DNR's decision.

"My idea is, I support the DNR and hopefully they know what they're doing. If they don't, I don't know who else who would," said Aspenleiter.

Aspenleiter said he's concerned that what happened in Lake Huron might happen in Lake Michigan.

"I'd hate to see Lake Michigan end up like Lake Huron as far as the salmon program. It went belly up with too many salmon eating the alewives," he said. "The DNR is trying to save the forage base."

Aspenleiter pointed out that the effects of the stocking shortage won't be felt for three to five years — when the salmon stocked over the past few years will have lived out their life cycle.

Throughout 2011 and 2012, the organization hosted public meetings to determine how the stocking should be cut.

"Everybody didn't get exactly what they wanted, but I think they're reasonably happy," said Clapp.

DEFENDING FREEDOM DAILY SINCE 1776

We the People

Since the founding of our nation, the role of newspapers in our democracy has been crystal clear. We have been, and will continue to be, the eyes and ears of the American people. After all, the right of free speech is meaningless if no one knows what's really going on. That's why more than 100 million Americans depend on their hometown newspapers daily and why today's newsrooms are staffed with dedicated, highly trained reporters and experienced editors who bring you the very best journalism found anywhere, in print and online.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
Ordinance No. 758 of 2013
AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND TITLE VII, BUSINESS AND TRADES, CHAPTER 77, LIQUOR LICENSES,
TO ADD SECTION 7.305:
CITY OF CHARLEVOIX REDEVELOPMENT LIQUOR LICENSE PROGRAM

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. Addition of Section 7.305.
Section 7.305 is hereby added to Title VII, Chapter 77 of the Charlevoix City Code and shall read as follows:

7.305. City of Charlevoix Redevelopment Liquor License Program

A. Definitions
As used in this section, the following definitions shall apply:

"Downtown Development Authority" (DDA) means the Authority created by and described in Title I, Article IV (Section 1.271, et seq.) of the City Code.

"Redevelopment Project Area" means land and buildings located within the boundaries of the DDA, which are described in Section 1.276 of the City Code.

"Real property interest" means a legally recognized right in land and buildings on that land and may be established by a deed, lease, land contract, contingent sale, contingent lease, or similar documentation.

B. Application for Redevelopment Liquor License
Applications for City approval of a Redevelopment Liquor License, as authorized by MCL 436.1521a(1)(b), as amended, may be submitted to the City Clerk for real property located within the Redevelopment Project Area. The application fee shall be paid at the time of the filing of the application. The application shall contain or be accompanied by the following:

1. If the applicant is not the owner, the applicant shall include written approval by the owner for the submission of the application.

2. The address of the real property at which the license will be used.

3. Documentation whether the applicant has a real property interest in the real property with which the license will be used.

4. Documentation showing that at least $75,000 has been expended for the rehabilitation or restoration of the building that will house the licensed premises, or which makes a commitment for a capital investment of at least $75,000 which will be expended prior to the issuance of the license.

5. Documentation of attempts to purchase a readily available escrowed or quota on-premise license within the City of Charlevoix, and why such license was not reasonably available.

6. Documentation regarding the type of business with which the license will be used.

7. The seating capacity of business with which the license will be used

8. Additional information or documentation that will show whether the application complies with the standards contained in Section 7.303.A. and Section 7.305.D. of the City Code.

C. Actions of City Clerk, DDA and City Council.
The City Clerk shall determine whether the application is complete. If the application is complete and the application fee has been paid, the application shall be forward to the executive director of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) for a written recommendation by the DDA board regarding whether the application meets the standards of the City Code for the issuance of the Redevelopment Liquor License and the reasons for DDA's recommendation. The DDA shall have 30 days from the submission of the application to its executive director to make its recommendation to the City Council or this requirement of a recommendation from the DDA shall be waived. Upon the expiration of 30 days from submission of the application to the executive director of the DDA or upon receipt by the City Clerk of the DDA's recommendation, whichever occurs first, the application and the DDA's recommendation, if any, shall be submitted to the City Council for consideration and written notice of the time and date on which the application will be considered by the City Council. An application that is incomplete shall neither be forwarded to the DDA nor to the City Council.

D. Standards For Non-preferential Approval
When an application is submitted for City approval of a Redevelopment Liquor License and the State Liquor Control Commission does not request or require that the City approve one application "above all others" or otherwise prioritize an application, the application may be approved, approved with conditions or denied by the City Council. Any conditions shall relate to compliance with the requirements or standards contained in the City Code and which are applicable to the application. In determining whether a license should be approved, the City Council shall consider the following requirements or factors (jointly, called the Standards):

1. If the applicant is not the owner, the owner of the real property with which the license will be used must approve in writing the submission of the application.

2. The applicant must have a real property interest in the real property with which the license will be used.

3. The business with which the license will be used shall be engaged in dining, entertainment or recreation.

4. The business with which the license will be used shall have a seating capacity of at least twenty-five (25) people.

5. At least $75,000 shall have been expended for the rehabilitation or restoration of the building that will house the licensed premises, or which makes a commitment for a capital investment of at least $75,000 or if a commitment has been made to expend at least $75,000 prior to the issuance of the license, the applicant must agree that the fulfillment of this commitment shall be a condition of approval.

6. The applicant shall have attempted to purchase a readily available escrowed or quota on-premise license within the Ciry of Charlevoix and shall establish that a license was not reasonably available.

7. The extent to which the business with which the license will be used will contribute a new or unique choice to the mix of businesses in the DDA district.

8. The extent to which the business with which the license will be used will promote economic growth in a manner consistent with adopted goals, plans or policies applicable to the DDA district, including but not limited to the DDA's Development Plan and all other master plans applicable to the DDA district.

9. Those factors related to a request for issuance of a new liquor license contained in Section 7.303.8. of the Ciry Code.

E. Standards for Preferential Approval
When an application is submitted for a Redevelopment Liquor License and the State Liquor Control Commission requests or requires the City to approve one application "above all others" or otherwise prioritize an application, the following procedure shall apply:

1. The application must be approved or approved with conditions pursuant to Section 7.305.D. of the City Code.

2. The application shall be ranked or prioritized by the City Council in comparison to other pending and approved applications in a manner consistent with the request or requirements of the State Liquor Control Commission.

3. In evaluating the ranking or prioritization of an application, the Council shall consider the extent to which the application and supporting information or documentation exceeds the Standards contained in Section 703.5.D. and the detail and quality of the application and supporting information or documentation. The more detailed and precise the application and the supporting information or documentation and the greater the extent that the Standards contained in Section 705.3.D. are exceeded, then the higher the priority that such an application shall be given.

F. Setting of Application Fee.
The City Council shall adopt by resolution for an application fee for a Redevelopment Liquor License and may modify such fee from time to time.

G. Zoning Compliance.
The issuance of a Redevelopment Liquor License does not alter the requirement that the proposed land use must comply with all applicable zoning regulations.

Section 2. Severability.
If any section, provision or clause of this Ordinance or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect any remaining

Section 3. Effective Date.

A witness to history

Students headed to D.C. for inauguration

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

School-sponsored field trips to Washington D.C. are fairly common among middle and high schools around the country, and Charlevoix Public Schools are no different.

Every year the eighth grade class takes a trip to the nation's capitol, and the itinerary includes the typical things you'd expect from a school-sponsored trip.

But every four years, for the past 18 years, Charlevoix High School government teacher Annemarie Conway takes advantage of another opportunity to take a group back to the nation's capital to witness history when the presidential inauguration takes place.

Conway will be leading an excursion including 40 students, mostly upperclassmen, to Washington, D.C., for a long weekend full of activities leading up to and including the second inauguration of President Barak Obama on Monday, Jan. 21. The group was slated to leave by bus from the high school at 7 p.m. Thursday and will ride overnight for a scheduled arrival in Washington at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

The first two days of their trip will include many of the common destinations for a school trip to the seat of the federal government: Friday will be visits and tours at the Capitol Building, Supreme Court and White House, tours of "Embassy Row," the Phillips Collection in DuPont Circle, and a night-time tour of the monuments. Saturday will include time to explore the Smithsonian museums, and a visit to Georgetown.

It's on Sunday when the trip's itinerary get's even more exciting than the usual school field trip fodder.

The students will get dressed in their finest to attend the H.O.P.E (honoring our president-elect) for Youth Inaugural Ball. Conway said she's arranged for students to attend a ball for the last two or three inaugural trips. She said the Engine and wheelhouse overhaul planned to update Ironton Ferry

Transportation authority hopes all work will be done by summer

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

IRONTON — Some major changes are planned for the Ironton Ferry, hoped to be made while it is out of the water this winter for its five-year inspection.

The Charlevoix County Transportation Authority currently is working to gain approval from the U.S. Coast Guard for the changes, which include rebuilding the ferry's historic wheelhouse and replacing its engine.

The work should be done by spring, said Charlevoix County Commissioner Richard Gillespie, a member of the transportation authority who is highly involved in the project.

"The old engine is inefficient and requires more maintenance than the darn thing is worth," said Frank Hamilton, chairman of the authority board.

Neither of the men said they would divulge more details about the project to the Petoskey News-Review when asked.

"Richie is working with the Coast Guard and with the vendors we're thinking about using," said Hamilton, referring all questions to Gillespie. Gillespie made a comment to the paper in December that he did not want to talk about the project until it is further along and did not return phone calls before press time this week.

Audio recordings from a transportation authority board meeting at the end of December reveal more specifics about plans for the nearly century-old ferry.

All three authority members attended the meeting — Gillespie, Hamilton and Doug Way.

"We've got to get this underway because if it gets in the paper, all hell's going to break loose," Gillespie said on the audio recording provided to the News-Review by Charlevoix County Clerk Cherie Potter Browe. "And again, what's going to end up happening is we'll be fighting with ourselves. It has to be upgraded. We have to do it. We've been told we have to do it."

> "The historical thing is important to me. But we've tore down every other historical thing in the county."

A history of the Ironton Ferry

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

IRONTON — Taking a short cut across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix by ferry from Ironton to Boyne City has been going on since horses, buggies and sheep crossed the water, rather than automobiles.

The current vessel, known officially as The Vessel Charlevoix, was built in 1927, but was preceded by an 18 by 24 foot scow that hauled horses and wagons across the South Arm to and from the iron works in the then-booming Ironton. The scow, built at the end of the 19th century, was dragged along by a single, half-inch cable with the ferryman pulling it along by hand, as well as passengers.

The ferry service still runs more than a century later, carrying vehi-

The Ironton Ferry acquired nation-wide fame in 1936 when the creator of Ripley's Believe It or Not came to Ironton, crossed on the ferry and used it for one of his famous cartoons. Grant doesn't make a financial splash with township leaders

NICK BODETTE
Charlevoix Courier

> "We're not going to spend $94,000 to get $44,000,"
> — Chuck Center, Charlevoix Twp. Supervisor

Charlevoix Township is going back to the drawing board after a recreation project for which a state grant was recently approved, turned out to have a much bigger price tag than expected.

In early December township officials learned the state had awarded the township a $44,300 grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to help pay for playground and other improvements at the township's Shanahan Field.

The grant was one of 19 the state awarded to communities across the state totaling $735,100 from the sales of Recreation Passports, which replaced the resident motor vehicle permit window stickers for state park entrance in 2010.

The work for which the township applied was to help pay for improvements to the Shanahan Field including replacing the aging and non-compliant play structure and playground equipment with universally-accessible pieces, as well as accessible surfacing and walkways and a "splash pad" water fountain in which children can play on hot summer days.

However, when the final cost estimates came in later in December, $95,000 the township was going to have to shell out in matching funds for the grant, didn't make sense, newly elected township supervisor Chuck Center said.

A big part of the cost was the "splash pad" which Center said had been low on the township priority list for improvements to the park.

"We're not going to spend $94,000 to get $44,000," Center said.

Shanahan Field is located at 12491 Waller Road off U.S. 31 next to the wheelway bike path between Charlevoix and Petoskey and public traffic through the park is not necessarily heavy enough to justify the expense of installing and maintaining a splash pad, Center said.

Center said the splash pad had always been a low priority and now, when considering the costs to construct and maintain the feature, its limited season and other factors, it may fall off the list completely.

At its regular monthly meeting Monday, Center said the board voted to not accept the original grant that included the splash pad and instead resubmit a grant that would include the playground improvements, a series of "picnic pods" (concrete areas around the park that have a table and a grill) and improvements to the park's pavilion.

In the meantime, the township is awaiting word on another larger grant for which it applied that would help pay for other improvements at the park — all part of a long-term plan to make significant upgrades to the facility.

Township officials took a big step in the process last year when it completely reconstructed the park's dilapidated baseball field that suffered from poor drainage. Improvements to the parking between the ball field and the soccer fields were also completed last year.

"The most crucial is finishing our ball field," Center said. "It's about 95 percent done but not complete yet."

Items still being worked on to complete the baseball field renovations are permeable pavement for wheel chair accessibility, an electronic scoreboard, litter and recyclable containers, bleachers, field signage package, and security lighting, Center said.

Center said one of the big pushes in the project has been to make the park barrier free.

"The new ballpark is barrier free," Center said. "I don't know of any other facilities that are not. There are no barrier issues as far as I know in the whole Shanahan area."

Survey says?

City officials will use survey to help guide budget decisions

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

As the Charlevoix City Council and other city officials hunkered down Thursday night for the city's annual budget work session, they were armed with a little more information on the wishes of their constituents as they work on the spending plan for the 2013-14 fiscal year.

In July the city council approved a staff request to survey members of the community on what they believe should be among the city's top budget priorities.

The report on the survey, compiled and released in early November, indicated that 500 copies of the survey were mailed to the city registered voters, business owners, property owners, as well as renters. Additionally, approximately 40 copies were hand-delivered to business owners. Out of the total distribution, 176 surveys (or 33 percent) were returned to the city.

It should be noted that the now-controversial community fireplace project in East Park is not mentioned anywhere on the survey — either in questions or in any of the comments from respondents. Coincidentally, the council gave its blessing on city staff's request to conduct the budget survey at the first meeting at which the fireplace was discussed, July 20. It wasn't until shortly after the council approved the fireplace project on Aug. 9 that the rancor over the fireplace project arose. The deadline for returning the survey's was Aug. 31.

However, one issue that has come up on one of the three currently-circulating recall petitions targeting three city council members, does figure prominently in the survey and in the comments — curbside yard waste and rubbish pickup.

The survey asks several questions, and many respondents offer comments about the service — which is paid for by a special millage in the city.

— Responding to the question "Overall are you happy with the brush chippings/grass and leaf pickup services?" more than 90 percent responded "yes."

— Responding to the question, "In an effort to keep the streets cleaner would you be willing to limit the biodegradable material (yard waste) you could put out up to three (3) bags per week?" more than 60 percent responded "yes."

— Responding to the question, "In an effort to keep the streets cleaner would you be willing to limit the brush quantity to approximately the size of one Christmas tree per month?" about 55 percent responded "yes."

The brush and trash pickup also drew the most comments — and they varied widely. Some want the pickups more often, some want them on scheduled days. One person complained the pickups are too frequent, are too early in the day, too noisy and too dusty. Another person complained about the dust from the leaf pickup vacuum writing, "We have to do something to the City truck dust collector on the grass sucker truck. It buries our vehicles every time. This is a very serious problem."

In other areas:

Respondents seemed to look favorably on a suggestion that the city "work with surrounding townships to set up a recreation authority intended to spread out the cost of construction, operation, maintenance, or improvements of public recreation centers, public parks, and other public amenities pertaining to recreation. About 70 percent of respondents said they "agreed" or "strongly agreed" with the idea.

Respondents, for the most part seemed to be OK with the funding levels for most areas of city services on the survey with more than 60 percent (in some cases well more than 60 percent) responding that they wouldn't change funding levels for everything from ambulance service to waste collection.

Answering the question, "I would prefer to see services reduced rather than pay additional taxes," about 40 percent agreed or strongly disagreed and about 35 percent "agreed or strongly disagreed.

Responding to the statement, "I would prefer that the city increases user fees to maintain current level of services," more than 45 percent agreed or strongly agreed while another 30 percent were neutral.

The complete report can be downloaded at the city's website, www.cityofcharlevoix.com or at thee Courier's website, www.charlevoixcourier.com.

Beaver Island super selected

BEAVER ISLAND — The Beaver Island Community Schools Board of education recently selected a Petoskey High School graduate to lead Beaver Island Community School.

Currently with a school system in Detroit, Riley Justis said he is thrilled to "be heading home," to serve as the superintendent/principal on Beaver Island.

At a special school board meeting Jan. 9, Riley was unanimously selected from three candidates interviewed for the post. Pending successful contract negotiations, he is expected to start in mid-June.

Justis grew up in Petoskey and is a Petoskey High School graduate. He played hockey in high school, was a volunteer firefighter with Resort-Bear Creek starting at age 16 until he left for college, and attained his pilot license in Northern Michigan. After obtaining his undergraduate bachelor's degree in education from Central Michigan University, he taught in a rural fly-in K-12 school in Port Graham, Alaska, and was the curriculum specialist/teaching advisor for a K-12 public school district serving nearly 10,000 students on the Kenai Peninsula in Alaska.

For the past year he has been the curriculum and technology administrator at Hope Academy Schools for the Future in Detroit. Hope Academy is a high school focused on innovative programs to raise the achievement level of student populations two or more grade levels behind.

Justis also has direct ties to Beaver Island. His family has owned property on the island "since before I was even born," he said, and is where he vacationed all his life. His mother continues to live in Petoskey and his father, who passed away six years ago, was the attorney for the island townships. Justis and his wife, Jenny, have a 16-month-old daughter, Sophie.

"I am excited to return to northern Michigan and call Beaver Island home," he said.

Justis said he was drawn to the position because of the school's dedication to continuous improvement in student achievement, the innovation in learning and effective integration of technology in the school.

Justis

Speaking for the board, board president Jessica Anderson said they are "thrilled" to be bringing Justis on board.

Besides Justis, the board interviewed two other candidates over a two-day period Jan. 8-9. Also interviewed were Melanie Allen, multi-tier systems of support transition coordinator at Holt Schools; and Greg Paxton, superintendent at Beaverton Schools, Beaverton. A fourth candidate withdrew her name for consideration because of family circumstances prior to the interviews.

"All candidates interviewed are very qualified and would bring a wealth of experience and expertise to our school," Anderson said. "There will be a lot of positive things coming our way with Riley at the helm," she added.

A total of 20 candidates applied for the administrative position, which is being vacated at the end of the school year by Kathleen "Kitty" McNamara who had been superintendent/principal for more than 24 years.

With assistance from Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, which coordinated the search, a brochure for the position was mailed to all 523 school districts in the state, and advertisements were on state and national websites.

Forums were held with school staff and the community to gather input on qualities the community is seeking in their superintendent. Comments ranged from good communication skills to someone who will interface easily with students, parents, and the community.

Charlevoix Area Humane Society plans for new facility

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

BOYNE CITY — Jodie Adams has a vision for the Charlevoix Area Humane Society.

The director of the society hopes that in the next few years it can become a broad-reaching, proactive organization deeply involved in the promotion of the humane treatment, health and well-being of area pets.

Step one in achieving that goal, she said, is well on its way to becoming reality.

Plans have been drawn up for the construction of a large, 8,300-square-foot shelter and boarding facility as well as a 6,000-square-foot pole barn for dog exercise and training. The facility would replace the society's current headquarters in Boyne City, which it leases from Charlevoix County.

"We envision an even more humane society and facility that entices people to come and visit the animals, take classes, learn about their pets and volunteer," said Adams.

Early in 2012, the humane society contracted Animal Arts Architects, a Boulder, Colo., firm, to draw up plans for the facility. It is to be located on a two acre parcel on Lexamar Drive in Boyne City that was donated to the humane society.

The plans are finished and, next, Adams plans to spearhead a capital campaign to raise between $1.2 million and $1.5 million to build the facility. She will work to secure grants, she said, as well as contributions from donors and will hold fundraisers.

The Charlevoix Area Humane Society is a nonprofit organization, not affiliated with any political organization or other humane-society group, and is funded entirely by contributions, fundraisers and service contracts.

Plans for the main building include an adoption center that would house up to 20 dogs and 25 to 30 cats.

A training facility is planned in a separate pole building. Because the majority of animals are surrendered, abandoned or stray, said Adams, due to owners' inability to cope with difficult training issues or behaviors, a training facility will be a helpful asset.

The large indoor area of the training facility could double as a day care for dog owners seeking exercise for their pets while they are at work during the day.

In addition to the adoption center and training area, the facility would include room for a public boarding area. This would be one way the facility could generate revenue for the organization.

Finally, the humane society would sell pet-related items from a small shop on site. Adams estimates up to 12 people could be employed at the new site, more than double the number of current employees.

"By being housed in our own facility we could focus on our goals of education, rehabilitation of animals and initiate a revenue stream from offered services," said Adams.

The new facility offers space for longer-term housing of animals. Currently, as the humane society runs out of room for dogs and cats brought in by animal control, some animals have to be euthanized.

The stray facility will have more room in the updated building, said Adams.

"It will give more animals a chance," she said. "I do think this is an opportunity for this community to support more kind and humane treatment of animals."

In addition to providing a service as a shelter, Adams said she would like to offer more per educational classes through the new facility and more free spay and neuter clinics using the revenue brought in from the boarding operation.

"As a community center for pet owners it will serve the community in many ways and promote the humane treatment of animals throughout our region," she said.

'Sprouting' wisdom

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

One of our former presidents famously stated his dislike of broccoli, but he might have been speaking of many of its near relatives. The mustard family, to which broccoli belongs, provides us with an abundance of often hated, but very healthy part of our diet, as well as hundreds of common weeds.

Kale, turnips and rutabagas are generally thought of as simple, peasant vegetables, but their near relatives, like bok choi, broccoli rabe and romanesco broccoli are the height of food fashion.

The short list of mustard relatives used as food includes all those mentioned above as well as cauliflower, kohlrabi, all the cabbages, and mustard, both as a condiment and as greens. And all those plants are selections of exactly the same common ancestor, most probably a tough perennial named colewort. The variety that can be found in one plant reminds us of the common ancestry of all the breeds of dogs; all derived from one wild dog or wolf.

Among all this welter of different sorts of food, brussels sprouts seem to get the least attention. Most cookbooks suggest they be cooked and served with chestnuts and shallots. Chestnuts are not often part of grocer's produce sections, although Oleson's now has fresh, Michigan-grown examples. There are also cookbook warnings not to serve the sprouts with delicate meats or fish, and the information that a modest quantity of brussels sprouts will serve six diners. I am almost sure that the former president cited above would have felt equally unfriendly toward brussels sprouts.

In a modest effort to assist brussels sprouts growers, almost all of them in California, I offer a suggestion. Next time you see brussels sprouts for sale, buy them. They have occasionally been available at our local farmer's market in late fall. Once trimmed and sliced in half give them a coating of olive oil and some minced garlic (garlic infused oil would work), place them on a cookie sheet, cut side down and roast in an oven until just tender. Olive oil and garlic make almost anything but Jello taste good. Don't serve them with fish. Let me know how you like it. Brussels sprouts are too good to ignore.

The world is full of edible and even delicious plants. Former presidents may be a source of wisdom about foreign policy, but don't count on them to know a lot about vegetables.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Bridge Drop organizer offers thanks

To Editor:

Happy New Year! Thank you to the residents of Charlevoix for their support of the first ever New Year's Bridge Drop. The excitement of the community was what made the Bridge Drop such a success.

I want to applaud the all businesses that participated by offering Bridge Drop special events, discounts and contests.

Special thanks go to Fox Motors for sponsoring and believing in this event from the beginning. I'd also like to thank: The City of Charlevoix for their support, Nicki Lee's Karaoke whose music kept us warm out in the cold. The Charlevoix Veterans who saluted in 2013 with a bang. Ace Hardware, Stafford's Weathervane, and Charlevoix Elks Club.

I would like to recognize Rick Randall for his vision of the Bridge Drop. The numerous hours he volunteered in planning this event are commendable. His positivity for the Bridge Drop and for Charlevoix is incredible.

Again, thank you to all who participated in launching this new event for Charlevoix. The success of this year will create a great foundation for going forward and allow more exciting things for future years.

Sincerely,
Amanda Wilkin

Thanks for support for safe home

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the families impacted by domestic abuse, the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan profoundly thanks those who contributed to our annual Harvest Food and Supply Drive. Imagine having to flee your own home, oftentimes with just the clothes on your back, to avoid further abuse and protect your safety and that of your children. Through your kind and generous donations of non-perishable foods, personal care items and household goods, you have helped make the shelter "home" for survivors from Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties who arrive at the safe home seeking safety and support.

The safe home provides a place of security, meals, counseling and advocacy 24 hours a day, 365 days a year at no cost to survivors. Last year, that translated to providing more than 8,700 meals and 2,701 nights of lodging to 139 women and their children. The Harvest Food and Supply Drive is critical to the Women's Center Safe Home and those we serve, helping offset annual food and supply costs that exceed $25,000.

We are able to provide the crucial services we do because of the generous support received from area schools, businesses, organizations, service and faith-based groups and individual community members.

Please know you have helped make a difference in the lives of others in your community.

Sincerely,
Jamie Winters,
safe home coordinator

Fireplace issue threatens 'sense of community'

Editor:

In the interest of full disclosure, I am and have been opposed to the community fireplace in its current design and location because I believe it would diminish the view of East Park and Round Lake.

But the purpose of this letter is not to voice my opinion about the fireplace per-se, but rather to express my concern that the issue of the fireplace is diminishing the community that I love. The reason I love Charlevoix has little to do with the presence or absence of brick and mortar and everything to do with the sense of small town community that has always existed here. I suspect that this is a feeling that is shared by many who live and vacation in and around this wonderful place. The controversy over the fireplace has seemingly crossed over lines and threatens to undermine that sense of community.

I would hope that going forward, folks continue to engage on this issue, but in a manner that is respectful of others whose opinions may differ and with a willingness to put aside entrenched positions in favor of constructive compromises. We should all keep in mind that at some point, the issue will be resolved one way or the other and our neighbors will still be our neighbors. Hopefully when that day comes, we will still be able to look each other in the eye and care about each other.

Thank you.

Focus on the real problem: Year-round jobs

Editor:

I've lived in Charlevoix most of my life. I work in the downtown area. Lately I have seen our elected officials spend much time and energy on WHERE to put a big, cold candle in the park. The real question should be WHO is going to gather around it? Do you know of anyone who hangs out in East Park in the winter time? (Cue the crickets ... Oh wait, even they only hang out here in the summer). I think the focus of every council, chamber, and DDA meeting should be how to bring young adults and sustainable, year round jobs to Charlevoix. Young adults are a missing generation in Charlevoix. According to Wikipedia, the median age in the city of Petoskey is 39, Boyne City's is 38, and East Jordan's is 33. You know what Charlevoix's is? 48.1. I have seen our off season downtown activity decline steadily over the last 20 years as a result of an aging population. Once thriving, recreational leagues have shut down. Some recent closings of year round businesses should serve as a warning sign for things to come. Young adults are the ones who have kids, go out for cocktails, join local gyms, and general spend more money locally. If we don't start focusing our energy on bringing them back to this area, we may as well change our name to "The Villages North," shut down the schools, and turn the lights off after Oct 15. Maybe then we'll all have a reason to gather around the big candle. Bring a blanket.

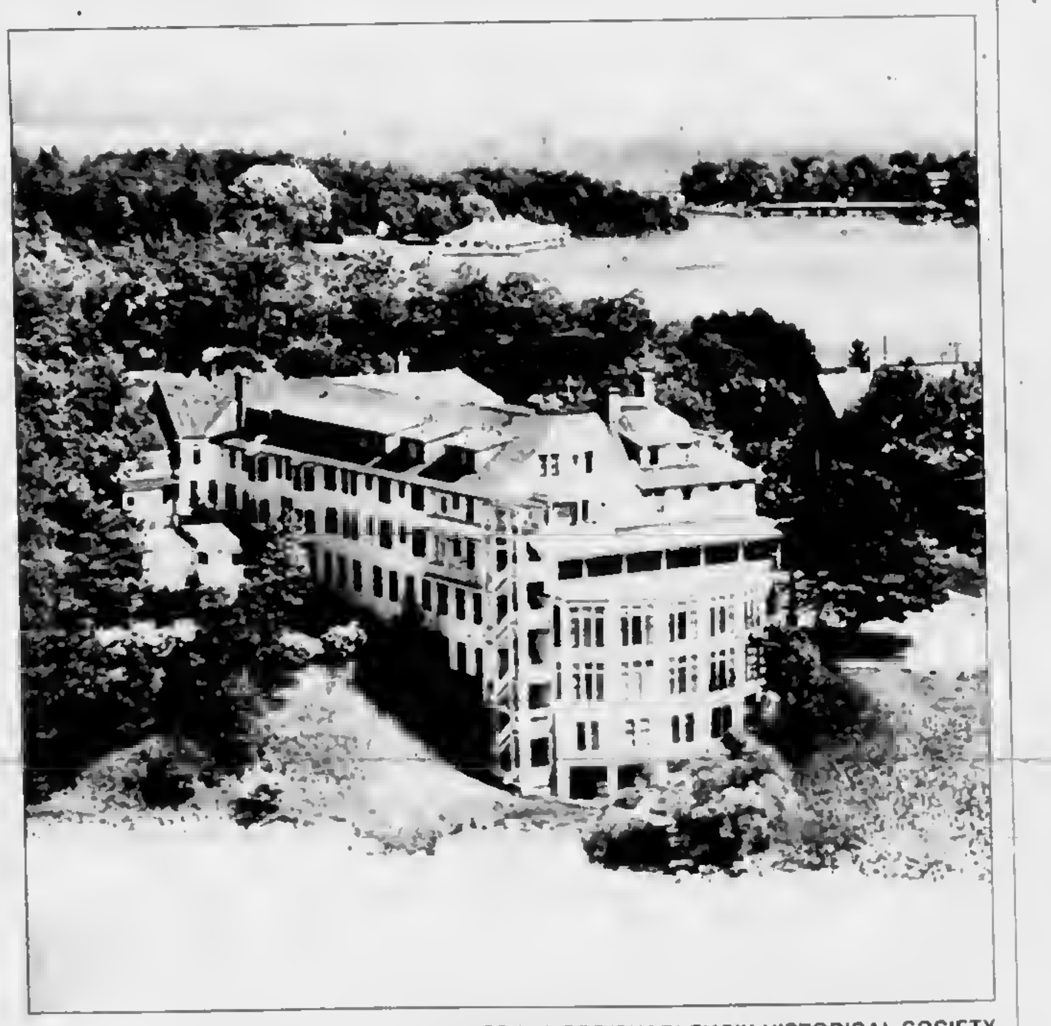
CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

One year after The Inn opened in 1898 (as seen in last week's Looking Back), an announcement appeared that a small hotel to be called "The Pavillion" would be erected at the west end of Dixon Avenue, the only hotel ever constructed in Charlevoix to take advantage of the Lake Michigan panorama. The name was soon changed to the Charlevoix Beach Hotel. It was so successful that by 1915, from an initial 15 rooms the Beach had grown to 216 rooms and seven stories, the tallest structure ever built here and always a classy rival to the Belvedere and Inn. But the playgirl daughter and heir of the original and highly astute owner inherited not a sliver of her mother's managerial savvy. The Beach began its decline in the 1920s and went into receivership in 1939. Future owners tried to make a go of it, but by the 1960s it had deteriorated to such an extent it was abandoned and fell into ruin. During demolition on Oct. 16, 1967 a spark from a workman's torch ignited some debris and up she went in a spectacular all night fire that burned it down to the foundation walls. Thus ended the era of Charlevoix's three great hotels. The La Croft condominium complex now occupies the Beach's site.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's most recent DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades." State of the Community Address set for Jan. 25

Annual gala and award dinner canceled for this year

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will give Charlevoix area residents a chance to get a snapshot of how some of the area's most important organizations are doing when it hosts its third annual State of the Community Address from 7-9 a.m. on Friday, Jan. 29, at Castle Farms.

This year's event will feature five speakers recapping the accomplishments and challenges that the community faced in 2012 and will take a look at plans for 2013.

Area officials scheduled to speak at the event include: Erin Bemis, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce; Boogie Carlson, mayor of Charlevoix; Robert Gendron, superintendent for Charlevoix Public Schools; Chip Hansen, president of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation; and Frank Shaler, maintenance director for Charlevoix County.

"This is a great event for anybody who wants to learn more about our community," said event coordinator Bethany Pearson. "It's exciting to see how much we can accomplish in a single year and how we can work together to make our community a better place."

Chamber officials noted that the organization's annual Gala and Awards Dinner that usually takes place in February at Castle Farms has been canceled this year. Some elements of the gala will be combined with the State of the Community Address event and the annual award winners will be featured Friday, March 8, at Castle Farms during the chamber's third annual Business Expo.

"The Chamber realizes that our members' time is valuable and made this decision in an effort to give members the most efficient programing," chamber officials wrote in a release explaining the change.

Admission for the State of the Community Address is $25 per person or $175 for a table of eight. Organizers are encouraging the general public to attend. Tickets include a catered gourmet breakfast, and a community organizational booklet with more than 40 reports from different community sectors that have an impact in Charlevoix.

Anyone interested in attending the event, should contact Pearson at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce by calling (231) 547-2101, or e-mail pearson@charlevoix.org. Tickets are sold on a first-come, first-served basis. Last year's event was sold out.

Day of good deeds planned in memory of Boyne City woman

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

BOYNE CITY — After Stacy Heath, of Boyne City, passed away unexpectedly in December of a hemorrhagic stroke, the 39-year-old left behind a number of family members and friends who had been touched by the kindness she displayed during her lifetime.

"She gave more of herself than she ever received from others," said Heath's close friend and co-worker at Castle Farms, Anora O'Connor. "It was her mantra. She lived and breathed making other people happy."

That kindness inspired Heath's friends to come up with a unique plan.

On Jan. 23, Heath's 40th birthday, they will perform 40 good deeds in memory of the mother of two.

Randi Hunter, another friend of Heath, came up with the idea.

"Instead of crying all day, I choose to do good deeds," said Hunter.

"Hearing her positive spin on such a recent and tragic loss, we had to jump on board," said O'Connor. She, her husband, Patrick and Stacy's husband, Tom agreed to take the day off of work and, together, the group will celebrate Heath's birthday opening doors, paying for strangers' lunches, volunteering, smiling and telling others they are appreciated.

The friends decided to create a page on Facebook to get the message out to other friends and family so they could join in the effort as well. The page caught on quickly. Within 36 hours it had more than 200 likes and is currently at more than 300.

"Anyone who has ever come into contact with Stacy has been touched by her in some way," remarked O'Connor. "It's a beautiful thing to see so many other people get involved."

Spreading the message of goodwill and seeing it ripple through Northern Michigan, said O'Connor, has had a healing effect after Heath's death.

"If everyone did just one good deed, imagine the impact that would have on our community, families and world," she suggested.

O'Connor encourages anyone interested to participate by doing one, or many, good deeds on Jan. 23, in honor of Heath. To read the Facebook page, go to www.Facebook.com/40Deeds.

OVERHAUL

Gillespie acknowledged there is a risk to moving forward too quickly, though.

"We run the risk of the Coast Guard not approving this," he said.

Despite that, the authority board members discussed how it's time to move forward.

"We're not doing anything illegal here," Way said. "We need to get started and go."

The authority voted to hire Truck and Trailer Specialties, a company in Boyne Falls owned by Butch Cone, to perform all work to install the new boat engine for no more than $88,000, based on a verbal quote.

Cone attended the meeting to answer questions about the installation project.

"The worst case scenario is that we're going to have to hold this up and do it another year," Gillespie said to Cone. "But I don't see this stalling."

"Would you like a draw at this point, Butch?" Gillespie asked. A draw is a withdraw of money to be made available to a contractor for a project.

Not yet, responded Cone.

After Cone left the meeting, Gillespie said he believes the business owner is to be trusted to do the work well and at a good price.

"I've known him 42 years," said Gillespie.

The group of three authority board members also voted to allow Gillespie to negotiate a deal on the construction of the wheelhouse with Ben Whitley, who owns Artform Fabricating and Powder in Charlevoix.

"Then we have to get this (wheelhouse) built and I don't think it's going to be crazy expensive, but I don't think it's going to be cheap either," Gillespie said. He guessed at a price around $50,000.

"I'm going to give this kid 30 days to get this roughed up, because getting it installed, getting it inspected is a lot," he said, referring to having rough drafts of the wheelhouse drawn up within a month.

The engine the authority plans to install is estimated to cost about $30,000 and is fitted with a hydraulic system. It should be more powerful than the current engine and would reduce the need for as much fuel to be used, they said.

"This engine is coming from stock, from McCloskey, which builds crushing things," Gillespie said at the late-December meeting.

McCloskey International is a Canadian company with products distributed at dealerships in 35 countries. The nearest McCloskey dealer is AIS Construction Equipment in Lansing. McCloskey makes and sells large, hydraulic-powered construction equipment such as crushers, stackers and screeners.

The historic value of the ferry is another issue the authority discussed during its Dec. 28 meeting.

"I contacted the man about the historic thing and he never responded," said Gillespie. "So, I did my due diligence as far as I'm concerned."

Ferry Manager Bob Pawlus gave Gillespie the phone number of the Michigan State Historic Preservation Office to check on any necessary protocol for working on historic structures, such as the Ironton Ferry.

"They were trying to shut the Badger down because of the historic aspect of it," said Pawlus, of the office that works to ensure the protection of historic structures in the state.

"The historical thing is important to me," said Gillespie. "But we've tore down every other historical thing in the county. So..."

"We have to modernize," responded Pawlus. "We can't jeopardize safety, efficiency."

He said with the new engine, the ferry will use much less fuel and be more environmentally sound.

"It's sootless, period. There's no smoke, no nothing," added Gillespie.

The authority members agreed that donating the existing wheelhouse to the Antique Flywheelers Club in Boyne Falls was a good idea.

"That would be a good home and a good fit," Hamilton said.

The authority will meet again "within the next two weeks," said Hamilton, but he doesn't yet know when. The board meets irregularly because of the fluctuating nature of the issues they address, he said.

HISTORY

The precursor to the current Ironton Ferry, Eveline (pictured here) ran from the last part of the 19th century for several decades before it was replaced by the ferry that still runs across the south arm today.

FILE/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

The Ironton Ferry (also known as the Vessel Charlevoix) carries a vehicle and its passengers across the Ironton Narrows on its first day of operation for the 2011 season.

cles, cyclists and walkers 600 feet across the Ironton Narrows, saving them a 20-mile trip by road around the lake. And it's more than just useful.

"It's an integral part of Charlevoix County's history and Charlevoix's history," said David Miles, museum co-director for the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Photos of the ferry dating back to its earliest days are on display at the Harsha House Museum in Charlevoix and the museum houses a wealth of historical information about the vessel.

While pulling the ferry along by hand worked for a while, in 1927, the wooden ferry was discarded and replaced with the present steel vessel. The new, $12,000 ferry was brought over the Great Lakes by tug boat through stormy weather to Ironton from Ferrysburg, where it was built.

The Ironton Ferry acquired nation-wide fame in 1936 when the creator of Ripley's Believe it or Not came to town, crossed on the ferry and used it for one of his famous cartoons. The legend read: "Sam Alexander, ferry boat operator, has traveled 15,000 miles and was never farther than 1,000 feet from his home!"

From 1900 until his death in 1948, Alexander served as ferryman and skipper for the vessel.

One year after Alexander's death, Charlevoix County took over the operation from Eveline Township and for the first time in 69 years, a fee was charged for passage.

In a news clip from 1974 on file at Harsha House Museum, more changes to the boat were reported. "The rising waters of Lake Charlevoix have resulted in the expensive task of rebuilding the ramps and modifying the ferry for electronic controls for gates and ramps, at a cost of around $100,000," reads the article.

Later, in 1984, the ferry service became its own entity and the responsibility of the newly formed Charlevoix County Transportation Authority, which remains in charge of its operation today.

In 2001, newspapers reported that low water levels prompted the authority to delay opening the ferry as entry ramps to the ferry were reconstructed and new hydraulic lifts to bring cars from the road to the boat were installed.

Now, in 2013, major changes are again proposed to the ferry, including a new engine and wheelhouse.

The current diesel engine has two 325-gallon tanks that are filled every two weeks when the ferry is running. It goes 3.5 miles per hour and gets 1.4 miles per gallon, transporting more than 50,000 cars a year.

While it is a slow ride, strides have been made since the ferry's early days.

Captain Sam Alexander's son Ross Alexander recounts memories of the ferry during the early 20th century in documents housed at Harsha House.

He recalled one time when the Bradshaw family of East Jordan drove onto the ferry. The car broke through the log chain barrier, rolled off of the ferry and sank.

The husband managed to jump out of the car before it hit the water, but his wife, her father and their two small children were still in the car. As they came up, one at a time, Alexander pulled them in with a ring buoy. Leaning over the side, he saw the wife still in the water on the bottom. Reaching into the water with a long pike pole, he hooked her coat and thus pulled her to the surface and safety.

TRIP

last time students attended the Michigan Ball, but this year's youth-centered event should be particularly fun for the students.

"It's all about engaging kids in politics," Conway said. In addition to the typical dancing and heavy hors d'oeuvres, the event will include a number of celebrity appearances, bands and an interactive graffiti board.

An unexpected late addition to the itenerary truly will give the students some up-close-and-personal opportunities to "engage" with their legislators. Conway said on Wednesday she got word that the group received an invitation to a bipartisan open house that all of the Michigan legislators will host at the Rayburn Building on Sunday, prior to the ball.

Conway said she assigned the students the task of writing their own state of the union address that focuses on the current budget woes in Washington and with that in mind, she's encouraging the students to share their opinions with their legislators when they meet them.

And when the open house and ball are over, since they will already be dressed up, the students will be off to the Kennedy Center for a performance of "Sheer Madness," a long-running "whodunit" comedy that lets the audience solve the crime.

On Monday, the students will arise bright and early to catch the train at 6 a.m. to head into the city for the inauguration events, including the parade, swearing-in and address.

Conway said she expects this inauguration to be more subdued than the president's first one four years ago. She said while the event might not be quite as exciting, it might be more enjoyable for the students and chaperones.

"Last time there were more than 1 million people there and it was pretty hectic to get around," she said.

She said this time she expects the atmosphere to be more relaxed.

"The whole trip is a great experience and the kids are usually just wowed and overwhelmed by all they see and do. We squeeze a lot into a short time."

The group is slated to return to Charlevoix around noon on Tuesday.

Conway offered her thanks to everyone in the community who helped with the trip.

"I'm always excited to do this — to engage our kids this way. It's amazing to see the transfer of power and that our constitution is still alive and well."

Northmen hold off late Rayder comeback

Second half struggles key in team's first two losses of the season

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

It's an old adage, but often times your best offense is a strong defense.

The Petoskey High School boys' basketball team can relate.

After struggling to get things going offensively in the first half, the Northmen defense picked up the pressure and eventually got the offense rolling as they rolled to a 53-36 non-league win over Charlevoix Tuesday at the Petoskey High School gym.

Trailing 21-20 at halftime, the Northmen outscored the Rayders 27-8 in the third quarter en route to collecting their 48th consecutive home win on White Ribbon Campaign Night, a game which raised awareness of violence against women and girls.

Senior forward Erik Davenport finished with a game-high 18 points, while Sam Baumgartner added 17 points and three assists and Quinn Ameel had eight points and four assists as the Northmen improve to 8-0 on the season.

"Give Charlevoix a lot of credit," Petoskey coach Dennis Starkey said. "They took things away from us offensively in the first half and their size inside bothered us. They had a lot of offensive rebounds and putbacks and had easy scores inside.

"Defensively they had a good game plan and made it hard for our main guys to get good looks in the first half."

It would be about midway through the third quarter, however, when Petoskey took the game over.

The Northmen regained the lead early in the second half as Baumgartner hit a free throw and Davenport finished a fine inside dish from Ameel to make in 23-21 Petoskey.

After Charlevoix's Sawyer Russell's dribble drive to cut a Rayder deficit to 29-27, the Northmen went on a 16-0 late third quarter run to put them up 47-29.

The run started behind the defensive effort of Ameel, who then hit two shots before a Davenport triple gave the Northmen a 36-27 advantage.

Following a Rayder turnover, Petoskey increased their advantage as Baumgartner finished a fast break off a Davenport steal, Louis Lamberti connected on a 3-pointer and Baumgartner added a steal, lay up and converted a 3-point play.

Junior forward Joe LeBlanc then put the Northmen up by 20 points, 47-27, with just 41 seconds to play in the third as an Ameel feed through traffic led to a lay up.

Petoskey was firmly in command, 47-29, entering the fourth quarter.

"Our intensity level was a lot better in the third quarter," Starkey said. "It created some runouts and we just picked it up defensively. Our half-court offense becomes a lot easier to run when we mix in transition scores like we did."

Davenport scored nine points in the decisive third quarter, while Baumgartner added seven

Cheif's buzzer-beater bests Rayders

CHEBOYGAN — Caitlin NcNeil's baseline jumper at the buzzer to end regulation helped Cheboygan to a 54-52 win over Charlevoix in a non-league contest Monday.

The Rayders held a three-point lead, 18-15, to end the first quarter of play before Cheboygan would close the gap in the second quarter and end the half at 29-29.

Charlevoix, 3-7, would regain the lead during the third quarter, 37-36.

The teams traded the lead in the fourth quarter, until McNeil's driving lay-in at the end of regualtion.

For Cheboygan, Holly Socolovitch had a game high 24 points, while McNeil scored 11.

On Saturday, Jan. 12, Traverse City St. Francis improved to 8-1 overall, 5-0 league as they topped Charlevoix, 72-34, in a Lake Michigan Conference contest in Traverse City.

Foley named News-Review sports editor

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Foley

Steve Foley, longtime sportswriter for the Petoskey News-Review, has recently been named sports editor.

Foley, 35, has been with the News-Review as a sportswriter for nearly 12 years. He started working for the paper in August of 2001 after graduating from Northern Michigan University with a degree in public relations and minor in broadcasting. While there, he wrote for the student newspaper, North Wind, and after graduation, Foley wrote for a short time for the Marquette Mining Journal and the Cheboygan Daily Tribune.

Foley has been trying out the position of sports editor at the News-Review for the past three months.

"I've been the sports editor on an interim basis, getting my feet wet and trying to maintain the quality that our sports department has always produced on a daily basis," said Foley.

He says his two prior editors, Jerry Roseveat and Andy Sneddon, had a significant impact on him as a writer.

"Both Andy and Jerry have made me into who I am today. They taught me about the industry and area and the importance of sports to our local community," said Foley.

Producing and expanding the News-Review's online sports offerings is one of Foley's goals as sports editor, as well as continuing to produce daily high school and local sports coverage.

Foley is married to Jennifer Foley, who is a sales representative for the Petoskey News-Review. They live in Petoskey.

"I'm excited and honored to be given the opportunity to follow in the footsteps of two of Northern Michigan's finest sports editors," said Foley. "I'm looking forward to the various challenges and opportunities that the position will present."

"Steve (Foley) is an incredibly hard working and talented journalist. He is well respected among the staff and community, and is the perfect person to head up our sports section," said News-Review Executive Editor Jeremy McBain." I look forward to continuing to work with him."

BOYS JV BASKETBALL

Rayders romp past Gladiators, fall just short to Northmen

After soundly defeating their two opponents last week, the Charlevoix Rayder boys junior varsity basketball team came up just short in a late comeback bid against Petoskey on Tuesday.

The Rayders, who defeated East Jordan 75-19 on Tuesday, Jan. 8, continued on their roll when hosted conference rival Traverse City St. Francis on Thursday, Jan. 10 defeating the Gladiators, 71-48.

Nick Plude and Ryan Joy lead the Rayders with 15 points each, while Austin Putman had 12, and Will Telgenhof added 10.

After falling behind 22-15 by the end of the first quarter, the Rayders dialed up the "D" in the second quarter, holding the Gladiators to a 14-4 margin in the quarter and taking a 29-26 lead into halftime. Charlevoix widened the gap in the third quarter outscoring St. Francis 29-14. The Rayders widened the gap a bit more in the fourth, outscoring the Gladiators 13-8.

"There was a tremendous amount of energy in the gym that night in anticipation of this contest," Rayder JV coach Bryan Hawkins said. "It's always been a great rivalry, and (that night) was no different

He said the girls JV team set the tone for the evening in winning their game

"The start of the game was fast-paced with both teams pressing and attacking in transition. We made some defensive adjustments in the second quarter,' as the game settled down into more of a grind-it-out style."

Hawkins pointed to consecutive three-point baskets by Noah Jeakle and Ryan Joy as key sparks for the Rayders' rally.

Hawkins said, "The unsung hero of the night was Will Telgenhof who locked down the Gladiator's point guard, and scored 8 of his 10 points in the first half."

He also pointed to the play of Austin Putman as a key to the team's breakout in the third quarter. "Jeakle also nailed a 3-ball in a pivotal sequence that really swung the momentum in our favor. Point guard Ryan Joy punished the Glads from the free throw line in the second half, going 6-7 in the third quarter, and 7-9 overall in the half."

The Rayders ran into a tougher test when they traveled to Petoskey Tuesday for a non-conference tilt against the Northmen. Battling back from a first 17-point first-half deficit, the Rayders mounted a fourth quarter comeback bid that fell just short at 60-55.

Charlevoix found themselves trailing early, allowing Petoskey to take a 13-7 lead at the end of the first quarter. The deficit grew in the second quarter as the Northmen outscored the Rayders 22-13. Charlevoix managed to keep the spread from getting much worse in the third as the Northmen outscored them 13-11.

Trailing 50-31 at the start of the fourth, the Rayder roared back outscoring Petoskey 24-10 in the final stanza. But it wasn't quite enough.

Nick Plude led Charlevoix with 13 points while Nate Moon added 11.

"Our starting five struggled from the outset, and the Northmen frustrated us with their full court pressure. Things weren't much better at the defensive end and we didn't execute our defensive fundamentals," Hawkins said.

Hawkins credited the teams bench players who "soaked up a lot of minutes and kept us in the game."

He pointed to key rebounds and defense by Adam Michaud and his twin brother Andrew.

"Though down 19 to start the fourth quarter, the boys fought, scratched, and clawed their way back to cut the lead down to 3 with under 20 seconds remaining. The Northmen missed the front-end of a 1-and-1, but the rebound went right through the hands of one of our players, into their possession. They hit the ensuing foul shots to ice the win. Though we were very disappointed about the course of the game, it was a learning experience and an opportunity for growth," Hawkins said.

The Rayder JV squad, which is now 5-2 overall and 4-0 in the conference, was set to play at Harbor Springs on Thursday, Jan. 17.

points as the Northmen defense limited the Rayders on the other end.

"At halftime, we challenged guys to make plays," Starkey said. "That had to come from within and we had some good leadership. It was a good learning experience, they stuck with it and got it done.

"I give Charlevoix credit," Starkey added. "They're a good basketball team and they'll beat some teams this year."

Also for Petoskey, LeBlanc finished with four points and four rebounds, while Lamberti added five rebounds. The Northmen shot 22-of-46 (48 percent) from the floor, but were just 3-of-12 from the 3-point line.

"We just didn't seem to be in sync early," Starkey said. "We missed some shots, didn't screen well and didn't rebound, but I think our toughness really starts with Quinn. He was the guy that defensively got us going and he allowed Erik and Sam to get some scores."

For Charelvoix, 5-2, Zach Hankins, a 6-foot-8 center, finished with eight points — all of which came in the opening half — while Sawyer Russell had a team-high 10 points and Charlie Hamilton added seven.

"The million dollar question for us is trying to figure out what's happening after halftime," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "We've had two games now where we've had good first halves, then we come out of the locker room and fall off. I credit Petoskey though, they put a lot of pressure on us and threw some different looks at us.

"I was extremely happy with where we were offensively and defensively at halftime," Wood added. "The second half was just disappointing for us."

Petoskey now shifts its focus to a Friday, Jan. 18, Big North Conference contest against Alpena. The Wildcats are 5-2 overall, 2-2 league, while Petoskey, 3-0 league, looks to remain perfect in the Big North.

"Alpena is another team with good size, they're 6-8, 6-5 and 6-4," Starkey said. "We will be challenged by their size and experience. We'll have to play better than we did here.

"It's good to have a couple of homes games here," Starkey added. "This was a good momentum builder because we have a bunch of conference games now in a row."

Petoskey also won the JV game, 60-55, to improve to 5-3 on the season.

For Petoskey, Jason Bur had 17 points, while Parker Monley added 15 points and Ross Hooley added eight. For Charlevoix, Nick Plude finished with 13 points, while Nate Moon added 11 and Ryan Joy had nine.

In the freshman game, Petoskey also defeated Charelvoix, 58-21.

For Petoskey, Brendan Smith had 16 points, while Peter Crittenden added 12 points and Brandon Carson had nine. Phillip Schaub, Nathaniel Reed and Parker Goodrich were all credited with strong play.

For Charlevoix, Walker Drost had seven points.

On Saturday, Jan. 12, Kody Kleinrichert finished with a game-high 18 points and nine rebounds as Traverse City St. Francis handed Charlevoix its first loss of the season Saturday in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

Also for the Gladiators, 9-0 overall, 5-0 league, Byron Bullough added 13 points and five steals, while Damon Sheehy-Guiseppi had 10 points and seven steals.

Trailing 9-8 after the first quarter, St. Francis went up 25-20 at halftime and stretched their margin to 39-31 at the end of the third quarter.

For Charlevoix, 5-1, 3-1, Zach Hankins had a team-high 15 points, while Tanner Catt added 11 points and eight assists and Sawyer Russell finished with 10 points and six rebounds.

2012 was warm in the North

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Alpena, Houghton Lake, Sault Ste. Marie and Traverse City were all wiping their brows throughout 2012.

The cities, all official monitoring sites for the National Weather Service's Gaylord station, each recorded warmest years ever for 2012.

"The data speaks for itself," said meteorologist Andy Sullivan.

The station keeps records that stretch back more than a century: Sault Ste. Marie's records started in the late 1800s while Alpena and Houghton Lake's records begin in the early 1900s

"(2012) was one of those anomalous years that we seemed to be in," said Sullivan. "In Europe, they were experiencing record colds. The normal weather patterns were kind of displaced."

But, Sullivan said, chances are 2013 will be nowhere as warm as 2012.

"The earth has a way of equaling out in the long run," said Sullivan. "It's not any pattern shift at this point, but we're expecting it to end up equalizing out in the long run."

Jeff Andreson is the climatologist for the state of Michigan and a professor in the department of geography at Michigan State University.

"Over all, I think that is something noteworthy," said Andreson. "2012 was a year of many extremes any way that we look at it."

Andreson ticked off the events that made 2012 unusual: a very mild winter — the fourth mildest on record for Michigan.

"We had an unprecedented heat wave during the month of March," he said. "Across the state, literally thousands of records were broken."

March was the warmest on record in Michigan, and it was the first time researchers observed 90-degree temperatures in more than 100 years of record-keeping.

"I've never seen that in my professional career," said Andreson.

The warm temperatures crashed, and led to the loss of much of the state's fruit crop, which then also took a beating from a drought. Northwestern Michigan was on the northern and eastern periphery of the drought, said Andreson.

Then, temperatures continued to be warm.

"The state as a whole was the third warmest on record, in 118 years," said Andreson.

And while the warm trends are consistent with long-term weather trends, there were more than normal high-impact events such as the heat wave in March. The heat wave, said Andreson, is one of those events that could be linked to climate change.

"I think it's difficult to say they (high impact events and long-term warming) are mutually independent," said Andreson. "The March heat wave, for example, was a weather event. It was an unusual jet stream pattern that led to the event, but the jet stream and the behavior of it over a long period time is also part of climate change."

The Great Lakes region itself has warmed by about two degrees since the early 1980s, he said.

"There's no question Michigan is getting warmer. Most of the world is getting warmer," said Andreson. "While (the March heat wave) may have only been a small piece, we can't separate the so-called 'weather extremes' with longer-term climate. Maybe 10 to 15 years ago, we would have probably just basically written that off as yes, that is a weather extreme. But I don't think that's possible anymore."

The heart of a caribou hunter

Cardiac patient finds rehab motivation in arctic hunt

ANNE KELLY
Courier staff writer

No doubt about it: Planning a trip to hunt mountain caribou in the Northwest Territories, near the Arctic Circle, is an ambitious undertaking. Couple that with a cardiac emergency a few months prior to the scheduled departure for the trip, and the prospect becomes daunting.

But if your passion is big game hunting and if you're Charlevoix's Roger Rozema, then it all becomes possible and you end up pushing the "confirm reservation" button for the trip scheduled before the medical emergency. In July and August, Rozema underwent cardiac angioplasty procedures for two blocked coronary arteries following an angina attack. During the procedure a stent was inserted into one of the arteries, a 90 percent blocked blood vessel. A balloon angioplasty relieved the other blocked artery. Two months later in September, Rozema completed his Mackenzie Mountain excursion successfully, bagging his caribou. The accomplishment is a tribute to his personal dedication and perseverance, the encouragement of his wife, Jackie, and the support and guidance of the medical community assigned to his case.

> "We had never had a patient with such an ambitious goal."
> — Tina Foltz, Charlevoix Area Hospital coordinator of cardiac rehabilitation

Rozema, at 71, is a retired Charlevoix businessman who has hunted all his life. He has traveled extensively to many interesting places and, as a member of the Safari Club International, has joined numerous hunting excursions in search of unusual game. His trips have included two safaris to the continent of Africa and Alaska and most Canadian provinces. His most recent excursion prior to the Northwest Territories was to Argentina in South America.

Rozema knew, when considering this venture, that there would be risks involved for someone in his condition. It would be a physically demanding hunt in the Mackenzie Mountains, a very remote and rugged area of pristine wilderness and breathtaking scenery bordering the Northwest Territories and the Yukon. He would be required to navigate challenging mountainous terrain.

After the procedure and lying in bed in the hospital, he said he came to a full realization of what had happened to him. It was a sobering experience for a person who had always been so

Funding for recreational trail scaled back

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

The second of three phases of a proposed recreational pathway from Charlevoix to Boyne City must be shortened or altered.

The changes are necessitated by less funding than was originally expected from the state through a federal stimulus grant, Ross Maxwell, county parks and recreation director, reported to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Wednesday.

The planned trail, in its entirety, would stretch from Boyne City to Charlevoix and be accessible to bicycles, pedestrians and those on roller blades, skateboards or in wheelchairs.

The first 3.2 miles of the path, running east from Boyne City, is fully funded and construction is planned for this year.

The second phase of the trail was supposed to stretch six miles from U.S. 31 to the old Camp Sea-Gull, a couple miles west of Horton Bay, and was estimated to cost about $3 million.

"We're going to have to scale it back, probably way back," said Maxwell.

The plan now is to work on building a second phase of the trail that would be between 1.5 and 3 miles long. Shortening each phase would mean more sections would have to be built and the project would likely take longer to complete.

The reduction in funding came after the federal Transportation Enhancement Act Grant, administered by the Michigan Department of Transportation, was downsized and is now the Transportation Alternatives Program.

The original grant from the state was going to bring $2.2 million to the project. The remainder of the trail was to be funded by grants and contributions from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund, local townships, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and $100,000 in other locally raised matching funds.

That $2.2 million grant will now likely be closer to $400,000 to $500,000, said Maxwell.

That shrinks the total budget for phase two of the project from $3 million to about $1.[illegible] million.

"We will need to apply for new or resubmit scaled back grants for phase two of the non-motorized trail," Maxwell added.

The county parks committee will work to plan a new route for the second phase of the pathway in the coming months with the reduced availability of funds in mind.

Plane misses runway Friday, couple not hurt

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

No one was injured in an accident involving an airplane that missed the runway while landing at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport late Friday afternoon.

Airport manager Scott Woody said the incident happened at about 4:30 p.m. as a Piper Navajo twin-engine, propeller-driven airplane occupied by a couple from Lansing attempted to land headed east on the airport's main runway.

Woody said the pilot missed the runway and landed on what he described as "median between the runway and the taxiway."

He said the airplane sustained damage to its nose landing gear and its engines from the propellers striking the ground.

Woody, who did not identify the occupants of the aircraft, said the airport remained closed for a short time following the accident. He said weather conditions at the time were intermittent snow white-outs, but said the runway had just been plowed before the accident took place.

Woody said Island Airways was instrumental in removing the aircraft from the field and into a hangar.

"Lucky for the owner they are an FAA-approved repair station," he said.

He said the National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration have been contacted and will investigate the incident.

JOLT team finds meth lab in Wilson Township

The Charlevoix Sheriff's Joint Operational Law Enforcement Team (JOLT) conducted a search warrant on a meth lab on Monday, finding — according to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office release — all the components were active.

Warrants are being sought for individuals involved police said.

Michigan State Police meth lab response team and the Boyne City Police Department assisted at the scene.

Undersheriff Chuck Vondra, the sheriff department's leading drug enforcement officer, was not available for comment on Wednesday Chief Jeff Gaither declined comment, noting that Boyne City assisted with a single vehicle unit at the raid.

The bust follows another search warrant being executed at a Charlevoix Township residence on Jan. 3-4, resulting in five arrests for delivery of heroin. More than 15 grams of heroin and cash were seized. The Charlevoix Sheriff's JOLT team (officers from Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and Charlevoix City Police Department) conducted the investigation.

Little Traverse Conservancy celebrates near-record year

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

HARBOR SPRINGS — The Little Traverse Conservancy has something to celebrate in the new year: it has set a near-record year in land conservation.

Over the course of 2012, the conservancy has protected more than 5,200 acres of land, according to a press release from the conservancy. Included in that land is 9.3 miles of shoreline, both inland and on the Great Lakes.

But not all land it helped protect is land that it will own. Some of it is land now owned by the state, federal and local governments. The conservancy not only works to protect land, it also works as an advisor to entities hoping to protect land, said Tom Bailey, executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy.

"We offer ourselves as free consultants to local units of government," he said.

Often, those consultations will result in the acquisition of land for parks, recreation areas and conservation areas, said Bailey.

In fact, the bulk of the conservancy's protected land this year came from one project. The conservancy worked with the United States Forest Service to acquire more than 3,000 acres of land, including two miles of frontage on Lake Superior and an inland lake, in the Upper Peninsula.

The federal government will own the land, but the land will be public — people can stroll the beach of Lake Superior. This is a good thing, said Bailey, because the land bumps up against the Crisp Point Lighthouse.

The bulk of the property — except a fringe of forest protecting the shoreline — will become a sustainably-harvested tract of land.

"Most of the property will become a working forest and contribute to the economy," said Bailey.

And though the economy is tough, land conservancies are one sector of nonprofits that haven't taken such a hit. Nonprofits that provide social services are mainly taking it on the nose: donations to the organizations are down, and the numbers of those who need their services have increased.

"We have been fortunate enough to have a couple of foundations and a number of individual donors who have not suffered as much from the bad economy," said Bailey.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY LAND PROTECTION HIGHLIGHTS

Even with big-ticket items that the Little Traverse Conservancy helps governmental organizations acquire, the conservancy added to its own nature preserves and acquired others in 2012.

— The conservancy assisted Eveline Township with acquiring a parcel that greatly improved future parking and access to Lake Charlevoix near the village of Ironton.

— Also in Eveline Township, a 22-acre purchase was made possible in large part with donations from 14 neighbors. The property will be known as the Gatt Family Nature Preserve.

— A 78-acre addition to the Undine Nature Preserve along the Charlevoix-Boyne City Road was donated to the conservancy.

— On Beaver Island, a 173-acre parcel that had previously been protected with a conservation easement by the landowner was donated by the Scully family as an addition to the Barney's Lake Nature Preserve. The new preserve includes more than half a mile of Lake Michigan frontage.

— Al Haske donated 10 acres of land to the conservancy to help improve the Hill Nature Preserve just outside of Boyne City.

— A 205-acre property in Wilson Township was purchased by the conservancy with gifts from two local family foundations. The pre-

Two injured in M-66 crash

Two men suffered injuries in a Saturday, Jan. 19, crash involving a Charlevoix County Road Commission plow truck on M-66.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's office news release, the crash occurred at 1:25 p.m. when 28-year-old Charlevoix resident Scott Harmon lost control of his vehicle, while southbound on M-66, crossed the centerline, and struck a northbound road commission plow truck. Harmon had to be extracted from his heavily-damaged vehicle and was taken to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey by East Jordan EMS to receive treatment for his numerous injuries.

The driver of the plow truck, John Lashmit, 46, of Charlevoix, was also taken to the hospital to receive treatment for a broken hand.

Both drivers were wearing their seat belts at the time of the accident, authorities said.

Personnel from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, along with East Jordan Fire/EMS and Charlevoix EMS responded to the scene.

Township raising water rates

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix Township water customers will soon see an increase in their water bills after the township board voted at its regular meeting earlier this month to increase rates for the township's water system.

In a letter to the township's water customers, township supervisor Chuck Center explained the reasons for the rate increase include:

Two new wells and a pump house on the north side have been completed at a cost in excess of $500,000 and depleted the water department funds.

"The good news is we will have better water quality and water supply for many years," Center wrote. "The system also includes updated electrical and control panels which reduced operational cost."

Center noted that the township also needs to begin replacing its water meters.

"Current meters in some cases are 40 years old and repair parts are not available. New meters are more accurate and transmit a radio signal and can be read with a reciever," he wrote. Center added that the cost of a new meter is $300 each and the meters will be phased in over time.

"Our other area of concern is infrastructure repairs. In some areas of the township, the water lines are 40 years old with lines that are tested to last 50 years. That does not mean all lines 50 years old will have to be replaced, however, we need to have funds available for anticipated repairs and replacement," Center wrote.

Ceter said its been about 12 years since the last water rate increase for the township.

The new rates will take effect April 1.

New rates are as follows:

Base rate $10 (The old rate was $7 per month and included 2,000 gallons)

Usage: $1.50 per 1,000 gallons for 0 thru 50,000 gallons

Usage: $3 per 1,000 gallons for more than 50,000 gallons

(The new base rated does not include any water usage. Which means for the basic service fee and 2,000 gallons of usage previously included in the base rate, it will now cost customers, $13)

Non-township residents will be charged one and one half times township rates.

Students show off their iPad prowess

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix Middle School students had a tall order at Monday's regular Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education meeting.

They created a presentation to show the school board members how they have been using their iPads since earlier this school year. In kind, the students created the presentation using their iPads.

The students used their favorite apps to create each section of the video. Eric Smith demonstrated iMovie, which is a program that allows students to edit video.

"You can use it for lessons, or make a video or slideshow," said Eric. "You can add voice and use sound effects."

Some students use the iPad to record their teacher's lessons, which they can watch at home if they don't understand something, said Travis Garrett, the middle school principal.

Another app allows students to take a photo, draw on it, and record while you're doing both, said Emily Loper.

Yet another app is a digital replacement for Flashcards. Students can type a term, then define the term, swipe the screen and test themselves on the definition.

"It's like real flash cards, but on an iPad," said Emily Hinkley.

After the sixth graders' presentation, the Charlevoix Education Association recognized firefighter Joe Schwartzfisher in his dedication to educating Charlevoix students about fire prevention safety.

"He puts a lot of effort into changing things up," said first grade teacher Nicole Sterrett.

Schwartzfisher said he has been doing the education program since 1993, and now sees some of the students that went through the early years of the program come through as adults.

Finally, the board approved two overnight trips: the junior and senior Spanish club students to New York City, and the honors physics students to Chicago. Both trips will take place in 2013.

Columnist cries foul over onion legends

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Flu: a noun and also a viral infectious disease that may leave you feeling feverish, very achy joints and either coughing up a lung or wondering if you may flush away an intestine. I am writing and submitting my article before its deadline as I am in fear of being brought down by this bug when my copy is due. My experience of already caring for those inflicted: I do not want to spend seven days of lying in bed wanting to fast forward my life.

Out of desperation and an eager audience, the old fable of slicing an onion and keeping it near you in your bedroom will keep bacteria at bay has appeared again. Well, the only thing that will happen when you keep a sliced onion nearby is the craving you'll be experiencing for a coney dog. Supposedly, the onion will turn black from absorbing bacteria. Well of course it will. Onions are known to oxidize quickly. The story shared starts with factually saying this event occurred around 1919: A farmer whose family remained well when everyone else's fell ill. The story continues with the farmer sharing with a local doctor about his slicing onions and leaving them about to absorb bacteria. The doctor allegedly examined the onion and discovered the flu virus. Supposedly the onion absorbed the flu virus and kept this family well.

I don't think so. A microscope that strong wasn't invented until years later. This story has been shared at least twice in my life time so please don't get creative making jewelry bedazzled with garlic bulbs or pearled onions — although this artistic endeavor is a good way to keep friends and family away, just not viruses.

What I can tell you is that onions are good for you as well as garlic. Sautéed or simmered, they provide an excellent source of flavonoids; and don't worry about storing leftovers. It is a good idea to keep onions away from potatoes when it comes to finding a place to keep them just after purchase. Keeping potatoes and onions in close proximity creates spoilage much sooner for both veggies as they emit gases. They can be cozy in a salad and in your tummy but not together in a basket.

According to Dr. Murray on Share Care Web, "Onions have been shown to have a significant effect in lowering blood sugar comparable to the drug Tolbutamide often given to diabetics." The healing effects of onions, from what I researched, went as far back as the early America settlers who ate onions to treat coughs, colds and reduce bronchial muscle spasms associated with asthma. I feel certain the health benefits of eating onions is what created the story of placing sliced raw onions about your home. Truth is, you need to eat them. Just as it's important to eat vegetables and fruit that have a dark rich color the red onion stands out as giving more health benefits than its milder white counterpart.

To remain fairly healthy requires plenty of hand washing and alcohol wipes for phones, office equipment shared, counter tops, and if you wash dishes by hand, make certain you take that cloth and put in the microwave occasionally for one minute to keep the germ count down. Drinking plenty of water, taking naps, getting to bed early, and resting if you begin to feel queasy or achy will all help in keeping you well. A virus will run its course, but it can be shortened if you immune system isn't compromised.

If you've been taken down by this virus, my condolences and healing thoughts your way.

If you've dodged it altogether, be grateful and remain vigilant in your tact and don't forget to order onions on your next pizza, burger, or just sauté them as a side dish. A mint might not be a bad idea either especially if you still want to keep your friends around.

Gayle Gennett is a retired educator and counselor with more than 30 years experience. She is currently a licensed professional counselor in private practice focusing on youth and couples counseling. She also oversees the Lay Chaplaincy Program at Charlevoix Area Hospital. She holds a bachelors degree in art education, a masters degree in guidance and counseling and post graduate work in administration all from Eastern Michigan University.

Charlevoix was connected to the outside world by the wonder of the age, the telephone, in 1884. At first the "exchange," or operating system shown here, was placed in the home of residents named Marshall. It served 20 phones. Later it was transfered to the upper floor of the Crouter building, which still survives as the first wooden building on Bridge Street, currently housing the frozen yogurt shop. The Charlevoix Sentinel newspaper reported in May of 1885 that "The Boston Telephone, the national organ of the Telephone Exchange, states that Charlevoix has more telephone subscribers in proportion to its population than any town in Michigan." Telephone number one was given to Morris Stockman's hardware store, located where East Park is now on the corner across from the Central Drug Store. Number two was given to the Charlevoix Journal newspaper, competitor to the Sentinel and precursor to the Courier. As more phones were needed, the exchange grew larger and had to be transferred to the top floor of the Van Pelt building, the summer the site of the French Bulldog Boutique, four decades later. Does anyone remember when calling was a people-to-people affair, the first words being "Number, please"? And a little bit of news and gossip might follow if the caller and operator knew one another before the latter made the wire and plug connection.

Charlevoix's Got Talent event on tap Saturday

Performers from 15 different acts, ranging in age from elementary to high school and featuring talents including singing, dancing, playing instruments and computer artwork will take the stage Saturday when the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Program hosts its "Charlevoix's Got Talent" talent show contest.

Mike Washburne will serve as the emcee for the event which will start at 7 p.m. at the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

Washburne is a graduate of Petoskey High School and is the food service director at Charlevoix High School. He has been a ski instructor at Nub's Nob for 11 years and 19 years at Mount McSauba and CEO of Mike's Mustard of Charlevoix.

The show will be judged by a celebrity panel made up the following people:

— Chris Dominic, a Charlevoix native who has worked with some of Nashvilles's top singers, songwriters, and producers. He has performed both on his own, and has sung lead with Hank Williams Jr's band. Dominic has opened for some of country music's greatest artists such as Ronnie Milsap, Crystal Gayle, Pam Tillis, Larry Gatlin & The Gatlin Brothers, Sammy Kershaw, Darryl Worley, and Cowboy Crush. Dominic has been a crowd favorite at the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, the Mancelona Bass Festival, Odawa Casino & Hotel, and Leelanau Sands Casino.

— Joni Olach who was born and raised in Charlevoix, was a Charlevoix High School Marching Band and performing arts volunteer for eight years. Olach is a U.S. Navy veteran and was a regimental Bugler in the Navy, sang on a weekly TV recruiting show, was a classical voice teacher and ballroom dance teacher, and has played baritone in the Charlevoix City Band for 10 years.

— Chris Edwards, is a returning Charlevoix native and Charlevoix High School alumnus (class of 1985), as well as a former performing arts student under Connie Ford. Living in Los Angeles for more than a decade, Edwards worked at a Hollywood talent agency before starting his own talent management company.

The three acts who receive the highest ratings will win a cash prize, which will be awarded at the conclusion of the program.

Tickets to the event, which is a fundraiser for the performing arts program, are available at the door for $5 each.

City still looking for rec director

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After a roughly six-month-long search to fill the position of recreation department director, City of Charlevoix is still looking for the right match for the position.

City manager Rob Straebel said the position has been posted multiple times and he has conducted several interviews, but the right person for the job remains elusive.

Straebel and other members of his staff have been handling the recreation director's duties in the interim.

Straebel noted that he position is part-time, about 30 hours per week and pays somewhere between $17-22 per hour depending on qualifications.

He said the position has a flexible work schedule with some evening and weekend work.

Some of the duties of the recreation director include working with recreational groups such as baseball, softball, volleyball leagues, Mount McSauba Ski Hill, and the Camp McSauba director. The director also coordinates scheduling life guard for the city's beaches an more.

"Although experience in developing and managing recreational programs is a plus, we are looking for someone with a true passion for recreation that recognizes how recreational programs can promote healthy lifestyles and build strong communities. The successful candidate will be a hands-on manager that has strong customer service skills and enjoys working with diverse demographic groups in a fun environment. Position affords a fair amount of autonomy and is perfect for someone looking to work collaboratively with many different community groups."

Applications are due at city hall by Feb. 15. More information can be obtained by accessing the city's website, www.cityofcharlevoix.org or calling the city manager's office at (231) 547-3270.

Foundation welcomes two new trustees

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently announced the appointment of two new trustees: Michelle Cortright and Paul Witting.

Cortright, of Boyne City, is president and CEO of Harbor House Publishers, Inc. An active member of the community, Cortright currently serves as an Evangeline Township Trustee, a director of The Bank of Northern Michigan and a member of the board of directors of the Boyne City Main Street Downtown Development Authority, Boyne City Economic Development Commission and Northern Community Mediation. In addition to serving on the foundation's board of trustees, Cortright will also serve on the foundation's distribution committee, which oversees the organization's grant-making activities.

"I'm so pleased to be a part of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's future, and I'm looking forward to working with the other trustees to continue to grow the foundation's capacity in the years ahead," she said.

Witting, of Charlevoix, worked in business for more than 30 years. Working primarily in sales and marketing, Witting retired as the senior vice president of marketing with Steelcase, Inc., in Grand Rapids. Witting is active in the community, serving as a member of the board of directors of the Lake Charlevoix Association, and also as a member of the Lions Club of Charlevoix.

"I'm just delighted to have been given the opportunity to serve the community foundation," he noted, adding, "I've long-admired the foundation's work in the community, and look forward to being a part of that effort." Like Cortright, Witting will also serve on the foundation's distribution committee.

Valerie Snyder, chair of the foundation's board of trustees, said she is looking forward to working with the new trustees.

"Michelle and Paul are committed and well-intentioned community citizens, and the community foundation will benefit from their skills and participation," she said.

Including the new appointments, the foundation's board of trustees includes 13 members, representing all regions of Charlevoix County. Other trustees include Connie Wojan and Don Spencer of Beaver Island; Hugh Conklin, Jim Howell and Rachel Swiss of Boyne City; Dave Leusink, Linda Mueller and Valerie Snyder of Charlevoix; Fay Keane, John Kempton and Barbara Malpass of East Jordan.

Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come. 'Medicare 101' set for Feb. 7

Many area residents will soon be new to Medicare. A deluge of mail on the topic sometimes is more confusing than helpful. Many folks are confused about all the "A's" and "B's, "C's and "D's" associated with Medicare.

An informational workshop, "Medicare 101," will be offered from 6-8 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 7, from at the Petoskey Friendship Center, 1322 Anderson Road in Petoskey. The workshop will be presented by Sue Fowler, Pat Mahan and Lou Fantini, certified Medicare counselors from the Medicare Medicaid Assistance Program.

The Medicare Medicaid Assistance Program is the state-wide program which provides free health benefits counseling to Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries, their families, and caregivers. The Medicare 101 program is designed to help give a general understanding of Medicare, its parts and products, to help people understand which of those products might best fit their needs and to get people started on making a good choice to meet those needs. Anyone who is within six months to a year of getting Medicare coverage, is encouraged to attend.

Registration is encouraged, but not required. Call the Friendship Centers of Emmet County (Council on Aging) at (231) 347-3211 or (888) 347-0369 to reserve a spot.

active.

"I asked the doctors if this hunting trip was something that I should still be able to do, having booked it a year before, or should I contact The Mackenzie Mountain Outfitters and cancel. I was told that with proper rehabilitation, supervised and monitored, I should be fine. Based on previous hunting adventures, I knew that in order to maximize success, you must make sure that your equipment is in order including the right clothing and boots. More importantly you must be prepared mentally and physically."

Now, he said, there would be an added dimension of caution.

Rozema embarked upon an intense training period during the summer. After being released from The Heart and Vascular Research Center of Northern Michigan in Petoskey, Rozema's physicians prescribed cardiac rehabilitation at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Nurse Tina Foltz is the coordinator of cardiac rehabilitation at the hospital. She said in July, the department received a call about a man who wanted to be rehabilitated so that he could go on an extreme hunting trip in September.

"We had never had a patient with such an ambitious goal," Foltz said. "We've directed line dancing in the hallway and worked clients up to tennis, but no one had ever been this ambitious. Usually cardiac patients have more modest goals that involve dealing with daily activities and chores. The top priority in our program is safety," Foltz said.

Rozema's physicians who prescribed an individualized exercise program guided his activities in cardiac rehabilitation, Foltz said.

"The cardiac rehab staff kept me on a regimented program guided by closely monitoring my heart rate during various activities. It was a gradual process. I attribute my success to being in this program and to how they raised the bar each session," Rozema said.

Rozema progressively added equipment to his workouts, eventually a 15 pound backpack, hunting boots and most of the gear he would be toting around on the hunt. "On the days that I was not in rehab," Rozema said, "I would walk two to four miles a day." All the while, his rehab "angels"; Foltz, Janet Ryske, exercise technician, and another nurse, Barb Plnister, kept him on track. They graduated him from rehab and sent him off with a little silver guardian angel medallion. Rozema, admittedly a man of faith, kept it with him on the trip.

One doesn't just arrive at these outlying hunting sites. The final legs of his journey involved flying into Norman Wells in the Northwest Territory. A Twin Otter plane transported him and others to a base camp about 100 miles into the interior of the MacKenzie Mountains, where Mackenzie Mountain Outfitters has a cabin. The more remote hunting grounds were reached by helicopter, where he and his guide were left to camp in small tents while pursuing the caribou, supplied with only satellite phones for communication. They spent a total of seven days in the wild searching for his prey. On one occasion, Rozema recalls, his guide startled him into immediate action after sighting a herd of caribou some distance away on an opposite mountainside. Picking up his gear and grabbing his rifle, Rozema hurried after his guide down the side of a mountain, closing the distance, only finding that he had overexerted himself to the extent that he was unable to make the shot.

"I was breathing so heavily and was so unsteady that even bracing myself against my backpack didn't help. We had to pass up the opportunity."

On the last day, they came upon their chance. It was a long shot of about 300 yards, but Rozema wasn't winded this time. He got his trophy and headed home, full of the satisfaction that comes from setting and reaching a challenging goal.

The cardiac rehabilitation staff continues to monitor Rozema who now has a total of three stents in his heart. He may decide to take another trip.

"Not in a remote area though," Rozema said. "I was so blessed that my angina attack took place at home where I had immediate (9-1-1) help."

Charlevoix would then outscore the Rams 18-9 in the final eight minutes to walk away with the win.

POSTPONEMENT

Weather postpones Jan. 22 basketball games

The Charlevoix Rayder boys freshman, junior varsity and varsity basketball games against Grayling that had been scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 22, were postponed because of the inclement weather. The games have beer re-scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 28.

Fundraising for new Rayder bus kicks off

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Sports Boosters are putting out the call to the community — including all past Rayders — to get on board with a fundraising campaign to replacing the school's iconic Rayder Bus.

District transportation supervisor Gordie Russell said the current bus — a cross between a standard school bus and a motorcoach, is nearing the end of its service life after. The current bus which has been in service since 1991, has more than $236,000 miles on it and replacement parts are becoming difficult to find, Russell said.

The booster organization plans to make a kickoff presentation for the fundraising effort during the home boys varsity basketball game on Feb. 1. (The kickoff was originally slated for Tuesday, but the game was cancelled because of inclement weather.)

Russell said the goal for the campaign is to raise $150,000 for a new bus of a similar design and capacity (46 passengers) of the current bus.

Russell said the bus, which is now used mainly to transport varsity teams to away games, is well-known around the area, and the state.

"Its a real point of pride in the community Russell said."

The goal of the campaign is to have the money for the new bus raised in time for the fall 2013 sports seasons.

If ultimately purchased, the new bus would be the third edition of the Rayder Bus. The first one served the school from 1968 to 1991.

Anyone wising to contribute to the Rayder bus campaign can send a check to Charlevoix Sports Boosters, 05200 Marion Center Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720 with a notation in the check's memo line for "Rayder Bus."

Greetings from the Capitol

D.C. memories

Last weekend a contingent of 40 Charlevoix High School students had a chance to witness history first-hand when they traveled to Washington D.C. as part of a school trip to take part in festivities surrounding the second inauguration of President Barak Obama.

The group traveled by bus, arriving in Washington on Friday and returning to Charlevoix on Tuesday. The group packed a lot into their trip. In addition to some of the typical D.C. destinations, the group attended a inaugural ball, a reception hosted by legislators from Michigan, a show at the Kennedy center, and the inauguration itself

The trip was led by high school government teacher Annemarie Conway, who has led similar trips for inaugurations several times in the past.

Recalls move on

New law changes nature of election

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Recent changes to the state law that governs how recall elections are handled have thrown some new wrinkles into the ongoing effort to recall three current members of the Charlevoix City Council.

On Tuesday, the last of three petitions were turned in to the Charlevoix County Clerk's office with what appear to be sufficient signatures to force recall elections for city council members Jill Picha, Bryan Vollmer and Dennis Kusina.

The recall efforts stem from some city residents being upset about the council's approval for the construction of an outdoor community fireplace on the western edge of East Park, near the east side of Bridge Street between Mason and Clinton streets. The fireplace project was approved at a special meeting on Aug. 9 and outcry began about it shortly after site preparation and construction began days later.

The primary reason for the recalls listed in the language of the three petitions claims that the city council violated the state's Open Meetings Act when it conducted the special meeting on Aug. 9.

What's next?

To meet the deadline for the recall election to take place next available election date, May 7, the petitions had to be filed by Feb. 1. The petition against Vollmer was filed on Jan. 18. The petition against Picha was filed on Jan. 26 and the petition against Kusina was filed on Tuesday. County clerk's office staff have sent the petitions to the city clerk's office which has already returned the petitions for Vollmer and Picha confirming that they have enough signatures to prompt the recall. The elected officials who are the targets of the recall have 30 days from the date the respective petition was filed to challenge any signatures on the petitions. If no challenges are made, five days later, the county clerk's office would officially call for the recall election.

Here's where things have changed when Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder

Many positives highlight state of community event

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

Despite some challenges, there are many positive things going on in and around Charlevoix.

That was the message that the roughly 120 people who attended the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's third annual State of the Community Address heard from the five organization representatives who made presentations at the event at Castle Farms Friday.

Following breakfast, representatives from the city of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Public Schools, the chamber, Charlevoix County and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation provided a snapshot of recent accomplishments and work in progress for the future.

Leading off the event's speakers was Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr.

Working from data prepared for the city's recent budget work session, Carlson first provided some numbers that show some promise for the economy's continued recovery.

He noted that the county's unemployment rate is currently at about 9.4 percent, which is down about 5 percent from 2010. He also noted that city staff is expecting the city's taxable value to increase by nearly 2 percent from last year and that area foreclosures are either leveling off or decreasing.

STEVE ZUCKER/ CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Bob Gendron speaks during the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's third annual State of the Community Address at Castle Farms Friday.

Carlson hit on some highlights of the upcoming 2013-14 budget, which in its current form expects to bring in about $3.28 million in revenue — about 68 percent of that from property taxes and 21 percent in charges for services. The draft budget proposes to dip a bit into the city's savings by spending about $3.42 million. The two biggest spending items in the general fund budget are public safety at 35 percent and recreation and culture at 27 percent.

Carlson also detailed some of the major capital projects planned for the year including $736,000 to be spent on street improvements to Clinton, Lewis and West Garfield streets; $531,000 to be spent in motor pool purchases, $200,000 to be spent on upgrading the apron at the airport and $100,000 for electrical system improvements.

Carlson noted some grants the city has recently received including $891,000 in federal and state money expected in 2016 for improvements to Carpenter/State streets, $285,000 for the Lake-to-Lake Trail and money from the Federal Aviation Administration for the airport work, and a $15,000 tribal grant to help develop the disc golf course at Mount McSauba.

Carlson also highlighted this past year's upgrades to the White Lot in downtown Charlevoix, the replacement of the lights in the trees in downtown Charlevoix with warmer-colored LED strings, and the city's recently-passed ordinance that allows businesses — under certain conditions — to apply for special redevelopment liquor licenses.

Although it has been a central point of discussion for the last four or five months, one matter that did not come up was the controversial proposal to build a community fireplace in East Park. Carlson even seemed surprised when no one brought it up when he asked for questions at the end of his presentation.

"Really? No one is going to address the elephant in the room?" he said.

Next up was Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Bob Gendron.

Gendron, who has been on the job in Charlevoix only since Aug. 1 following the departure of former superintendent Chet Janik, said the pride the Charlevoix community has in its schools is one of the big things that drew him to take the position.

Gendron started off with discussing the financial hurdles the district continues to face.

He noted that since the 2008-09 school year, the district per-pupil foundation grant allowance has dropped from $8,424 to $7,954 and other "cate-

Meth lab suspects arraigned, released on $5,000 bond

Officers with the Charlevoix County Joint Operational Law Enforcement Team (JOLT) made two arrests Wednesday, Jan. 23, after executing a search warrant on a meth lab in Wilson Township two days prior.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office press release, Aaron D. Mathers, 30, and Carey A. Mathers, 31, were both arrested on three-count felony warrants and charged with operating/maintaining a laboratory involving methamphetamine, controlled substance/delivery/manufacture methamphetamine/ecstasy and controlled substance maintaining a drug house. Counts one and two both carry a maximum of 20 years in prison, with the third count a two-year high court misdemeanor.

Both subjects bonded out of jail on a $5,000 bond after they were arraigned Thursday, Jan. 24.

Charlevoix County Undersheriff Chuck Vondra, did not say what specific items or equipment had been seized in the raid on Tompkins Road, but did explain that it was an active lab that was using the "shake and bake" method of using small bottles to make methamphetamine.

He added that the potential existed for more arrests from this specific case. Two children, who resided at the same location as the meth lab, were at school during the execution of the warrant, authorities said.

"Making methamphetamine is highly toxic and highly volatile," Vondra said. "There's always the danger of explosion, beyond the dangers of using methamphetamine."

The Michigan State Police meth lab response team and the Boyne City Police Department assisted at the scene.

Fireplace committee aims low

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Landscape architecht Richard Hitz (far right) talks about possible placement options for the proposed community fireplace in East Park during the fireplace steering committee's second meeting Tuesday.

The steering committee appointed to come up with recommendations for the hotly contested outdoor community fireplace proposal for East Park appears to have found a direction for its effort: Low.

Meeting for the second time since it was created late last year, the committee (absent member Becky Doan) met Tuesday to discuss some ideas the consultants who are helping in the process have been working on since the group's first meeting on Jan. 2.

At that first meeting, the group had a bit of a breakthrough when they discussed the fact there is no functional or required reason what that the fireplace needs to have a tall chimney.

One of the biggest complaints voiced by opponents of the project since the issue boiled to the surface is that, at its originally proposed height of about 20 feet, the fireplace and its chimney would block views of East Park and Round Lake — especially considering its proposed location in the park's Plaza B, located along the edge of Bridge Street about halfway between Clinton and Mason streets.

Architect Mark Buday, who designed the buildings in East Park, and landscape architect Richard Hitz, the principal designer for the interactive water fountain and trout stream elements of the park, have volunteered to serve as consultants to city council on the issue and are using the committee for input for various viewpoints on the matter.

The committee, appointed by Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson, is made up of five members, city manager Rob Straebel, and residents Jodi Bingham, Pat Miller, John Winn and Doan.

Buday and Hitz will eventually report their recommendation — based on input from the committee — back to the city council which will ultimately decide what will become of the fireplace project. Although construction of the original design had begun shortly after the city council's Aug. 9 approval, the council put the project on hold in September after community members objected to it.

At the first meeting, talk also centered around possibly moving the fireplace to near the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets. Both the discussion on size reduction and the relocation seemed to address the view concern, while still achieving some of the original goals for the structure — to serve as a gathering place that can be seen from Bridge Street and presenting a warm and inviting sense to guests to the downtown.

At Tuesday's meeting, Hitz and Buday returned with some suggestions for a general design and location.

Hitz said from their experience that for a fireplace structure to have the desired effect of serving as a gathering place, it really needs to have little or no chimney at all that blocks views of the area or other people. To that end he suggested a design that would be something like a bowl with little or no structure above it.

However, he also suggested leaving the location right where it was originally proposed in Plaza B. Hitz explained the logic behind his suggestion was that the park already has two strong anchors on each end — the performance pavilion on the south end and the marina building/trout stream/water fountain at the north end. He said the middle section where Plaza B is seems to be a main gateway to the park, but seems to be somewhat void of a strong anchor element.

Hitz and Buday's suggestion were fairly well-received by the committee — especially the ultra-low design.

Even Bingham, who owns a business located directly across the street from Plaza B and who has been among the most vocal opponents of the fireplace project since the controversy first sprang up, said she could imagine a group from the library meeting there for story time or something of a similar nature.

However there was some concern expressed among some committee members and a few of the roughly 20 audience members who attended the meeting about the fireplace causing pedestrian traffic congestion at the site — especially during particularly busy times such Venetian Festival and the many other events that take place in the park in the summer. Straebel and Winn weren't concerned about the pedestrian traffic flow issue. Straebel, in fact suggested a small wall or bench could be added to separate foot traffic on the sidewalk from people enjoying the fireplace.

Some suggestions were discussed about possibly increasing the size of the plaza into the park, which would allow the fireplace to be moved away from the street some. Hitz warned, however, that any time work is done involving retaining walls — such as those that make up part of the plaza, costs rise quite quickly.

Bingham suggested considering moving the fireplace out of the plaza and down one tier. Hitz noted that could work, but it would make the fireplace less visible from the street and it would create an issue with providing barrier-free access.

This time, when the meeting wrapped up, Hitz and Buday had consensus among the group that they liked the low bowl design and they were OK with something in or near Plaza B.

Hitz said they would now set to work coming up with some design and location alternative and some more detailed and to-scale drawings. Looking at both the option of placing the fireplace in the plaza, and possibly one tier down and looking at the feasibility of creating ramps for access.

Asked about concerns for safety with the open bowl-type design, Hitz said it would be up to him and Buday to create some kind of feature that would keep children away from the flames and people from throwing things into it.

The committee set its next meeting for 6 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 28, in the city council chambers at city hall.

Scovie's license clears first hurdle

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After many months of waiting, Scovie's Gourmet owner Vi Keller cleared the first hurdle in her effort to obtain a special redevelopment liquor license for her business Monday with little fanfare.

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Board voted to give its blessing (recommendation for approval) to the license application under a recently-approved city ordinance.

The ordinance allows the city council to consider allowing the special redevelopment licenses in the downtown development authority district, under certain circumstances. Among the requirements are that the applicant makes at least $75,000 in improvements to the property where the license will be used.

Keller is planning to expand her business into a neighboring building space which will increase the business' seating by about 50-70 in addition to the 54 seats it offers now. In her application documents, she indicates some of the other improvements she has planned include new bathrooms, heating and cooling upgrade, the addition of a bar for beer and wine service, and more.

Keller told the board that she is hopeful that she can obtain the license and do the work in time to take advantage of all or some of this year's busy summer season.

The application will now be passed on to the city council for its consideration. If the council approves her application, however, the final say on issuing the license will rest with the Michigan Liquor Control Commission.

City seeks grant for wastewater plant overhaul

Federally required ammonia treatment expected to drive up sewer rates

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The city of Charlevoix is seeking a grant to help defray some costs associated with what is expected to be some costly, yet required, upgrades to its wastewater treatment plant in the next few years.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting on Monday, Jan. 21, the Charlevoix City Council unanimously approved a grant request to the State of Michigan Revolving Fund that would pay for 90 percent of planning and design work for the project.

According to a memo from city manager Rob Straebel, those costs are estimated at about $120,000, which means the city would have to pay the remaining $12,000.

The work is largely needed to comply with the city's National Pollution Discharge Elimination permit for the wastewater treatment plant that requires the city to treat ammonia at the plant by the end of 2015.

Straebel noted that the plant is currently not set up to treat ammonia and there have been no major upgrades to the plant "for a very long time."

In the same memo, Straebel warns the council that the expected high cost of the project will require the city to use bonds for financing, with increases in sewer rates paying for the annual debt service.

"There may be substantial increases in sewer rates, which will not be well received by many residents in our service areas," Straebel writes. "The actual rate increases will be determined by a user charge system analysis that is driven by total project costs."

In 2012 the council heard a presentation from consultants who said that the biggest hurdle for the city to overcome in its ammonia treatment efforts is the cold weather the area experiences for part of the year. When the weather is warm enough, biological processes at the plant can break down the ammonia, but when temperatures dip below a certain point, those processes don't work well enough.

In other business, the council approved its Cooperation/Collaboration/Consolidation plan for 2013. As part of the state's Economic Vitality Incentive Program, the city is required to submit the plan which details its efforts to work with other municipalities to find cost sharing and saving opportunities. The city must submit the plan to the state by Feb. 1 in order to qualify to receive all of its $24,000 in state revenue sharing funds.

The council also approved a request from the Charlevoix Public Library to install a Little Free Library near the concessions building at Michigan Beach this summer.

The free book exchange station, which is currently installed at Charlevoix Area Hospital, would be moved to the beach for the summer and then returned to the hospital during colder months. Volunteers from the library will maintain and stock the station.

GLCO music workshop is Feb. 2

Violin, viola, cello and string bass students of all ages and abilities are invited to participate in the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra's fourth annual Day for Music workshop on Saturday, Feb. 2, at Charlevoix High School.

During the one-day workshop, students will take part in rehearsals, sectionals and a side-by-side performance with Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra musicians. Leading the workshop will be Carlos Botero from Michigan State University and Valerie Palmieri, conductor of the Adrian College orchestra. More than 75 area music students took part in the event last year.

The workshop will begin at 10 a.m. for students in levels one through three, and at noon for beginning students. A new, one-hour master class will take place at 9 a.m. for students who would like to perform prepared pieces from their private lessons or that they intend to perform at a solo and ensemble festival. Space in the master class is limited. The day will conclude at 3 p.m. with a performance that will be open to the public.

The cost to participate in the workshop is $12; for additional family members, the cost is $10. The charge for the master class is $8. Others are welcome to observe the master class at no charge.

Participants are asked to bring a sack lunch and a music stand if possible.

At the conclusion of the workshop, each participant will be given a free adult ticket and a student pass to one performance of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra's upcoming Colombian Concert. The performances will take place at the Charlevoix Congregational Church at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 9, and at the First Presbyterian Church in Harbor Springs on at 4 p.m. Sunday, March 10.

Registration materials are available through local string instructors or through the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra at (231) 487-0010 or online at www.glcorchestra.org.

Earth's greenhouse effect a hot topic

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

I am the proud possessor of a small greenhouse on the east side of our house. It properly should be on the south side, but there is no room there and for more than 10 years now my small (8 feet by 10 feet) greenhouse has been home to some of my favorite plants and a place where early starts for garden plants can be managed.

December and January are not the best times for the tropical plants I grow, but most of them manage with a little supplementary heat during the long winter nights. Daytime is not usually a problem. With only the little sun that gets through the clouds of gloomy winter days, the space can warm nicely. If there is any direct sun at all, even at winter's low angle, the space quickly reaches nearly 80 degrees on days when the outside temperature may be near zero. My greenhouse, it seems is much like the whole Earth reduced to the smallest scale.

The Earth is a greenhouse, kept warm by letting in the heat of the sun and not letting it get out. What keeps the heat in is a very small amount of a gas called carbon dioxide.

When I first learned a bit of chemistry, the amount of carbon dioxide in the air of the earth was .03 percent. Currently the amount is almost double that.

Without that small quantity of carbon dioxide the earth could not function. Plants could not grow. Plants use that small amount of carbon dioxide to make all the chemicals that plants make, everything from cocaine to redwood trees. A world completely without carbon dioxide would be a dead world, not only cold but completely lifeless.

As with many things in the world, the dose makes the poison. Too much carbon dioxide can kill animals, including us. And amounts less than 0.1 percent of carbon dioxide can easily overheat the world.

For millions of years, our Earth has maintained an amount of carbon dioxide in its atmosphere that is compatible with both plant and animal life and that allows the Earth to heat like a greenhouse. Carbon dioxide provides what is commonly called the Earth's "greenhouse effect."

In the few centuries that we have been burning fossil fuels (coal and petroleum), the amount of carbon dioxide in the air of the Earth has been increasing. The amount can be measured with great precision. The best measurements come from an observatory on a mountaintop in Hawaii. The air measured has blown across much of the Pacific Ocean, which absorbs some carbon dioxide, so what we have is a very accurate, minimal content amount.

The earth warms considerably when there is only a little more carbon dioxide in its atmosphere; we become a better greenhouse. It is warming now at a very rapid pace. The warming is not because of more sunlight or any other cause. An increase in the amount of carbon dioxide is the direct cause of that warming.

Carbon dioxide in the air is also increased by any activity that reduces plant growth (think of cutting down our tropical and non-tropical forests, or covering more of the earth with parking lots).

We humans have a very serious problem or set of problems related to the heating up of the Earth, and too much carbon dioxide is the cause. We almost desperately need to understand and act on that truth.

During any sunny, summer day, without vigorous ventilation, my small greenhouse quickly gets to more than 120 degrees. It is worth remembering that the Earth does not have any sort of ventilation system. We need to get to work.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

LOOKING BACK…

A little more than 42 years ago, in January of 1971 U.S. Air Force B-52 bomber exploded over Little Traverse Bay a few miles from Charlevoix with the loss of all nine crewmen. The event was reported world-wide. These flights had originated in the 1960s as training missions for pinpoint "bombing" runs that targeted the smokestack of the new Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant four miles north of town on the shore of Lake Michigan. The so-called "bombing" was done electronically and scored by a radar station built in Bay Shore. When the tragedy occurred, the plane was only 11 direct-flight seconds away from the plant. Realizing the danger (and repercussions) this exercise could pose for Big Rock, even if remote, the Pentagon ordered all future flights to veer several hundred feet away over the water and reconfigure the electronic patterns. By the time the training sessions ended in the mid 1980s, more than 10,000 flights had passed over Big Rock and Charlevoix, at least two conducted by Britain's Royal Air Force. In the beginning, a few hotdogging pilots of smaller, faster jets loved nothing better than to complete their mission, then goose their engines to try to break the sound barrier over town, sometimes succeeding to the point that store windows on Bridge Street cracked. After many complaints, they were ordered to cease and desist.

Survey seeks gaps in Internet service

CONNECTED NATION
CONNECT Michigan

A short survey is being conducted throughout Charlevoix County in an attempt to locate pockets where residents and businesses are not satisfied with their present Internet services. This survey was designed by the Charlevoix County Broadband Committee in order to begin implementing their Connect Michigan Technology Action Plan.

This survey can be found at the Charlevoix County Clerk's office, local libraries, chamber of commerce offices and city offices in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan. The survey can also be answered online at www.surveymonkey.com/s/W5N-B8RJ.

Survey answers will be combined with other responses and distributed to prospective Internet service providers so they can identify where there is interest in faster and more affordable Internet, television and phone services.

"Answering the survey does not obligate anyone to subscribe. It is only to gauge interest in improved services," said Jim Rudolph, Hayes Township representative on the broadband committee. "Answers should be received no later than March 8 in order to be counted."

In August 2012, Charlevoix County received the nation's first certification as a connected community from Connected Nation. This certification was received after the Charlevoix County Broadband Committee, assisted by Connect Michigan, completed building a comprehensive technology action plan. The process included reviewing the technology landscape, developing regional partnerships, establishing local teams and conducting a thorough community assessment of broadband access, adoption and use.

AARP names Castle Farms a 'must see' destination

Castle Farms of Charlevoix was recently named one of AARP's "Top Ten Must-See American Castles."

The Castle, designed from the architecture of castles in Normandy, France, was built in 1918 by Albert Loeb, then acting-president of Sears Roebuck. Loeb Farms (as it was known) operated from 1918–1927 as a working model dairy farm to showcase farm equipment available in the Sears catalog. Following Loeb's death, the property sat idle until 1962, when it was sold to John VanHaver. It re-opened in 1966 under the name Castle VanHaver, operating as a tour destination and artist's studio. In 1969, Art Reibel purchased the property. Reibel built a huge concrete stage, and Castle Farms Summer Music Theater became known for hosting rock concerts. Current owner Linda Mueller purchased the buildings and grounds in 2001. Castle Farms has undergone a complete restoration, and is listed on both the national and State of Michigan historic registries.

The castle is open year round to the public for historic tours and events.

OBITUARY

Mary Jane Schmidt, 90

Mary Jane Schmidt, 90, passed away peacefully on Tuesday, Jan. 29, 2013, at her home in Charlevoix.

Mary Jane was born in Detroit, Mich. on June 21, 1922, to Audrey Marie Chase and Thomas Stackable. Anthony J. Reis was her beloved stepfather through much of her adulthood. She survived her older sister Helen and her younger brother Jack by many years.

In 1947, she married Gustav Schmidt. They resided in Detroit until 1958, when they and their three children moved to New Baltimore, Mich. where they thrived and made many lifelong friends.

In 1986, Gus and Jane moved to Beaver Island, a place they came to love so much that they chose it as their final resting place, even though they have been Charlevoix residents for the last 14 years.

She is survived by Gus, her husband of 65 years, three children, Charles, Stephen, and Claudia, as well as grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Mary Jane (always known as Jane) was a wonderful inspiring mother, and even though that was her full-time job, she kept growing and learning, belonging to literary study groups and learning to paint, which became a real passion for her. She had the soul of an artist and an unflagging sense of adventure.

She was known for her quick wit, ready laugh, and compassionate listening ear. Those who counted her as a friend were very lucky indeed.

A memorial celebration will take place in the spring on Beaver Island.

Memorials may be made in her name to the Charlevoix Area Humane Society or the Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. Arrangements are by Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Commission on aging director to retire

Jack Messer reflects on the challenges, rewards of his job

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

AEBRA COE/NEWS-REVIEW
Charlevoix County Commission on Aging Director Jack Messer plans to retire March 30.

Jack Messer, 63, does not have a degree in gerontology, but after speaking with the soon-to-retire director of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, it quickly becomes clear he has a passion for making the lives of seniors, and really anyone else around him, better.

The U.S. Marine Corps veteran and long-time Michigan State Police trooper accepted the director position three years ago because "It was an opportunity to work in a field where the results are immediate. You can see that your hard work is making a difference. It's tremendously rewarding," he said.

Messer plans to retire March 30, when his current contract with the county ends.

The commission on aging provides in-home services to seniors and administrates area senior centers.

He took the director job with the knowledge that he didn't have too long before he would retire, he said, but wanted to spend his last few years working in a meaningful way.

When he was hired, the department was facing a budget deficit several years in a row.

"We had to realign our funding model," Messer said.

Messer implemented changes including charging fees for services based on income, reducing expenses and asking voters for a senior millage.

The baby boomer generation is just now reaching retirement age, so the needs for services to seniors is beginning to rise and will continue to increase over the next 10 years as 10,000 seniors a day retire in the United States.

A 30 percent increase in the number of retired people is expected in the next decade.

"We need to be planning for 40 percent," said Messer, because the number of people 60 and older in Charlevoix County is significantly higher than the rest of the state.

The aging demographic is certainly causing change, he said, which necessitates adaptation.

> "I'm proud to say that our community looks at our senior population as a resource and a treasure trove."
> — Jack Messer

"Rather than resist change," he said, "We embrace it and look at challenges as an opportunity to do it better. Then the challenge can be fun."

The communities in Charlevoix County support services that allow seniors to thrive, Messer said. Voters approved an increase in the county's senior millage last year and there is an extensive and well-used transit system in the county.

"I'm proud to say that our community looks at our senior population as a resource and a treasure trove," he said.

Seniors represent a richness in experience and often have the opportunity to serve the public, he said, through sitting on local government boards, volunteering and interacting with children.

The biggest mission of his department is to allow seniors to maintain their independence as long as possible, he said.

One way he has worked to reach that goal is by creating more flexibility in the organization, offering services as-needed, rather than being rigid in their offerings.

His method of administration is called people-centered planning, he explained. "We try to have people involved in their own care."

Upon retiring, Messer plans to move to Suttons Bay to build a home where he will spend his retired years with his wife, Margaret. The couple have two grown children and three grandchildren.

Annual report reveals financial stability

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

It was a challenging year, but a good year, Jack Messer reported to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Wednesday, Jan. 23.

The director of the county commission on aging implemented a strategy to balance the department's budget and eliminate what had been a common practice: deficit spending.

"The past year has been filled with challenges and opportunities to address the needs of our growing elder population while we continue to improve our capabilities to deliver high quality services," said Messer.

The department looked to advice from focus groups and public forums to generate options for ways to transition to a long-range, sustainable funding model that would support a growing pool of seniors as baby boomers continue to age.

"We were able to garner support and advice from our citizens," explained the director.

The support came in the form of the county's voters approving a 0.65-mill senior millage.

Messer calls the millage one of three legs that allow the commission on aging to stand on its own.

The "three legs" are fiscal restraint, creating revenue by charging a fee for services and the millage.

Probably the biggest change to the department serving the elderly is that seniors and their families are now charged a fee, based on income, for in-home services. The fees are based on federal poverty thresholds and those with the lowest incomes are not expected to pay.

"The department cannot be all things to all people," Messer said. "You have to help the people that need help the most."

The commission stayed under budget in 2012 despite the fact that its budget was $2,000 less than in 2011, he said.

One element of senior care that will be implemented in the coming year in Charlevoix County, Messer added, is a concept called the Aging and Disability Resource Center.

The federal Affordable Care Act developed the idea for the service along with the Office of Services to the Aging and each state is required to develop and implement an active resource center by 2014.

"One of the significant barriers to service is the daunting matrix of service providers, each with differing funding sources and eligibility requirements," Messer said.

To address this barrier, the concept of a resource center was developed. In the concept, anyone across the country seeking services for seniors will be able to call an 800 number and be connected to a regional counselor.

Using a database of providers and services for a given area, the counselor will help the client get connected with needed programs and services.

Messer serves on the steering committee for the planned resource center that will serve 10 counties in northwest Michigan.

"By being involved in this process, we have the opportunity to influence the direction the project takes," he explained, "And ensure that senior services in Charlevoix County are well represented in the final outcome."

Summit focuses on teamwork, problem solving

County administrator, broadband, ambulance service among issues discussed

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

AEBRA COE/NEWS-REVIEW
Officials from Boyne City, East Jordan, Charlevoix County and Norwood Township sit together at a table Monday discussing broadband Internet availability in the county during the Charlevoix County Leadership Summit at the Boyne City senior center.

BOYNE CITY — Close to 50 county, township and city officials met in Boyne City Monday to discuss the future of Charlevoix County and ways governmental bodies can work together.

The officials were gathered for the Charlevoix County Leadership Summit, which brought together a comprehensive list of county leaders for the second time in three years.

Police chiefs, ambulance directors, school superintendents, county commissioners and mayors, just to name a few, worked together in small groups to come up with ideas for solutions to some of the most pressing issues facing the county.

Access to high speed Internet, funding for ambulance services, the need for a county administrator, priorities for water quality and the construction and maintenance of recreational trails were major topics discussed at the meeting.

Smaller groups of four to six officials each chose a topic and focused on developing detailed solutions and discussion points, then each group presented their findings to the rest of the room.

County administrator needed

"When I listened to everything everybody said tonight, it's clear we need to do things on a county-wide basis because that's how we're the strongest," said John Laney, Norwood Township planning commission vice chair. "That's why a county administrator would be helpful."

To begin the process of finding an administrator or controller, said Boyne City city manager Michael Cain, the county could first schedule a public information session.

"What are the issues, what are the topics, what are the concerns. Get everything on the table."

Then, the county could conduct a needs assessment evaluating what roles an administrator might take on and who currently performs those roles. The county would likely benefit from consulting with the Michigan Association of Counties and other statewide organizations with knowledge in the matter, Cain said.

"We felt there should be a blue ribbon committee established to address this," he continued. Rather than working at a board level, the committee would involve departments, cities and townships for input.

Finally, the committee would report back to the people of the county with a comprehensive report, after which a decision would need to be made.

The decision could be made by the county board, by public referendum, or even a charter commission, he said.

Ambulance service funding

The replacement of ambulances as they age and the buildings in which they are housed are very large expenses for municipalities, on top of increasing annual expenses for fuel and maintenance.

"When we start to look at capital, that's a problem for us. We have to look at a new way of doing that," reported East Jordan EMS director Jay Peck.

Peck

Townships also express that in contracting service from a city, several use East Jordan's service, they have less voice in how the ambulance service is run.

Some townships have thought about starting their own ambulance services, but "Start-up funds are quite large and that's a problem," Peck said.

East Jordan is thinking about developing an ambulance authority with the five townships to which it currently offers emergency services.

"We also thought about a county-wide funding strategy, such as a tax," he said, or possibly even a county-wide authority.

Boyne City has also entered into a cooperative agreement for ambulance services with several surrounding townships, said Boyne City Mayor Ron Grunch. The way it is funded is spread across the municipalities, based on number of homes in each township or city and volume of population served.

In the future, capital needs will be met by the apportionment that is shared by each of the governmental bodies.

"Capital replacement is accommodated for in the apportionment," said Grunch. "We hadn't thought about going with a county authority."

Because the county is so large, he said, 42 miles from east to west, and because Lake Charlevoix serves as a barrier, such a service may not be feasible.

Access to high speed Internet

Despite being one the most "connected" communities in the state, lack of service to rural townships in the county is still an issue, reported county commissioner Chris Christensen.

The cities already have Internet providers knocking on their door, he said, ready to move in and provide services after Merit Network installed basic fiber optic infrastructure over the past year to connect the county to the broadband Internet grid.

That's because the cities are population centers and likely more lucrative investments for the companies.

"I think we have to band together and figure out how we can provide broadband to the county as a whole," Christensen said.

It's not just about Internet, he continued. Many schoolchildren now have tablets provided to them by schools and could enhance their learning at home with high speed Internet. Seniors could be visited in their rooms by caretakers and family members through video phone calls.

"If we had a county-wide network, we could drive costs down," he said. "The redundancies we can create for each other is way higher than what we can do individually."

To make that happen, townships would first need to install the necessary infrastructure to get connected. Then, intergovernmental agreements would be drawn up, a financing model developed and the county would advertise its broadband availability to attract future businesses and residents.

signed a group of bills on Dec. 27, changing the recall process from a two-step to a one-step process.

Previously the recall election would have simply asked voters if they wanted to recall (remove from office) a particular elected official. If the recall was successful, another process would take place to fill the vacancy created by the recall. That person would then serve out the remainder of the term of the recalled official.

However the new law changes this and makes the recall election look more like a typical candidate-versus-candidate contest. Instead of simply voting on whether an official should be removed from office, voters in recall elections will essentially decide who they want to serve the remainder of the targeted official's term.

Under the law, the official who is targeted for recall, (the incumbent) is automatically placed on the ballot, unless he or she notifies the clerk within 10 days that he or she does not wish to have his or her name on the ballot.

Any other eligible resident of the recall target's ward who wishes to run for the challenged seat can get on the ballot one of two ways: Circulate a nominating petition and return it to the clerk's office within 10 days of the election being called (the number of signatures appears to be only a few); or pay a $100 non-refundable fee to the clerk.

The law also appears to have changed what will appear on the recall election ballot to also look more like a typical candidate-versus candidate race.

Previously, the ballot would have had language (similar to the petition language) explaining the reasons why the official's recall was sought and also a rebuttal statement of up to 200 words from the elected official targeted for the recall. However the bill signed by the governor repealed that section of the law (MCL 168.966). The state's bureau of elections most recent legislative update, the bureau's updated election official study guide and the revised law as listed on the state legislature's website, appear to make no mention of ballot language, aside from the procedures for candidates to appear on the ballot.

gorical" funding sources have shrunk, too. Also, he noted that the district has seen a drop in enrollment from a high of 1,410 students in 2004-05 to 1,010 students this year.

He said while revenues have shrunk, costs have gone up for everything from insurance and retirement costs to heating and fuel costs.

Gendron detailed some of the cost-cutting measures the district has taken in recent years including cutting 35 staff members, contracting for services, eliminating some administrative and coaching positions, limiting bus purchases, eliminating a bus route, staff taking a two-year pay freeze, cutting back on supply purchases and more.

And still, he noted the district has had to borrow against its fund balance, which once stood at $4.3 million and now is at less than $500,000.

"This has all taken place to maintain the programs for students," Gendron said.

Despite all these financial difficulties, Gendron said, many positive things have been accomplished in the district.

He pointed to last year when U.S. News and World Report gave Charlevoix High School its silver medal in evaluating high schools around the nation. He noted that the high school was ranked in the top 5 percent in the nation and number 24 of 826 high schools in the state.

He also noted that all of the schools continue to receive good "report card" rankings, and the district has been able to maintain low student to teacher ratios, arts and performing arts programs, field trip opportunities, credit recovery, AP classes and eight direct college credit classes, 18 varsity sports, JV, freshman and middle school sports teams, and the district has been able to implement numerous technology upgrades through the use of bond money.

Looking forward, Gendron said the nature of the classroom environment will continue to shift to more student-centered with the implementation of technology such as the iPads that are currently being rolled-out in the district.

Finally, Gendron put out a challenge to the community to help contribute to maintaining the district's success.

"If we are going to maintain what we have, we'll have to have some increased revenue, additional grant funding and increased student enrollment," he said.

The way to help achieve those goals, he said, is for a group of community members to come together.

"We need a group of community stakeholders who are willing to come together; who are willing to meet; who are willing to define what our community needs, set community goals and come up with an action plan for how to accomplish it."

Up next Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Erin Bemis gave a rundown of some of the chamber's accomplishments over the past year and some of the changes that will be coming this year.

Looking back she pointed to the slate of events and programs the chamber hosted or participated in including Leadership Charlevoix County, a candidate forum, state of the community and awards gala events, the farmers market which is now year-round, the continually growing Business Expo and more.

She noted that the chamber's new board has been working on a strategic plan that focuses on being proactive, stimulating growth, providing leadership and having fun.

Bemis said in the short term some coming changes will include using technology more, including another re-design of the chamber's website, eliminating the annual awards gala and changing the golf outing this year to a nighttime event.

"We're looking for some ways to consolidate and to get creative," she said. "We don't want to be the same as everyone else."

Bemis noted that the annual awards won't be going away. Instead this year they'll be awarded at the Friday night portion of the Business Expo.

For longer term goals, Bemis said the chamber wants to "be bold and lead conversations instead of react to them."

She said the organization also wants to recruit people to run for office to get "business-minded people" involved in area boards and commissions.

She also said the chamber wants to create customer service boot camp and work with area youth to show them what this area offers for career opportunities.

Up next, speaking on behalf of Charlevoix County was county maintenance director Frank Shaler. Shaler also detailed some of the county's accomplishments for last year and plans for this year.

Among the highlights he pointed to for last year included the installation of a security and alarm system at the county building, heating system upgrades at the sheriff's office, and the construction of a new sheriff's substation building in Boyne Falls. He also pointed to the addition of cardboard compactors at the Boyne City and Charlevoix recycling-drop off centers, a brand new drop off center in Charlevoix and the completion of the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road reconstruction project.

Looking ahead to this year, Shaler said the county is working on constructing a new, multi-use building on Beaver Island that would house offices and equipment for the road commission, transit and sheriff's department. He noted at that the current road commission building, crews have to take the plow off the truck to take it inside to work on it. Shaler also said plans call for lighting upgrades at the Charlevoix senior center, completion of the broadband project and a significant overhaul and upgrades to the Ironton Ferry.

Last up for Friday's event was Charlevoix County Community Foundation President Chip Hansen.

Hansen started of his presentation with, "The state of philanthropy in the county is alive and well."

He added that most people think philanthropy is about giving money, but said it's also about giving of one's time and talent.

"One of the misnomers in our business is that you have to be wealthy to be philanthropic," Hansen added.

Hansen described the community foundation as an organization that "connects donors to causes they care about."

He noted that the organization recently celebrated its 20th anniversary.

"(In that time) I'm guessing all of you have been touched positively in some way by a grant from the foundation," he said.

Hansen said the community foundation has now grown to have 239 separate funds, the combined assets of which just recently exceeded the $25 million mark for the first time.

"We're really excited about that. This is a county of 26,000 people and to have $25 million in assets in 20 years is an amazing accomplishment and a testament to the generosity of the community," Hansen said.

He also noted that the foundation now annually gives out more than $1 million in grants and scholarships and in its lifetime has given out nearly $14 million in grants.

Looking forward, Hansen said the foundation is continuing to implement a strategic plan that it developed two years ago which includes improving internal policies and procedures, community leadership, marketing and promoting philanthropy in the community.

In addition to the five reports given at Friday's event, the chamber has collected reports from more than 40 area organizations and has made those reports available for download from the chamber's website, www.charlevoix.org.

Rayders best Blazers

Charlie Hamilton finished with a game-high 26 points as Charlevoix overcame a sluggish start en route to topping Kalkaska 77-49 Monday in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

Also for the Rayders, 7-2 overall, 5-1 league, Zach Hankins added 19 points and eight rebounds, while Tanner Catt had seven points and eight assists.

Kalkaska, 1-10, 0-7, jumped out to a 25-14 first quarter lead before the Rayders responded to take a 33-27 advatage at halftime. At the end of the third quarter, Charlevoix was in front, 61-41.

"I don't know if it was because of the week and a half layoff, but our energy in the first quarter wasn't there," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "We did a much better job in the second quarter, hence us only giving up two points."

Hamilton finished with four 3-pointers as the Rayder offense got going after a slow start.

"We were able to get out in transition and I'm really proud of the guys for bouncing back," Wood said. "We were able to play a lot of guys and we had a lot of guys who were able to contribute."

For Kalkaska, Michael Dunn finished with 16 points and Caleb Gelinas added 12.

Charlevoix was slated to go to Cedarville on Wednesday, Jan. 30, for a non-league contest, however the game was called off because of bad weather. A make-up date had not been set at press time. The Trojans are ranked No. 3 in the Associated Press Class D state poll.

GIRLS VARSITY BASKETBALL

Rayders can't stop red hot Northmen

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

There would be no letdown from the Petoskey girls' basketball team.

Following an emotional buzzer-beating win over Cadillac on Friday, the Northmen rolled to a 63-32 non-conference victory over Charlevoix Tuesday.

Petoskey, which improves to 12-2 overall, led throughout the game thanks much in part to the play of senior Kelsey Ance, who finished with 16 points, four rebounds and three assists.

"We had an emotional win on Friday, so we just wanted to come out play hard for four quarters," Petoskey coach Adam Dobrowolski said. "We didn't come out sluggish at all. I thought we really came out with great effort, so that's always good to see."

The Northmen — winners of their last nine straight — opened the night with two straight steals in Charlevoix's end, culminating to a 26-2 first quarter lead as Ance contributed eight first quarter points.

"I think its great to see where this program needs to go. It takes hard work and it takes time," said Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw. "I think we're going to get there. It's a stepping stone. The intensity is a different level and the players, everyone is good.

"It's something to keep striding for."

Charlevoix would find the basket in the second quarter, as each team brought in 10 points in the second, making it a 36-12 game at the half.

Petoskey continued to attack the post with their obvious size advantage on the night.

"Most games we're going to look to go get the ball into the low post and go inside out," Dobrowolski said. "We've got some kids that can shoot. So when the teams collapse on our post players, it's going to leave shooters open from the outside."

Petoskey opened the second half with a 12-0 run, making it a 48-12 game. Charlevoix would close out the third on a run of their own, however, bringing in a 9-4 run, ending the third with a 52-21 game.

The Rayders would bring a fight in the fourth, but it wouldn't be enough to overtake the Northmen.

Dobrowolski was pleased with the performance he received, not just from his starters on the night, but the entire team, as well.

"We got a lot of kids in," he said. "That's a big bonus for us, we need to be able to develop our bench for goals of winning our conference and going deep in the state tournament."

Megan Tompkins finished with 11 points, nine rebounds and three blocks for Petoskey, while juniors Kati Lewis and Amanda Stinger each had 10 points.

For Charlevoix, Sydney Carlson led the Rayders with 13 points, while Gabby Gray and Madeline Boss each had five points.

The Northmen have to be able to put this sizable win behind them and quickly move on to gearing up for a Big North race that appears to be down to the wire in the closing weeks.

"We have four conference games left, so we look at those games as big games for us. We really cant overlook anybody, Dobrowolski said. "We've got (Traverse City) Central on Friday. We just have to do a good job practicing this week and get back to it on Friday."

Petoskey also won the JV game, 52-30, as Lily Kingma led the Northmen with 18 points and Taylor Brady and Tilly Koboski each added seven points.

In the freshmen game, Charlevoix defeated Petoskey, 25-24. For Charlevoix, Kylee Scholten had 16 points while Bettie Swenor had eight points and 14 rebounds for Petoskey and Jillian Piotrowski added eight points and four steals.

For the Charlevoix-East Jordan girls, Casey Keane was fourth in GS, 10th slalom; while Cora Taylor was 12th in slalom and 13th in GS.

BOYS JV BASKETBALL

Rayders dominant over Kalkaska

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity basketball team used a mix of tough defense and scoring to jump out to an early lead and never looked back as they rolled past Kalkaska at the Charlevoix High School gym on Monday, 70-38.

The JV squad is now 7-2 overall and 6-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Nick Plude lead the way in scoring for the Rayders with 22 points while Nate Moon had 13 and Austin Putman added 12.

"The Rayders broke away from the Blazers early posting a 20-6 lead by the end of the first quarter and expanded the lead a bit by halftime, leading 36-19. Charlevoix was able to keep increasing its lead, outscoring Kalkaska 18-13 in the third quarter and 16-6 in the fourth.

"We jumped out on them early, frustrating them in our full-court press, causing turnovers and creating havoc," Charlevoix coach Bryan Hawkins said. "Plude was the main benefactor, scoring nine of his 22 in the first quarter. Plude was also dominant in the low post, scoring at will from point blank."

Hawkins noted that the Blazers made a 8-0 run to start the third quarter.

"We quickly adjusted and pushed the game far out of reach, as freshman power forward Austin Putman scored 10 of his 12 points in the third."

"Overall, our front line, interior players were sensational and dominant that night," Hawkins added.

The team had been slated to play at Cedarville on Wednesday, but that game was called off because of bad weather. The team was next slated to play at Boyne City Thursday, Jan. 31 in a JV girls/boys doubleheader.

WRESTLING

Rayders see tough competition at Gaylord tournement

GAYLORD — The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team placed 28th with six points amid some tough competition the 30-team Northern Michigan Championships Saturday, Jan. 26, at Gaylord High School.

Host Gaylord won the tournament with a team score of 140.5 points, while Roscommon was second, 126; followed by St. Ignace, 122.5; West Branch Ogemaw Heights, 116; and Gladstone, 112.

The Northmen finished with 78 points, while Boyne City was 27th with 17 points.

"One of the tough things about a tournament of this size is that we haven't seen many of the schools and because we wrestle a stronger schedule than many of them, our records will get us seeded lower than our ability," Petoskey coach Nate Gross said. "One great thing about this is there are 30 schools and each weight class is going to be tough, placing highly out of 30 competitors is something to be proud of. Every weight class was represented by at least one ranked wrestler, and in most cases two or three."

For Charlevoix, Lucas Prevo, 135, was pinned by Escanaba's Kaleb Rahoi, 1:40; and was pinned by Gaylord's Roger Gordon, 1:21; while at 145, Jake Novotny def. Roscommon's Donald Jernigan, 23-10; fell to Sault Ste. Marie's Steven Kymes, 6-2; and fell to Marquette's Austin Johnson.

At 152, Charlevoix's Sam Hovie fell to Forest Area's Chris Schelske, 10-9; def. Gladstone's Chuck Hughes, 5-4; and fell to Oscoda's Caluh Hopkins, 4-2; while at 160 Mick Hinkle fell to Benzie Central's Tyler Knudsen, 1:06; and was pinned by Sault's Chris Freeborn, 50 seconds. At 171 pounds, Charlevoix's Alex Brown fell to Gladstone's Jake Cronick, 5:57; and lost to Houghton Lake's Jake Barth.

At 215, Devin Largent def. Houghton Lake's Alex Wilcox, 1:28; then fell to Marquette's Joe Iwanicki, 35 seconds; and fell to Elk Rapids' James Mogford, 8-2. At 285, Charlevoix's Spencer Bruce def. Escanaba's Mohamed Hogue, 3-1; fell to St. Ignace's Joe Ostman, 21 seconds, and fell to Sault's Nick Horton, 1:18.

For Boyne City, Mills went 2-2 to place fourth at 145 pounds. Mills pinned Grayling's Michael Phipps, 3:49; pinned Houghton Lake's Logan Dunsmore, 2:24; then fell to Gladstone's Josh Kadish by pin, 3:55; and fell to Petoskey's Strobel via a 3-1 decision.

At 215 for Boyne City, Zach Wandrie went 1-2 as he was pinned by Grayling's Mitchell Thompson, 2:43; lost by technical fall to Oscoda's Donavan Fouchey, 15-0; and was pinned by Sault Ste. Marie's Austin Brown, 1:58.

At 140 pounds, Boyne City's Zach LaDere was pinned by Marquette's Brian Helmer, 5:50.

Special middle school basketball games set for February 13 to fight breast cancer

ANNE KELLY
Courier staff writer

On Wednesday, Feb. 13, Charlevoix Middle School will be hosting a breast cancer fundraising event during the girls' regularly scheduled middle school basketball games. Seventh- and eighth-grade girls on the opposing teams, East Jordan and Charlevoix Middle Schools, will be coming together in competitive matches for a more important outcome than winning or losing — they will be playing in honor of women whom they admire who are fighting breast cancer in their communities. There are a total of 91 players making the combined effort. The evening will benefit local families affected by breast cancer in both Charlevoix and East Jordan.

The pink (Charlevoix) and black (East Jordan) event was the compassionate brainchild of two girls, one on each school's team. Nichole Hart of Charlevoix and Julia Sherman of East Jordan became friends when the girls attended school together in East Jordan.

They are both instilled with the ethic of helping others, according to their mothers, Teresa Hart and Amy Sherman, who have joined forces with their daughters to make the event not only happen, but a success. One of those women the girls want to honor during the event is the Charlevoix Middle School Girls' basketball team coach, Amy Putnam, who has been an inspiration to the girls she coaches.

"Someone I respect and care about is fighting breast cancer," Nichole said. "And I just wanted to do something that could show our support. I knew that the whole team, and anyone who knows Mrs. Putnam and others suffering from breast cancer, would get behind this cause."

The East Jordan family has also been affected, and Julia was moved to action for similar reasons.

"Although I only know one person with breast cancer, I know there are many that I do not know," Julia said. "My wish is to contribute my time and

Alaska: California or bust

MORGAN SHERBURNE
NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Maybe it runs in the family. Alaska Dhaseleer, 17, grew up around musicians. So it could be no surprise that the Charlevoix High School senior was one of few students selected this year to attend the Young Americans College in Corona, Calif.

Alaska's parents, Carl and Cornelia Dhaseleer, own the Dhaseleer Events Barn in Charlevoix, and host the Black Cat Concert Series.

"I realized at age 10 that singing was something I like to do," Alaska said.

She started singing lessons. Now, in addition to performing with the high school performing arts program, Alaska does some a cappella performances on her own.

During the summer of 2012, Alaska attended a summer camp that the Young Americans coordinated at Harbor Springs High School. At the end of the camp was an audition. A select few would be offered positions at the Young Americans College.

"They only accept 150 students a year," said Alaska. "It's really small."

The Young Americans tour all over the country and to countries such as Germany and Japan. The performers present concerts and musicals that promote "understanding and goodwill among people throughout the world through music, dance, performance, academic education and cultural interaction among student members and their audiences," according to the organization's website.

"I found out that I got in about a month ago," said Alaska. "I got a letter about a month ago. I was just sitting on the couch — it was so nerve-wracking. My parents were in shock. We were excited."

Alaska will be learning voice, acting and dance through the program, and she has two options in attending college through Young Americans. She can either remain in the area and take college credits at North Central Michigan College, or she can attend a two-year program at the Young Americans College in California. Alaska is still making the decision about whether to stay in Northern Michigan or attend the California college. She has plans to visit Corona in the spring.

Alaska does have some years of performance under her belt. She has performed with the Charlevoix per-

City sets deadlines for recall election

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Local election officials have recently nailed down some important dates for anyone interested in throwing his or her hat into the ring for the upcoming Charlevoix City Council recall election.

Last week the third of three petitions seeking to prompt recall elections against councilmembers Jill Picha, Dennis Kusina, and Bryan Vollmer was turned in to the Charlevoix County Clerk's office. The signatures on the petitions have been verified by county and city officials as sufficient to prompt all three recall elections, which will take place on Tuesday, May 7.

Legislation signed by Gov. Rick Snyder in late December has changed the nature of recall elections in Michigan. Previously a recall election simply asked voters if they wanted a particular elected official removed from office.

Recycling debate continues

Contract decision still up in the air as county tries to untangle information

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Nearly four months since a decision was expected, Charlevoix County continues to struggle to decide what company it will use to haul and process material from its recycling facilities.

The county is currently considering contracting services with either Emmet County Recycling or American Waste, a private company based in Kalkaska.

The opportunity to combine hauling and processing together came to the attention of recycling committee members in November. The county's contract with American Waste for hauling was coming to an end and so bids were sought to find a company to provide the service. By the time of the bid deadline, the county had received only one bid from American Waste and it was higher than anticipated.

American Waste also included a bid for both hauling and processing, rather than just hauling, at a better price.

The recycling committee decided that to be fair it should get bids from all entities interested in performing either just hauling, or both hauling and processing and a second round of bids was opened at the end of November.

Rather than just one response, the committee received proposals from four companies. Two companies offered options for both hauling and processing together: American Waste and Emmet County. Two others offered bids for hauling only: Waste Management and Republic Services.

All options offered a cost savings over 2012 for the county's recycling program.

American Waste bid $180,000 and Emmet County bid just under $183,000 for a comparable amount of work in one year.

If the bid is awarded to Emmet County, three new recycling bins would need to be purchased, at a cost of $20,000.

Charlevoix County is currently in year three of a five-year recycling processing contract with Emmet County Recycling. There is a provision in the contract that either party can end the agreement with 60 days written notice.

The Charlevoix County Recycling Committee analyzed the bids and, after a special meeting on Dec. 5, recommended that the board of commissioners award both the new processing and hauling contracts to Emmet County Recycling.

Next, the buildings and grounds committee took up the question in the beginning of January.

Currently, that committee has passed the issue on to a subcommittee made up of Larry Sullivan, county commissioner; Frank Shaler, maintenance supervisor; and Kevin Shephard, human resources coordinator to make a recommendation.

Once the buildings and grounds committee is able to agree on a recommendation, it will be sent on to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners for a final decision on who will be awarded the contract.

The cost

The American Waste hauling and processing bid under consideration is for a 10 year contract.

While it is true that the first two years of the contract would cost only $360,000, the company will charge a consumer price index increase of three percent each year of the contract.

"In year two, the AW bid is already higher than ours and it goes up from there," states an Emmet County Recycling press release, prepared by Katherine Melby, communications coordinator. "Our offer is for a two year contract, as specified in Charlevoix County's request for proposals."

Emmet County's bid, it continues, is so much lower than American Waste's, after factoring in the consumer price index increase, that the savings would "rapidly" cover the $20,000 cost of hauling bins.

"Further, the Recycling Committee has stated that they want to own all their own bins to maintain local control. They stated explicitly in the request for proposals that they would provide the bins and they have budgeted to purchase them," states the release.

American Waste sees the numbers differently, according to Mark Bevelhymer, its general manager. He believes the bid his company made would cost the county less than the bid made by Emmet County Recycling.

If the cost of the recycling bins is included, he said, the total cost for service from Emmet County for two years would be about $444,000.

The estimate for the first two years of service from American Waste is $360,000. That means, he said, for that two year period, American Waste would save the county about $85,000.

The contract is for 10 years though, Bevelhymer admitted, with a 3 percent increase each year after the first.

But, he added, the current contract between Emmet and Charlevoix counties includes a provision that allows the cost of processing to change at any time, which could mean an unexpected increase. Or, he said, when the current contract ends in three years, prices could go up and the service may cost more when bid on in the future.

Comparison of services

Emmet County Recycling emphasizes that it markets processed recyclable materials to industries within the region.

American Waste argues that its single stream processing method is superior and would offer a better, easier method of recycling to county residents.

Emmet County offers a two-bin processing system where paper and containers are collected separately, rather than a single-stream system.

It does so, according to information released by the county recycling department, because factories in northern Lower

A subcommittee tasked with crunching numbers and coming up with a solution for who Charlevoix County should contract with for hauling and processing recyclables did not come up with a uniform suggestion Tuesday.

The subcommittee was made up of county commissioner Larry Sullivan, human resources coordinator Kevin Shepard and maintenance supervisor Frank Shaler. Shaler was absent.

When the county's recycling committee put out a request for bids in November, it received proposals from four companies. Two companies offered options for both hauling and processing together: American Waste and Emmet County. Two others offered bids for hauling only: Waste Management and Republic Services.

All options offered a cost savings over 2012 for the county's recycling program, but those offering both services combined offered the most savings.

American Waste bid $180,000 and Emmet County bid just under $183,000 for a comparable amount of work in one year. American Waste's contract would be for 10 years with a 3 percent increase in cost each year and the Emmet County contract would be for two years, without increases.

If the bid is awarded to Emmet County, three new recycling bins would need to be purchased, at a cost of $20,000.

Charlevoix County is currently in year three of a five-year recycling processing contract with Emmet County Recycling. There is a provision in the contract that either party can end the agreement with 60 days written notice.

> "It's important, if I'm going to spend that kind of money, that I own it."
> — Todd Wyett, Charlevoix

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday voted to sell off a small parcel of land (with many strings attached) and to allow a paddle sports business to operate at two of the city's beaches.

In the land sale matter, the council voted 4-1 to approve the sale of a 0.68 acre parcel of property at the corner of Mercer Boulevard and Dixon Avenue to Todd Wyett for the sum of $4,000.

Council member Bryan Vollmer cast the lone dissenting vote and council member Lyle Gennett was absent from the meeting.

The sale comes with a number of strings attached, including the city is granted a broad blanket easement to access its underground utilities on the property. The agreement goes on to state that if the city had to disturb or damage any landscaping or fencing on the property to do utility work, Wyett, not the city would be responsible to pay to restore the site. (The last provision regarding paying for restoring the property is not typical of easement agreements, but Wyett offered the arrangement during earlier discussion on the matter with city officials.)

The sale grew out of a request by Wyett to spruce up the small triangle of land, which is adjacent to his property, with some landscaping

Actually Wyett used to own the land in question.

Back in 2008, as part of a project to reconfigure Mercer Boulevard, he swapped the triangular piece of property that he now seeks to landscape for a same-size swath of land where a portion of the street used to be.

Originally city staff had recommended granting Wyett a revocable license to landscape the property rather than sell the property. However, Wyett said he prefers to own the property and give the city an essentially carte blanche easement because he feels if he's going to spend many thousands on the landscaping, the ownership option offers him a bit more protection.

"It's important, if I'm going to spend that kind of money, that I own it," Wyett told the council in November.

Ultimately, the consensus of the council in November was to direct city attorney Jim Young to draft a sale agreement with the broad easement language as proposed by Wyett for their consideration

At Monday's meeting, city manager Rob Straebel cautioned the council that by selling the property the city would give up its rights to control the future of the trees on the lot. Wyett said right now he plans to take down only one tree on the lot that is diseased and would only take more down if their condition deteriorated over the years. Most of the council members present said they were not concerned about the future of the trees on the site.

Prior to casting the lone "no" vote, Vollmer said he didn't see the need for the property sale.

The council also unanimously approved a request from Jack and Bill Schulman, owners of Schulman Paddleworks to operate a mobile kayak and paddleboard rental business at the city's Ferry Beach and Depot Beach.

The Schulmans are the former owners and operators of the now-closed Camp Sea-Gull located in Hayes Township off Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

Under the agreement, the Schulman Paddleworks will have to purchase two business licenses from the city. They will be allowed to rent paddleboards and kayaks at the south end of Depot Beach (to avoid interference with the Lake Charlevoix Mariners' boats) and the north end of Ferry Beach. They will remove all equipment from the area at the end of the day (around 5 p.m.); and will name the city as co-insured on a $1 million liability insurance policy. The agreement also requires the business to have its patrons sign a release of liability form and comply with city zoning requirements.

Man injured on Marion Center Road

An East Jordan man was injured in a two-vehicle traffic crash south of Charlevoix on Sunday, Feb. 3.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured man as Derek Williams, 20. Williams was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was treated for non-life-threatening injuries, sheriff's officials said.

Deputies said the crash happened at about 6:15 a.m. on Marion Center Road near Phelps Road in Marion Township.

Authorities said Williams was driving west on Phelps Road when he failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection and his vehicle slid into Marion Center Road striking a north-bound minivan driven by Ralph Corwin, 60, of Ellsworth.

No other injuries were reported.

Snow days nearing limit

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Area schools are nearing the limit of snow days that can automatically be counted as attendance days.

According to the Michigan Pupil Accounting manual, the first six days before April 1 that are missed for inclement weather or other circumstances beyond a school district's control are counted as if the school were in session.

Michigan schools must have a minimum of 170 school days and 1,098 hours to receive full funding.

If more than six days are missed before April 1, districts need to reschedule to recoup the lost time, or take a deduction in their funding. If schools miss more than six days, but the days in excess of six occur after April 1, when there is limited time for a school to reschedule, the district may ask the Superintendent of Public Instruction for a waiver to count the days

You've come a long way, Charlevoix

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

"Kiwanis is a global organization of volunteers dedicated to changing the world one child, one community at a time."

Twenty five years ago this week I was invited by my then boss, Vane Smith, to join our local Kiwanis Club. It really doesn't seem that long ago but then again I'm 25 years older and as you mature, the years fly by quicker than a seagull in search of a hand out.

The year was 1987 and Kiwanis International made history with their majority vote to open its men-only club to women. With this overwhelming support, 8,000 clubs around the world opened their doors to the fairer sex. When I joined the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, I landed squarely on my feet ready to be an active member. However, some of the club's members left the organization expressing their opinion that women should not be allowed to participate.

When I reflect on all of this, it's hard to believe that I was asked not to show up at other area clubs because women were not allowed. I'm a far cry from Rosa Parks, but the taste in my mouth was bitter whenever this occurred. Our little-but-mighty club continued on supporting the process of inviting women to join and giving them the opportunity to learn and grow as they attained various offices. We opened our program to area schools so youth would have the opportunity to be involved in their school and community without being voted in by popularity but only by their desire to help others.

The opportunities to become involved through Kiwanis were many, but what impressed me most was the Kiwanis Club philosophy of guiding energetic individuals to provide the best service possible to the community and worldwide. New clubs were established under the umbrella of this Charlevoix club. Two of the most active are the Aktion Club which is an exceptional group of adults with disabilities who are involved with helping others in our community. Another is the Builders Club at the middle school which involves young students who are guided in the procedures of running a meeting and then following through with actions they determine that will best help others.

Some of our club's most dynamic members have passed on, but their progressive ideas are still being put into action. The club continues to support our area youth including Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts and Girl Scouts. There is the weekly reading to children in the Head Start program, offering of scholarships to graduating seniors, assisting students with special needs to learn how to ride a horse, providing items for children who are hospitalized and even tackling worldwide issues affecting children. We, as a group, also recognize others for their good deeds that do so much for others while not expecting anything in return.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club is well known for their signature dish of kielbasa and kraut which is served to hungry festival attendees. And even though this Polish female did not determine our signature food for fundraising, it was a great choice. I am forever grateful this small town of Charlevoix was open-minded enough to ask me to join. The very first Kiwanis Club was organized in my birthplace of Detroit in 1915. It feels good knowing this Detroit girl laid claim to being one its first female club members and first woman club president's as well. Though some individuals feel this small town is very conservative, this message reminds us we've come a long way, baby.

Reader questions Ironton Ferry decisions

Editor:

I read with interest the article about the Ironton Ferry. While I respect the board members, I have reservations concerning their untimely decisions.

I wonder why they did not start last summer, knowing that this was the year to haul the ferry out for inspection, to have the drawings ready and submitted to the U.S. Coast Guard for approval?

I wonder why they didn't have the contractors lined up?

Eveline Township lies on both ends of the ferry, yet there is no representation. The three board members don't seem to understand that the ferry is vital to the members of the township during the summer months. Each time the ferry is hauled out for inspection, it seems to take many days for it to get back onto schedule because of minor mechanical problems.

Their decisions seem to be made without proper planning or consideration to the timing of the proposed changes.

Sincerely,
Barry Wood

Violence in movies is desensitizing us to real violence

Editor:

We are awash in violence. I think our society is steadily becoming more accepting and partially immune to violence. As a senior citizen, I can compare the level of violence portrayed in movies years ago to the level seen when I go to the movies today. The violence portrayed today is much greater.

Furthermore, I am convinced that the violence in our present day movies leads to an acceptance of violence in our society. Violence in movies "enables" violence in our lives. The movie makers say, "no, no; we are only mirroring the violence already present in our society." The movie makers seem to demand proof that an individual person's violent action is produced by violent movies, before they will reduce their use of violence. This is like the excuse used years ago by the tobacco companies in dealing with lung cancer.

I think it is true that, for most of us, watching violent movies is addictive — meaning that, gradually, as we watch violent movies, we become hardened to the violence and thus need more violence in the next movie to feel excited. The movie makers and theater owners see this tendency in us as proving "violence sells."

Since the movie makers and theater owners are mostly influenced by money making, you and I must act on our own. We must help ourselves by avoiding violent movies. This isn't easy, because the movie industry rating system deliberately de-emphasizes the violent content. Parents of children are especially handicapped in choosing and recommending movies.

If you have access to the internet, go to www.kids-in-mind.com. This is a free, independent, impartial, movie rating service which lets you know (quantifies) the amount of sex, violence, and cursing, in a movie, before you plunk down your admission money.

City clerk speaks out on recall election

Editor:

With great consideration I have made the decision to endorse the currently seated Charlevoix City Council members Dennis Kusina, Bryan Vollmer, and Jill Picha in the upcoming recall election. I have found myself in a difficult position. Since taking the office of clerk, I have never publicly endorsed any candidates or taken a side in any election. However, to remain silent in this situation endorses a lie. I have previously stated that there was no Open Meetings Act violation at the Aug. 9, 2012 meeting. I stand by this statement. If there had been a violation at any publicly posted meeting of council, the responsibility would lie solely with me. At the end of the day, this is an action by a group of people who were unhappy about a single decision that, like it or not, city council was well within their power to make. It is an effort to bully the council into submission. As a mother of 12-year-olds, I cannot sit idly by and silently condone bullying by not speaking out against it.

As for the accusations that council is not listening to their constituents: Council halted construction on the fireplace. This was a decision they were in their power to make. The fireplace could have been done in October. In pausing to reevaluate the project when there was no need to do so, council is listening. Now council is being accused of dragging their feet. The truth is, many people aren't talking to council members, or even to me. They are listening to public rumor on the street, much of which is not factual.

I would like to apologize to the donor. As far as I'm aware no one at city hall or on council knows who you are. I would like to thank you for thinking of the City of Charlevoix with a gracious gift. The fireplace, in any form, would not affect how I use the park. I go in the park — I do not merely sit in my car or look at it from shop windows. My daughter Grace would like you to know that she thinks the fireplace is a cool idea and she hopes it gets built.

I would like to apologize to John Winn. When I was a kid, a good portion of Round Lake was broken down, nasty old wharfs. For people to say they love the new East Park and then make disparaging remarks about Mr. Winn is ironic. Mr. Winn's efforts were instrumental in completing the new marina and East Park. Mr. Winn also was influential in many other city park projects. He not only contributes his own money, but has the ability to convince others to contribute to these projects as well. His efforts have allowed the city to do some lovely things that we normally would not have been able to do.

I am embarrassed and humiliated by the way some people of this city have acted over this. It's a fireplace, not the Great Wall of China. If we don't like it or decide it's too expensive or no one's using it, we could take it down in a few years. Heaven forbid we try something new. There is absolutely nothing to do here in the winter evenings and there seems to be no desire to change that.

Finally, the reason given for the recalls was not the fireplace, it was an alleged violation of the Open Meetings Act at a posted city meeting – my responsibility. I take the signatures of more than 10 percent of the registered voters to these petitions as a vote of no confidence in my capabilities as clerk. My term will expire Dec. 31, 2013. Based on public input, I do not intend to seek another term.

These two wooden buildings were constructed in the downtown area around 1870 somewhere north of Clinton Street because at that time everything south of Clinton was still untouched woods. Charlevoix County had been reorganized the year before and these were the first county courthouse, at left, and jail when Charlevoix was chosen as the first county seat, a position not finalized until 1897. Judge J. G. Ramsdell came up from Traverse City to provide over the first court session. So many curious spectators jammed into the little room that the floor collapsed. It was less than two feet above the ground so no one was hurt. A new courthouse was constructed for $5,865 in 1884 on the site of the present one, at Antrim and State Streets. Businesswoman Martha Ayers bought the buildings in the 1890s soon after she arrived in town and moved them a block west where a family lived in the former courthouse and the jail building became a garage.

Setting the school stage

Group seeks to find more ways to use high school auditorium

Charlevoix High School Auditorium committee members (from left) Evalyn Wujcik, Tom Eggers, Gary Stutzman and Richard Hogdson stand in the upper lavel of tha auditorium seats. The committee is working to find ways to get more use out of the facility. (Committee mambers Bob Gandron and Tom Rasmussen are missing from the photo.)

A few Charlevoix-area residents are putting their heads together to look for ways to get more use out of the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

"The Charlevoix High School auditorium has been the topic of many conversations from the time it was just a dream of Connie Ford, former performing arts instructor in Charlevoix, up to the present. When it was built, the purpose was to provide Charlevoix with a state of the art facility to accommodate not only the high school arts programs but to also reach out to the community and surrounding areas. The original intent was to provide a venue with unlimited potential that could be utilized by many different groups, and open up opportunity for growth of the arts in the Charlevoix area," group members wrote in a recent news release.

However, they noted that because of the unforeseen expense in maintaining the facility, the auditorium has experienced limited usage for the past few years. They pointed to many of the "behind-the-scenes" activities that can cause costs to rise, including staging, lighting, sound and other technical operations. These facilities require trained personnel to operate and constant maintenance.

When Charlevoix Schools' Superintendent Bob Gendron came to work in the school district last year, he observed that the auditorium was sitting idle a lot of the time and began an inquiry into the issues of the facility.

As a result, Gendron has set up an advisory committee to explore increasing usage of the auditorium. The committee members are, Tom Eggers, Bob Gendron, Rich Hodgson, Tom Rasmussen, Gary Stutzman, and Evelyn Wujcik. All of the people on the committee have varying degrees of expertise in the arts, plus a particular interest in seeing the auditorium used to its maximum potential.

The goals for the auditorium that have been developed by the committee are:

— Increase options for students to learn about and participate in performing arts.

— Increase usage revenue to fund upgrades and maintenance.

— Increase performing arts and entertainment options available to the public and/or local organizations. Options considered include music, educational presentations, comedy, and talent shows.

— Provide performing arts sponsorship opportunities to local businesses, individuals, and organizations.

To kick off this effort, the group is planning to host a variety show involving members of the community on March 23 at the Charlevoix Performing Arts Center (auditorium).

More specifics on the event are currently being worked out. In the meantime, the committee is seeking a variety of acts for amateur performances. For those who would like to participate the event, please contact any member of the committee.

The group is also working on pursuing other performances for a seasonal arts series.

Charlevoix County will pay for the construction of this nearly $1.5 million garage on Baavar Island which would house road commission, sheriff's dapartment and transportation authority vahicles and offices.

County will pay for Beaver Island garage construction

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County will foot the entire bill for a nearly $1.5 million garage on Beaver Island to house road commission, sheriff's department and transportation authority vehicles and offices.

In addition to the cost to construct the building, the county will purchase a piece of property on the island on which to place it.

In a 4-2 vote on Wednesday at a special joint meeting with the county road commission, the board of commissioners agreed the county would pay for and own the building and property. Commissioners Chris Christensen and Larry Sullivan opposed the motion.

The road commission is its own legal entity, with its own funding sources. The sheriff's department and transit authority are departments of the county.

Because the road commission and county are separate entities, the county will draw up a long-term lease agreement with the road commission for its use of the garage.

Current plans for the building show it heated and containing room for three plow trucks, one loader, one grader, five to six pickup truck-sized vehicles, two sheriff's cars, a snowmobile with trailer, 24-foot boat, ATV, two transit vans, office space, an evidence room, two holding cells, interview room, maintenance area, bathroom and storage space. Additionally, a small salt storage building would be separate from the main building.

Christensen repeatedly expressed concern about the amount of money the county would have to invest in the facility.

He's had people tell him they thought the price of the garage was too high, responded road commission manager Pat Harmon.

"I'm here to tell you there is no fluff in this building. It meets the current needs of the road commission," he said. "We can't, in my opinion, spend a quarter of a million dollars on a grader ... And leave it set outdoors."

And the road commission, he said, does not have the funds to construct a building itself.

"We have to look at it from a risk management standpoint," said Jill Drury, manager of the transit service. Her department is unable to have a mechanic on the island fix vehicles that break down in the winter because there is no garage in which to do it. Also, during the winter months, she said, it isn't possible to transport the vehicles themselves over to the mainland for repairs.

"What you have before us will meet our bare-boned needs," said Sheriff Don Schneider.

"We have the opportunity right now to build a building that could house three entities for a very long time," added commissioner Ron Reinhardt. "I think the county should own the building."

In the coming months, the county's civil council will draw up a lease agreement between the road commission and county and the buildings and grounds committee will work to find a piece of property to purchase on Beaver Island.

John Delbert Belfy, 91

John Delbert Belfy, 91, of Charlevoix, died Monday, Jan. 28, 2013, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan from natural causes.

Delbert, as he liked to be called, was born on Jan. 30, 1921, on Beaver Island, the son of William and Alice (Johnson) Belfy. He graduated from Beaver Island High School in 1939.

He fished for his father and cut wood before he enlisted in the Merchant Marines when he was 19. He sailed all over the world hauling ammunition and bombs on the ammunition ships during World War II. He was as a lieutenant and served the country from 1940-1949.

On Dec. 27, 1947, in Detroit, John married Audrey Jean Williamson.

After serving in the Merchant Marines, he worked in construction in Detroit. Eventually he started his own company with a partner. He was most proud of building the Penguin building at the Detroit Zoo. He built firehouses, schools and churches. He sold his business and retired at the age of 50 and moved to Charlevoix where he built his home. Not one to sit around, he built homes in and around Charlevoix and did many remodels.

John is survived by his wife of 65 years, Audrey Jean Belfy, of Charlevoix; five children, Lois Cummings (Virgil, husband) of Harrison Township, Mich., Sharon Hays of Harrison Township, Mich., John W. Belfy (Debbie, wife) of Santa Maria, Calif., Ron Belfy (Ruth, wife) of Charlevoix, William Belfy (Lori, wife) of Orange County, Calif., 11 grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren.

John Gordon Mills, of Lowell, passed away peacefully Jan. 29, 2013, in Grand Rapids, at the age of 80 years.

He was born on March 30, 1932, in Detroit, to the late Arthur and Violet Mills, and baptized into the Christian faith in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada.

The family moved from Utica to Antrim County in 1968, where John was employed by Bellaire Log Homes. He went on to teach industrial arts for Charlevoix Public Schools for 18 years.

A gifted builder, he was always working on projects that ranged from houses and boats, to furniture and wooden toys for his 15 grandchildren. An active member of St. Matthews Lutheran Church of Mancelona, John served as an elder and leader for many years. He also served with the Boy Scouts, and as a volunteer on mission journeys to the Canadian interior.

Ann Hite Bisbee, 88

Ann Hite Bisbee, 88, died at Charlevoix Area Hospital on Feb. 3, 2013 following a sudden, massive brain hemorrhage.

Born (Gloria) Ann Dawson on July 2, 1924, in Hancock, Mich. Ann and her parents, Theodore and Hazel Dawson, moved to Lansing in 1926. Ann graduated from Lansing Central High School, enrolled in Michigan State College and studied there until her marriage to high school classmate, Duane L. Miller who was serving the U.S. Navy. The couple moved several times, had a son, Michael Dawson Miller, and settled in Saginaw.

When the war ended, Ann and her husband, divorced and she and son Michael moved to Birmingham. While at that residence, Ann began her many years of involvement in community service. She was a volunteer at Community House and soon was hired as a full time employee. Ann described "The House with a Heart" as a wonderful place to work and meet people.

Eventually Ann and son Michael returned to Lansing, where she worked several jobs and finally landed a position as a reporter for The Lansing State Journal — a most happy career move as Ann had majored in journalism at Michigan State.

Beginning in early childhood, Ann summered in rental cottages on the south arm of Lake Charlevoix with her parents and brother, Robert. Within a few years, the family found a "dream cottage" with a wood stove and no running water on the same South Arm. The Dawsons renovated and modernized. That cottage, with a second major overhaul, became Ann's permanent home where she lived for almost two decades before her death.

Well known, with a wide circle of friends, Ann, in 1957, married East Jordan pharmacist, Jay M. Hite. The couple's daughter, Melissa Ann Hite was born in Petoskey's Burns Clinic.

Ann and Jay were married 35 years. After his death in 1992, she was married to Leland S. Bisbee of Jackson, Mich. and they settled in his Belvedere summer home. His death, a brief 14 months later, prompted Ann to return to her beloved South Arm cottage.

Over the years, Ann was recognized as a tireless contributor to East Jordan, Charlevoix and nearby communities. She served on the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce, East Jordan School Board, the Library Board and the Elm Point Commission. She was president of the Charlevoix County Jury Commission, vice chair of the local Republican Party, a Cub Scout den mother and Girl Scout leader. Ann spent 20 years on the Charlevoix County Jury Board, first appointed by Governor Milliken. She was president, vice president and secretary of the board.

Ann was appointed to the East Jordan commission to aid in rewriting the city charter, serving as its secretary. She was appointed a member of the first Charlevoix Hospital Foundation Board and served as chairman of the Community Relations Board.

Though highly dedicated to government and community projects, Ann was very much a devout and active member of Christ Episcopal Church, Charlevoix. As she said several times, "I've been involved in every aspect of the church, except singing in the choir."

For many years Ann has been visible working in the Charlevoix Hospital gift shop and Charlevoix's Rainbow Shoppe.

Ann Bisbee's amazing gift, however, was her outstanding good humor and sunny disposition. All those who knew her are blessed with happy memories. Her spontaneous laughter was a signature of her caring and generous personality. A mark of her popularity included membership in Kappa Alpha Theta while at Michigan State, a Lansing Junior League member and here in northern Michigan, she belonged to book clubs, bridge clubs and breakfast clubs, to name just a few.

Ann Bisbee's survivors include her two children, Michael D. Miller (Alice Pletz) of East Jordan, Melissa A. Hite (Christopher Lorien) of Canton, Mich., grandson Kevin D. Miller (Marcy Paisley) Boulder, Colo. and their two sons, Dawson Maclean Miller and Wyatt Thompson Miller.

Also surviving are her nephew John Robert Dawson (Judy) and two children, nephew Spencer Dawson, and nieces Leah Dawson and Laura Ann Dawson with two children, and niece Elizabeth Jacobs (Jon) and two sons.

Bisbee survivors include: Patrice B. King, Leland S. Bisbee III, Clark E. Bisbee, Margaret B. Hermann and Constance B. Amend.

Ann was predeceased by her parents, her brother John Robert Dawson, sisters-in-law Clarice Carr and Sarah Ludders and a nephew, David Leland Dawson.

A memorial service will take place at 11 a.m. on Monday, Feb. 11, 2013, in Christ Episcopal Church, Charlevoix.

A Celebration of Life memorial service will take place in Charlevoix this summer. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations in Ann's name to Charlevoix Area Hospital or The Rainbow Shoppe of Charlevoix. The family was served by the Penzien Funeral Homes, Inc. in East Jordan.

Blessed are we, indeed, who shared life with this remarkable lady.

Hospital, cardiologists to host heart care clinics

Charlevoix area patients will now have access to additional sources of heart care close to home as the result of a new collaboration between Charlevoix Area Hospital and cardiologists of Traverse Heart & Vascular, a service of Munson Medical Center.

Charlevoix Area Hospital CEO Lyn Jenks said a clinic has been established within the hospital for cardiologists Anthony B. Ochoa, M.D., and Nicklaus K. Slocum, M.D., to see patients two to three times a month. The first clinic was Monday, Feb. 4.

Traverse Heart & Vascular President Dino Recchia, M.D., said Drs. Slocum and Ochoa "look forward to providing local, quality heart and vascular care for patients in the Charlevoix area. Charlevoix Area Hospital offers excellent facilities for initial diagnostics and testing, as well as cardiac rehabilitation," he said.

In a news release, Charlevoix Area Hospital officials said through the partnership with Traverse Heart & Vascular and Munson Medical Center, Charlevoix Area Hospital now provides heart care equal to the nation's best institutions. Charlevoix Area Hospital officials noted Munson's heart program has received consistent national recognition for quality, including being named one of the 50 Top Cardiovascular Hospitals in 2011 for superior clinical and operational performance, and among the 100 Top Cardiovascular Hospitals six times in recent years.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is located at 14700 Lakeshore Dr. in Charlevoix. For more information on the clinic, call Traverse Heart & Vascular at (800) 637-4033.

Rebecca Lessard and her birds of prey from Wings of Wonder will be featured at the Charlevoix Public Library's family night event at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 13.

Participants will not only see the live raptor ambassadors from Wings of Wonder, they will also learn fascinating facts about the raptors native to Michigan.

Wings of Wonder is a nonprofit raptor sanctuary located in Empire. Active since 1990, its primary mission is education, fostering appreciation, understanding, honor and respect for raptors as well as the important role these birds play in healthy ecosystems. Wings of Wonder is also a rehabilitation and release center for injured or orphaned raptors.

Because of the nature of the birds, the program is open to children ages 5 and up. This event is sponsored by St. Marys Cement of Charlevoix.

Sandy Hook prompts school's security check

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

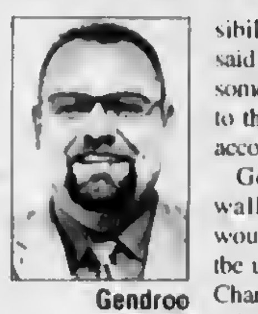
Though the school district regularly conducts safety audits, the Charlevoix School District recently met with law enforcement authorities to further batten down the hatches after December's school shooting in Connecticut.

The school's' building and grounds committee, which consists of Kevin Pearsall, Mike Pearsall and Glen Catt, met with Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider, school liaison officer Rob Scholey, Charlevoix undersheriff Chuck Vondra, City of Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan and Dennis Halverson, the Charlevoix-Emmet County Intermediate School District safety coordinator.

The group's primary concern was the building's entrances, said district superintendent Robert Gendron.

"Our primary concern was our entrances," said Gendron. "We're interested in controlling the flow of traffic."

Currently, one set of doors in each school is totally unlocked. Gendron is looking to change that. Instead, the district will require the outside set of doors to be upen, while the interior doors will remain locked. Visitors to the school will have to identify themselves to a school secretary, then be buzzed into the school.



Gendroo

Staff will also start wearing name badges with critical information printed on back, and visitors will also be required to wear a name badge.

"We want everyone visiting the school to have to funnel past the office," said Gendron.

Right now, the only school in which visitors can sidestep the office is the elementary school. But immediately after the Sandy Hook incident, Gendron had a temporary gate installed that funnels visitors past the main office.

Schneider said this type of action is most important in securing students' safety.

"We were all in agreement: we needed to restrict the accessibility of people coming in," said Schneider. "That will take some brick-and-mortar changes to the schools in most cases to accomplish that."

Gendron plans to have a wall constructed soon that would permanently close off the unsupervised hallway at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

In addition to requiring all who enter the school buildings to pass by the main offices, Gendron wants to keep the school's emergency protocol fresh in his staff's mind.

"We have a crisis response plan posted in every classroom," he said. "I want our emergency procedure to be a living document, not up on a shelf gathering dust."

To that end, Gendron and his staff go through a five-minute emergency situation at the end of every staff meeting.

Law enforcement goes through its own drills, said Schneider. Twice a year, the sheriff's department does "lock-down drills," in which the department creates an emergency situation and test its officers' readiness.

"The theory is, if the school goes into a lock-down, all the teachers immediately take their students, lock the door, turn out the lights and the students are huddled in a safe corner as best they can," said Schneider. "The teachers are not allowed to open the door until an officer or the superintendent comes by."

Too, the sheriff's department and the Charlevoix police department will soon be conducting what's called an "active shooter training" for its officers.

Though no students will take part in the training, emphasized Schneider, some teachers will be present.

"The training goes through how we approach an active shooter in the school," said Schneider. "As a team, we go room to room to learn where the active shooter is, and then take them into custody."

And while locking doors and requiring visitors to pass by an office might not eliminate all threats, Gendron just wants to be prepared.

"We just want to reduce as much risk as we can," he said. "I'd rather take criticism for being prepared than take criticism for reacting."

Conservancy to host February events

The Little Traverse Conservancy will host two events in Charlevoix County in February.

Winter Wildlife Tracking will take place from 10 a.m.-noon on Saturday, Feb. 16 at The Hill Nature Preserve near Boyne City.

Have you ever wondered how animals survive, stay warm, and find food in the winter? Get a glimpse into the winter habits and lives of northern Michigan creatures while exploring the wooded landscape of The Hill Preserve. Participants will attempt to identify and follow tracks. Meet at the new parking lot on Clute Road. There is no charge, but pre-registration is requested by calling (231) 347-0991.

A moonlight snowshoe/ski event will take place from 5-10 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 23 at The Driggers Preserve, located off of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

Join conservancy staff for an evening of moonlight, snow and a warm bonfire. The 1.5 miles of trails at this 75-acre preserve offer wooded pathways and open meadow star gazing. Ski or snowshoe the trails on your own or with a conservancy guide to the top of the hill for a moonlit view of Lake Charlevoix. Hot drinks and snacks will be provided at the bonfire. There is no charge to participate.

Tickets on sale for Zonta event

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club will host its annual Literary Delights — a Michigan Women Authors' Luncheon from 11 a.m.-3p.m. on Saturday, May 18 at the Charlevoix Public Library. Tickets for the event are $40 per person and include a catered lunch and basket raffle drawings.

Three Michigan women authors, Kathleen ("Kathy") Paterka, Amy O'Neill and Suzanne Malpass (Rogers) will be speaking at the event and copies of their books will be available for sale and signing at the event. All of the proceeds of the event go to support projects to advance the status of women locally, nationally and internationally, including the Zonta Club's Sights of Success event, which is a free, day-long event offered to middle school girls to build teamwork, self esteem and confidence.

The featured author for February is Kathleen Paterka. She and her husband, Steve, live in Charlevoix. Kathleen is the author of numerous women's fiction novels embracing universal themes of home, family life and love. Her "James Bay" series is a complete set of four novels: "Fatty Patty," "Home Fires," "Lotto Lucy," and "For I Have Sinned," which revolve around a recurring cast of characters living in the fictional summer resort community of James Bay, Mich. Her latest fiction work, "Royal Secrets," will be published in July 2013. She says she draws inspiration from people and events of every day life. Kathleen is the resident staff writer for Castle Farms, and co-author of the non-fiction book For the Love of a Castle, published in 2012.

For more information or to purchase a ticket for the event, please contact Joy Halverson at 547-4813. Reservations for the event are required.

of commissioners award both the new processing and hauling contracts to Emmet County Recycling.

The recommendation was to pass through the buildings and grounds committee, but has been hung up there since December.

At the subcommittee meeting Tuesday, Sullivan and Shepard attempted to come up with solutions to bring back to that committee, which will make a final recommendation to the county board.

It is important to focus on the actual language of the most recent bid request and not get bogged down with additional information and opinions, Sullivan asserted.

It is clear, he said, that it is a request for hauling bids, that the county would provide the appropriate containers and that it should be for a two year contract.

After reviewing the bids strictly for hauling, he continued, "it appears Emmet County DPW bid lowest."

"In looking at this, I go into it with the perspective that there needs to be integrity in the bid process," he said. "When something goes out to bid, we need to make sure what we get back is reflective of what was in the bid request."

Because the most recent bid request language said it was for hauling services, Sullivan said he believes that the county should either accept the lowest bidder for hauling services, Emmet County, or put the matter out to bid once more, this time explicitly stating its interest in both hauling and processing in the bid request document.

American Waste's proposal for hauling and processing "could reflect some savings for the county," Sullivan said. "However, my position is that the invitation to bid was for a two-year hauling contract."

If the county board decides it is interested in pursuing combining hauling and processing services into one service to be bid on, "Charlevoix County should come to a screeching halt and send out a new invitation to bid for just that," Sullivan said.

That new bid should include several specific items, he added.

He would like to see companies include documentation of where recyclable materials are shipped after they are processed, a cost per pull for each recycling bin from each location in the county, detailed costs for processing, detailed information on material sales for revenue sharing programs and, last, that any contract for processing should not exceed the number of years remaining on the county's current recycling millage.

After Sullivan finished giving his opinion on the matter, Shepard spoke for a short period.

He said he had not yet made a decision on which company's bid he would recommend to the committee, but did say that he believes combining hauling and processing is the way to go.

"I definitely think you have to include processing because that will bring the biggest savings to taxpayers," he said.

It might be a moot point, he continued, to rebid because the two companies that already submitted bids for both are the only companies he knows of in the region to provide both those services.

The specific bid language mentioned by Sullivan if recycling for the county were to go out to big again "is a good thought," he added.

Two members of the county recycling committee attended the meeting and spoke up.

"I was under the understanding you would have a recommendation (today)," said Michelle Hewitt. "We would like to have some basis on where we can go with this. It keeps getting delayed."

By next week's buildings and grounds committee, he will have a recommendation, said Shepard.

"The recycling committee made a recommendation. We did our due diligence on this and that's why you have us," said Nancy Ferguson. "Then Richie (commissioner Richard Gillespie) decides to appoint a subcommittee of people who don't know enough about it ... This has been kicked down the road enough times."

He understands it has been delayed too long, said Sullivan. "But I'm very concerned about the bid process."

"I'm concerned, and the recycling committee is concerned, with breaking a contract ... We feel like it's setting a precedent," Ferguson said referring to the existing processing contract between Emmet County and Charlevoix County. "Someone encouraged American Waste to go for processing before that contract was up. That's it, the timing was off."

The Charlevoix County Buildings and Grounds Committee will meet at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 13, in the county commissioner chambers.

RECYCLE

Michigan "require clean materials."

"Our materials are sought after by factories in the region and they give us top dollar for them, bringing far more money back to the recycling system. This in turn maximizes the revenue sharing dollars our partner communities receive, and helps keep recycling a bargain for everyone," states the Emmet County press release.

"Single-stream recycling is the future for processing recyclables as you can process this material more efficiently and cost effectively than a dual-stream system," countered Bevelhymer.

American Waste's processing facility is located in Traverse City. Recyclables processed there are not sold to factories in the immediate region. They do stay in the Midwest though.

"There's not a big enough market in this area for our material, especially our paper," Bevelhymer said.

Using its single-stream processing system, he said, American Waste can offer to recycle more items than Emmet County Recycling including styrofoam, plastic buckets, plastic toys, plastic furniture, small scrap metal, gift wrapping paper, colored office paper and manilla envelopes.

"Everything we as consumers generate is recyclable, or it should be," he said. "Emmet County has a great program, but the program that we offer will be able to offer added recycling of items to residents of the county."

Other factors

The five-year processing contract currently in place between the two counties is important to Emmet County because its new recycle processing facility was designed and staffed to accommodate large quantities of recyclables from Charlevoix County, according to Melby.

The Emmet County facility is designed to be a multi-county operation, allowing multiple small-population counties to put their recyclables together to achieve economies of scale in processing and to have a strong presence in the markets that purchase their recyclables.

The volume of recyclables that Charlevoix County Recycling contributes to the pool is second only to Emmet County's. Cheboygan and Presque Isle counties also contribute to the program.

The positive relationship between the counties is another added bonus of maintaining the contract, as pointed out by Emmet County Recycling officials.

"Charlevoix and Emmet counties have a strong, positive history of recycling together. Emmet County Recycling has a strong reputation as a reliable partner, cost-effectively maximizing recycling and supplying local and regional factories," says the release.

American Waste has also made local investments, asserted Bevelhymer.

American Waste has invested over $2 million in its transfer station located in Charlevoix, which generates $31,000 per year in property taxes and provides employment for 16 full-time employees, all of whom are Charlevoix County residents, he said.

American Waste, he noted, sponsors community events such as the Venetian Festival, Apple Fest, Boyne City Fourth of July Festival, East Jordan Freedom Festival and many others. The company is a member of the Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan chambers of commerce.

"We're involved in the community, we pay employees, we pay property taxes, donate to events," he said.

effort to support all those families along their journey ... and help strengthen the awareness of breast cancer."

Both girls, their schools, many parents and other community members have been instrumental in getting the event organized.

Fundraising events include the sale of business-sponsored pink and black T-shirts which depict the breast cancer pink ribbon logo along with other event-specific details: the words "Let's play for a cure together," are printed on the back of the shirts. Players and fans in the stands will be sporting the colors. The T-shirts may be ordered prior to the game. A link to the order form may be found at the websites www.ejps.org and www.rayder.net. These forms can be dropped off at the Charlevoix Middle School or the East Jordan Middle School offices until Monday, Feb. 11. There will also be limited quantities of shirts available for purchase at the door.

Other featured activities on game day will be food available throughout the evening and special performances during half-times and between games. Any spectators who wear a pink or a black shirt will have their name put in drawings throughout the night with special prizes awarded. A printed program will mention supporting business and individuals, as well as messages written in support of breast cancer awareness by those who purchase "Pink Game Sponsor" tickets prior to printing. These tickets will be distributed to families and friends and provide a personal way to offer encouragement to those honored by the event.

Nichole along with her mom and younger brother, Tyler, and Julia, along with her mom, have taken on the project with energy and enthusiasm.

"This may seem like a big undertaking, however, I believe it is very doable," Teresa Hart said. "Charlevoix and East Jordan are both very caring, giving communities...with the support of all involved, I have to believe that it will only create a positive experience for all."

Games start at 4:30 p.m. with the Rayder team, followed by the seventh-grade game and then the eighth-grade game. All proceeds, including admission ticket receipts, will be directed to the fund.

(At press time school officials were considering the possibility of moving the time for the first game up to 4 p.m. Check the school's website for updates.)

If the recall was successful, then a second process would be used to fill the vacancy. However, under the new law both parts of the process take place at the same time. Under the new process, for an elected official to be "recalled" another candidate must file to run against him or her and receive more votes in the recall election.

While the new law sets a narrow window for nominating petitions to be filed for such elections (10 days), it also makes the requirements for a challenger to get his or her name on the ballot easy.

For a person to have his or her name appear on the ballot for the recall election, he or she must be an eligible voter in the ward of the elected official he or she seeks to unseat, and must either file a nominating petition with the city clerk's office or pay a $100 fee in lieu of a petition within 10 days of the clerk's official call for the recall election. The number of signatures needed: Three.

Since the dates for when the 10 day window for filings is determined by the date on which the completed recall petitions were filed with the county clerk's office, the dates are different for each ward.

Here's the breakdown of those dates:

For 2nd Ward (Bryan Vollmert), petitions may be filed from Feb. 22 until 4 p.m. on March 4. For 3rd Ward (Jill Picha), petitions may be filed from March 1 until 4 p.m. on March 11. For 1st Ward (Dennis Kusina), petitions may be filed from March 5 until 4 p.m. on March 14.

All petitions must be turned in to the Charlevoix City Clerk's office, at Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State St.

Under the new law, the elected officials targeted for recall are automatically placed on the ballot unless they notify the clerk that don't want to be on the ballot.

The recall efforts grew out of discontent among some city residents with the council's Aug. 9 decision to approve a proposal to construct a gas-fueled outdoor community fireplace in East Park's Plaza B.

Clerk speaks out, again

Charlevoix City Clerk Carol Ochs has already spoken out once at a city council meeting decrying the ongoing recall effort as misguided. This week she took her case a bit further.

Earlier this week Ochs submitted a letter to the Charlevoix Courier in which she did something unusual for someone about to help oversee an election: She endorsed candidates — specifically, the three current city council members who are the targets the recall election. (Read the complete letter on page A4.)

In her letter Ochs contends that, based on the reasons listed on the recall petitions, she, and not the city council members should be the target of the recalls.

Although all three recall petition sponsors have made it clear that the now-controversial community fireplace project was what prompted their recall efforts, the reason they listed on the petitions they circulated for why they were seeking the recalls was a claim that the council violated the Open Meetings Act when it met on Aug. 9. The claim centers around the fact that the meeting was posted as a joint meeting of the council and the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority board. However, on the day of the meeting, the authority board did not have enough members present to constitute and quorum, and therefore could not (and did not) officially conduct any business. The council, which had all members present, went ahead with its portion of the meeting and ultimately unanimously approved the fireplace project.

Ochs contends, and the city attorney has also opined, that no violation of the open meetings act took place. And if such a violation, did take place, she contends, the responsibility for it would lie with her, not the council.

Ochs concludes her letter noting that she views the fact that about 10 percent of the city's registered voters signed the petitions accusing the council of violating the act as a vote of no-confidence in her as city clerk. She said for that reason, she does not plan to seek re-election when her current term expires on Dec. 31.

Speaking to the Courier on Tuesday, Ochs said she understands that it is unusual for a clerk to endorse candidates in an election that she will oversee. She said she is only doing so because of the unusual circumstances surrounding this election. She said if concerns arose about her overseeing the election process because of her endorsements, she would step aside and allow her deputy clerk or someone from the county clerk's office handle the administrative tasks surrounding the election.

Ochs also added that her plan to not seek re-election in November is "not set in stone." She said she would reconsider the decision if she can be persuaded that the voters do, in fact, have faith in her ability to serve as city clerk.

Thompson also has taught Alaska since Alaska was a young student in the band program at St. Mary's School in Charlevoix.

"I've been excited to watch her grow and mature, and see her doing something with her talents," said Thompson. "The Young Americans is a great opportunity for her and I was very pleased she was selected. She has a beautiful voice and is a wonderful dancer."

Rayder win hard-fought

Team rolls past Kalkaska Tuesday, extends winning streak to four

Charlevoix Rayder and Boyne City Rambler fans who braved the wintry weather to come out and watch their schools' varsity basketball teams square off at the Charlevoix High School gym Friday, Feb. 1, were rewarded for their efforts as they saw two hard-fought, nip-and-tuck games.

After seeing the Lady Rayders fall one point short in a game that came down to the final seconds, fans saw another barn-burner between the two rival schools when the boys' turn came.

This time, the Rayders would prevail as they defeated Boyne City, 56-47, in a Lake Michigan Conference meeting. It was the Rayders' second victory over the Ramblers this season.

Tanner Catt scored a game high 16 points for the Rayders, who improved to 8-2 overall on the season with the win, with a 6-1 mark in conference play. Charlie Hamilton scored 10 points, while Zach Hankins scored eight, with 12 rebounds.

The final score belies how close the game was until the final minutes.

"It was a battle. We had to really, really fight through to the end," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "It was a physical game. Boyne City has been playing real well."

Charlevoix previously played their long-time rival on Dec. 14, when they came away with a 51-40 win, on the road in the Boyne City High School gym.

With an energized home crowd behind them Friday, Charlevoix got off to a 15-14 lead after the first quarter of play.

At the half, the Rayders held the lead once again, this time in a 29-27 game.

Throughout the night, the Rayders battled foul problems, forcing many of their starters to the bench in foul trouble. Wood was pleased with the play of his reserves, however, and knows in the long run, building depth can only help the team.

"We had some guys come off the bench and play well for us," he said. "It was a great game to learn about our team."

The Rayders held a 41-39 lead after three quarters of play and eventually held on for the win. The final score would be the largest lead of the night for either side.

For Boyne City, 6-6, 3-5, Nick Redman scored 17 points on the night, to go along with five rebounds. Brad Fouchia added 11 points, while Macco Vroman had 10 points and three steals.

The loss for Boyne City snapped a three game win streak, while the Rayders extended their own winning streak to three games.

On Tuesday, The Rayders extended the streak to four games with a 80-46 romp over Kalkaska on the road.

Sawyer Russell had 16 points to lead Charlevoix in the Lake Michigan Conference win.

The win improves the Rayders' record to 9-2 overall, 7-1 league.

Russell also hauled in 10 rebounds, while Zach Hankins also added a double-double with 15 points and 10 rebounds.

Charlie Hamilton also scored 13 points.

"It was a great team win," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "We got all 11 guys in the stat book tonight. They did a better job coming out strong early on."

Wood was impressed with the play of his bigs on the night, particularly the 6-foot-4 Russell, as the Rayders constantly attacked the glass for rebounds and moved on the court well.

"He did a good job tonight. It was good to see," Wood said of Russell. "Our big guys really ran the floor well."

The Rayders led after the first quarter, 18-11, and extended their lead at the half to 37-19.

By the end of the third quarter, the Rayders' lead grew their lead to 35 points, making it a 63-28 game.

Kalkaska fell to 3-10 overall and 0-9 in the conference with the loss

"They're in a tough spot right now, they only have eight players," Wood said. "I give them lot of credit. They played tough tonight."

On Friday, Feb. 8 the Rayders will travel to Elk Rapids to take on the Elks.

In other Lake Michigan Conference action Tuesday:

— Harbor Springs defeated East Jordan 60-38

Spencer Kloss had a game-high 16 points and 14 rebounds, while Peter Lauer added 13 points as Harbor Springs picked up a Lake Michigan Conference win Tuesday.

Also for the Rams, 5-9 overall, 3-6 league, Peter Kelbel finished with 11 points and Neal Zoerhof added seven rebounds.

For East Jordan, 3-9, 1-8, Colin Petrie finished with 11 points.

Harbor Springs also won the JV game, 61-27. Jack Carter scored 19 points while Sean Cantrell added nine points.

— Traverse City St. Francis defeated Boyne City 78-52.

Bradley Fouchia scored 16 points for the Boyne City boys' basketball team as the Ramblers fell to league-leading Traverse City St. Francis in a Lake Michigan Conference meeting.

Corey Redman added 14 points for the Ramblers, while Ryan Carson brought in 10 points on the night.

Boyne City fell to 6-7 overall, 3-6 league.

Rayders fall just short

After battling to come back from what was at times a double-digit point deficit, the Charlevoix Rayder girls varsity basketball team wasn't able to find the basket in the final seconds of the game and fell to conference rival Boyne City, 44-45 at home on Friday, Feb. 1.

Rainey McCune led all scorers with 15 points for Boyne City.

For the Rayders, Maddie Boss scored 10 points, had four blocks, and three steals, while Gabbi Gray added nine points, and Kelsey Engstrom and Katie Hybl each added six points.

The Ramblers led at each quarter break including at halftime, 26-16.

The Rayders would cut into the lead during the third quarter and trailed, 34-26.

"We had some opportunities in the third," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "But, we played really well in the fourth quarter, and had an opportunity in the final eight seconds."

Charlevoix would outscore Boyne City, 18-11, but would fall short of the win at the buzzer.

With less than 10 seconds remaining in the game, the Rayders had the ball out of bounds under their own basket. The Rayders were able to inbound the ball to a player down low in the lane, but a Boyne City player quickly tied her up prompting a jump ball call. The possession arrow gave the ball back to the Ramblers who were able to inbound the ball and run out the clock.

The loss dropped Charlevoix to 5-9 overall and 4-5 in the league. Boyne City improved to 5-9 overall and 4-4 in league.

On Tuesday, the Rayders fell to Kalkaska 51-39 at home.

Kelli Guy scored a game-high 27 points to lead Kalkaska over Charlevoix.

For Charlevoix, freshman Kelsey Engstrom scored 10 points, Madeline Boss added nine points and five rebounds, while Sydney Carlson had five points, seven rebounds and two assists.

Charlevoix fell behind 18-5 in the first quarter.

The Rayders would cut into the lead in the second by out scoring the Blazers, 14-10.

"We did a better job in the second quarter and the rest of the game of playing defense," said Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw. "We were able to pick up our intensity."

Charlevoix is 4-10 overall, 3-5 in league and will travel to Elk Rapids on Friday, Feb. 8.

Elsewhere in the Lake Michigan Conference Tuesday:

— Val Peters had a game-high 17 points, while Paige Poindexter had nine points as the Red Devils picked up a Lake Michigan Conference victory Tuesday over Harbor Springs, 47-33.

Also for the Red Devils, which led at the quarter breaks 13-3, 30-8 and 41-15, Holley Carson added nine rebounds and Tiffany Pollaski added six rebounds. Allie Sutton also had six rebounds.

For Harbor Springs, 2-13, 0-9, Katie Barkley had nine points and Layne Compton added six points.

— Liza Erickson had a game-high 24 points while Kaitlin Feeny and Kenzie Feeny each had eight points as the Gladiators rolled past Boyne City 61-25 Tuesday in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

The Gladiators, 12-2 overall, 7-1 league, led 23-6 at the end of the first quarter and pushed their advantage to 32-10 at halftime.

For Boyne City, 5-10, 4-5, Rainy McCune finished with nine points.

JV BOYS BASKETBALL

Rayders nip Ramblers in OT, roll past Blazers

Like their varsity counterparts the Charlevoix boys junior varsity basketball team had a close, hard-fought game against conference rival Boyne City in the past week.

The JV squad came out on top in their rescheduled battle with the Ramblers Monday, winning 59-57 in overtime.

Charlevoix jumped out to an early lead, and were up 19-10 and the end of the first. But Boyne came back in the second leaving the score knotted at 26 at the half, and it stayed nip and tuck from there. The game was tied at 35 at the end of the third and at 51 at the end of regulation.

"After getting out to a good start, the game wore down into a war of attrition and became quite physical," Charvlevoix coach Bryan Hawkins said. "Boyne had a run in the third quarter and had us down 8, led by Zac Napont who scored a game-high 28 points, but we put together a run of our own at the end of the third and into the fourth, keyed by three-pointers from Will Telgenhof, Nate Moon, and Noah Jeakle."

Hawkins noted that the Rayders led by 8 with two minutes remaining but were forced into some critical mental mistakes and turnovers, allowing the Ramblers to tie the game and send it to overtime.

"In OT, Ryan Joy hit a three-pointer to get us going, and Moon scored two critical buckets to lift us to the victory," Hawkins added

Nick Plude led the Rayders with 17 points and Ryan Joy added 10.

On Tuesday the Rayder JV team had a much easier time with Kalkaska, defeating the Blazers, 71-29

The Rayders jumped out to a big lead early and never looked back. Charlevoix led 25-8 at the end of the first, 49-21 at the half and by a 69-27 margin at the end of the third.

"It was a great team win with balanced scoring, led by center Nick Plude's 11 points and freshman Walker Drost, a recent call-up from the ninth-grade team, had 9 points. Adam Michaud had a breakout game with 8 points, Hawkins said.

The Rayder boys JV team's record is now 9-2 overall and 8-0 in the conference.

Stingray Swim team members set personal bests in January

In January, the Charlevoix/East Jordan Stingray swim team competed in the Rudyard Invitational Meet on Saturday, Jan. 12, the Sault Ste. Marie Pentathlon on Saturday, Jan. 19, and the Harbor Springs Invitational on Saturday, Jan. 26.

In Rudyard, 20 of the 25 Stingrays set their personal-best race times. Combined, the team dropped 100 seconds from their race times and took home a third place team trophy. The team's coaches noted standouts of meet day include Dylan Clapp who shaved 15.33 seconds off his events. Also, Ivy Wells will be added to the Wall of Honor for being the second female Stingray in the team's history to swim 100 yards (four pool lengths) in less than a minute.

Eleven Stingrays participated at the Sault meet – each of whom swam in every race. Most again improved their personal-best best times, some attempting races they had never entered before, such as the butterfly. Consistent 7-year old Sophie Snyder took first in the 8 and under, 25-yard freestyle.

A whopping 42 Stingrays, along with 9 other teams, attended the Harbor Springs meet where the Stingrays earned a second place team trophy. First place finishers included 7-year old Sophie Snyder and 15-year olds Ali Schwein and Ivy Wells.

The Stingrays Swim Team's primary goal and philosophy are to develop and improve each athlete's swimming technique and competitive ability; to promote teamwork, spirit and unity among all team members; and to deliver a positive and enjoyable athletic experience. Any swimmer who is able to swim the length of the pool is encouraged to join at any time.

Winter blues?

Area business climate in usual seasonal slump

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Let's face it, February can be a gloomy month: We're in our third month of winter, we've been cooped up inside and many of us are longing for the warm days of summer.

It probably doesn't help matters to drive through town and see many businesses — especially in the downtown — either closed or with substantially scaled back hours.

But dramatic seasonal slowdowns are nothing new in Charlevoix.

While a couple of highly visible empty storefronts in the downtown and a couple of recent year-round business closings might make the business climate seem a little more gloomy recently, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President Erin Bemis and downtown development authority executive director Keith Carey said it's not as bad as it looks.

In fact, some non-scientific data Carey has been collecting about occupancy rates in the downtown show that vacancy rates for this time of the year have actually been improving.

Carey explained that since he started in his job in 2007 he's been keeping track of how many available business spaces in the downtown are vacant on a monthly basis.

In that five-year period, the occupancy rates in the downtown have shown a slow, but steady increase both for the off-season and for the yearly averages — from about 78 to 85 percent for yearly averages and about 76 percent to about 83 percent for February.

Now these numbers require two footnotes.

First Carey's definition of "occupied" is that the space is leased and not available. It doesn't mean that a business is currently open in the space. So, for instance some of the empty storefront windows, or those "closed for the season" signs in them count as "occupied."

However, on the other side of the coin, is the fact that these "occupied"

Model United Nations program brings home current events

Charlevoix students headed to diplomacy conference

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

In March, Charlevoix High School will send delegates from South Korea and Palestine to a United Nations conference.

At the conference, the delegates will lace up the shoes of officials from those countries and, having spent months researching particular positions, will argue topics in a room of their peers.

The goal? To convince representatives from countries of their positions to acquire particular political gains.

The delegates — Charlevoix High School students and members of Charlevoix's Model U.N. program — are attending the 2013 Mid-American Model United Nations conference in Ann Arbor.

Having been assigned particular countries and topics back in October, the students will finally have the chance to try to convince other students, acting as ambassadors, of their agendas.

Junior Anna Voci puts it bluntly.

"You go into a room and sit and argue with people all day," Anna, who attended the conference last year, said.

> "Experiential learning is where it's at."
> — Annemarie Conway, U.N. group teacher

Their agendas follow the real-time issues countries that are members of the United Nations, said the group's teacher, Annemarie Conway. For example, at the 2012 conference, the group from Charlevoix High School who had been assigned to represent Brazil achieved a major coup. The group was able to convince its peers to allow Brazil to be a temporary member of the security council — a victory, said Conway.

This year, the students have another set of countries they say will be a particular challenge: South Korea and Palestine.

"It's challenging to put yourself in that country's shoes, to think like South Korea," said junior Lily Matchett.

"It's hard because you're dealing with a different culture when you might have been raised in a different way," said junior Emily Rolott.

Inserting themselves into an entirely different cultural or political climate isn't the only difficulty the students face. Each student is assigned to a particular committee, and each student must write a three-to-four paragraph position paper about a particular topic.

But those position papers are integral in convincing the general assembly of a student's particular topic — a tall order to complete in just a few sentences that must be well researched and supported.

In the fall, Anna and the rest of the students attended a workshop given by Anne Deming, assistant director of the Osgood Center for International Studies — a nonprofit group based in Washington, D.C. The group trains students in learning to cover foreign policy, international leadership and

Lakes Michigan, Huron reach lowest levels

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

On Feb. 5, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers released the official news: that Lake Michigan and Lake Horon have officially scraped the lowest levels recorded.

Lakes Michigan and Huron — considered one lake connected at the Straits of Mackinac — measured an average of 576.02 feet for the month of January 2013, lower than the previoos all-time low of 576.05 set in March 1964.

The Army corps still blames higher amounts of evaporation from the lake. The year 2012, which was a year of near-record warmth for Michigan, and the warmest year on record for parts of Michigan, wreaked havoc on evaporation in the Great Lakes.

"As a whole, evaporation on lakes Michigan-Huron was about a foot more than normal," said Keith Kompoltowicz, meteorologist for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, based in Detroit. "To simplify that, if we had normal evaporation rates, we would have one more foot of water on the lake surface."

Warm water was also an issoe the Great Lakes were dealing with: 2012's record-setting air temperatures heated the Great Lakes to record-setting temperatures. In July, a buoy in Lake Michigan measured a record high — the temperature in that portion of the lake reached 85.1 degrees.

"The highest evaporation rates occur when you have very warm water temperatores and very cold air flowing over those warmer waters," said Kompoltowicz.

Kompoltowicz listed the "very hot summer" transitioning into fall as a critical time for the lake levels.

"And as you get into early winter, when you get Arctic outbreaks of air, those are the times you get the most evaporation," said Kompoltowicz.

What lake levels might not necessarily be blamed upon, however, is long-term below-average precipitation rates. In fact, pointed out Drew Gronewold, hydrologist and physical scientist with the Great Lakes Research Laboratory, which is part of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, precipitation rates across the entire Great Lakes Basin have been about average for the past 10 years.

According to data kept since 1900 and updated through 2011, an average of 33 inches of precipitation falls annually across the Great Lakes Basin. Since 2002, only two years have seen less precipitation than that annual average: 2005, when 32 inches of precipitation fell across the basin, and 2012, when 31 inches fell. The basin saw high precipitation years in 2008, when the region saw 38 inches of precipitation, and both 2004 and 2006, which received 36 inches apiece.

The problem comes when evaporation outpaces precipitation, regardless of the rate of precipitation, said Gronewold. He points to a new program the research laboratory has launched, called the Great Lakes Hydro-Climate Dashboard. It plots water level observations, historical water levels, monthly level forecasts and data about the climate.

Users can, for example, click op how much monthly precipitation has fallen over lakes Michigan and Huron and compare it to how much water has evaporated from the lake.

The last plot point of data on the dashboard was for Dec. 2011. During that month, 4 inches of water evaporated from lakes Michigan and Huron. Only 1.5 inches of precipitation fell.

"The precipitation could be going up all you want, but if evaporation is going up at a higher rate, you're going to lose water," said Gronewold. "Both have to be part of the story."

According to the release from the Army Corps of Engineers announcing the new record low, that's what happened to create current lake conditions. Because of lower-than-average snowfall during the winter of 2011-2012, the heat wave in March and following hot, dry summer, the seasonal rise of Lake Michigan-Horon was just 4 inches compared to the typical 12-inch rise.

And while the region has been receiving snowfall so far this winter, the snow must not be lake-effect in order for the precipitation to raise lake levels.

"Lake effect is really a net loss to the Great Lakes as far as water levels go," said Kompoltowicz. "Lake effect is a result of evaporation from the lake surface, and there's no guarantee that it will make it back to the lake it came from."

The low lake levels have prompted the Army corps to reconsider placing obstructions in the St. Clair River that would slow the outflow of water from lakes Michigan and Huron. Currently, there are two diversions that let water out from the Great Lakes system, said Kompoltowicz. Set by the Supreme Court, Lakes Michigan and Horon lose 3,200 cubic feet per second at the Chicago diversion — about 1 percent of the total outflow of the system. That's balanced by diversions that flow into Lake Superior at Ogoki and Long Lac from Canada. Together, those diversions contribute an average of 5,600 cubic feet per second to the system.

But at the St. Clair River, the system loses, on average, 157,000 cubic feet per second. And that depends on the levels of the Great Lakes: the higher the lakes, the higher the outflow, said Gronewold.

Too, back in the 1960s, the Army corps dredged the river, accounting for a one-time net loss from lakes Michigan and Huron of 12-16 inches. Since then, additional erosion at the river has caused another 4-inch loss in lake levels, according to a study completed by the International Joint Commission.

Back in the 1950s and 1960s, the Army corps created an authorization to compensate for the dredging.

Essentially, structures would be placed in the St. Clair River to slow the outflow of water, potentially raising water levels — if precipitation over the region increases and evaporation decreases.

"We believe we still have that authorization," said Kompoltowicz. "If that is in fact true, then we have to take a look at what budget options are available ... I can't even begin to speculate if that will happen. Internally, we're verifying that we still have the authorization."

County going back out to bid for recycling service

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County will reopen bids for companies interested in hauling and processing its recyclables Wednesday, March 6.

After nearly four months of debate over to whom to award the contract, county buildings and grounds committee members Richard Gillespie, George Lasater and Larry Sullivan agreed a third round of bids for recycling was the way to go.

"I think it's a mess and it needs to be rebid," said Gillespie.

The commissioner suggested a committee gather this week to develop new bid specifications. The committee, he said, should be made up of recycling committee chair Michelle Hewitt, county clerk Cheryl Browe, county commissioner Larry Sullivan, maintenance supervisor Frank Shaler and human resources director Kevin Shepard.

The bid specifications should have 10 items or less, he said, to which each company bidding must include responses in writing. The specifications could include how many years the contract will last or what services are expected to be provided.

The clarity in expectations comes after confusion reigned at recycling and buildings and grounds committee meetings over the past few months.

Charlevoix schools show overall increases in MEAP scores

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Though the percentage of Michigan students who meet or exceed state proficiency levels in reading, math and writing improved overall, several local districts did not surpass state averages in fourth and eighth grades, according to the fall 2012 Michigan Education Assessment Program results released by the Department of Education.

The MEAP test is given to Michigan third- through ninth-grade students.

Although Charlevoix Public Schools students did not exceed the state average for percentage of students who met or exceeded proficiency standards, they did show an increase in those percentages in all six categories.

"The MEAP test is like my annual physician's check-up. It is a fair assessment that shows us where we are doing well and where we need to look deeper at how we can improve. We want to make sure our kids learn what they need to learn and the test is one way of checking." Petoskey Public Schools superintendent John Scholten said. "Petoskey has done well over the last few years."

The Petoskey News-Review looked closely at area students' scores in eighth grade math, reading and science and in fourth grade math, reading and science. The scores reported represent the percentage of students who have met or exceeded state proficiency levels in each subject. Before the 2011 testing, the test cut score was raised so that students would be more career and college ready when they graduated from high school. This is the second year of testing with the higher proficiency standard in place.

In eighth grade math, Concord Academy of Boyne and Petoskey Public Schools scored above the state's 33 percent proficiency average, with Petoskey's 40.7 profi-

Seniors warned of phone scams

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider, following a series of complaints, would like to remind citizens of daily telephone scams and complaints received.

In a press release, Schneider warns that senior citizens are typically targeted by these scam artists. He advises to never give any bank account/numbers of any kind, date of birth or any personal information to anyone over the telephone for any reason.

"You, the citizen, are the best defense/deterrent to these types of scams if you do not give personal information of any kind to someone on the telephone," stated Schneider.

Three bills coming down the dredging pipeline

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Since the end of January, three bills have been introduced to garner funding for the dredging of Lake Michigan harbors.

The first bill, House Bill 4106, would allow funds to be diverted from the Natural Resources Trust Fund and used for dredging in Michigan lakes and harbors.

Representatives introduced the bill just as the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers was preparing to release the fact that the levels of Lake Michigan and Lake Huron fell below the lowest recorded level ever, since data started to be collected in 1918.

Lakes Michigan and Huron — considered one lake connected at the Straits of Mackinac — set their previous record in March 1964, when they stood at a level of 576.05 feet. Their average January measurement was at 576.02 feet, just a third of an inch below the previous record, but below it nonetheless.

"I think it's important, having met with people along Crooked River and Crooked Lake and in Northern Michigan, (to introduce this bill)," said state Rep. Frank Foster. "As the governor is getting ready to talk about roads, we want him to realize infrastructure is more than that. Waterways are an important part of transportation and recreation in Northern Michigan. ... Some of these rivers haven't been dredged in decades."

Foster, R-Petoskey, introduced a second bill, House Bill 4197, along with Rep. Bruce Rendon, R-Lake City, which calls for $30 million to be pulled from a "rainy day fond," known officially as the Budget Stabilization Fund.

Sen. Tom Casperson, R-Escanaba, introduced a third bill, the same day as Foster's, that has requests identical to Foster's bill.

The $30 million would be immediately available for applications from municipalities reqoesting funds to dredge harbors or rivers, said Foster.

In this way, this bill is different from House Bill 4106 — the bill that would pull money from the Natural Resources Trust Fund.

"We believe (4106) would take a constitutional change, and it would go on the ballot," said Foster. "A vote would go to the people, and we might oot see change for a year. These communities need to have these resoorces now."

Both Foster's and Casperson's bills have been referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Correction

— Because of inaccurate information reported to a reporter, the incorrect cost for a recycling contract between Charlevoix County and Emmet County Recycling was reported on page A3 of the Feb. 8 edition of the Charlevoix Courier. The actual cost of the two-year contract would be $365,794. Also, Emmet County does recycle scrap metal, plastic buckets and furniture and gift wrap.

The tale of a tree

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

When we bought our house in Charlevoix, one of the attractions was a very large sugar maple tree on the north edge of the property. Our home in Iowa had been fronted by three large sugar maple trees that we had used each spring when our children were in grade school, to collect maple sap and produce about a gallon of real home-grown maple syrup. I looked forward to that same early spring activity here. For 15 years we have made enough maple syrup each spring to fill our needs and to give some away as what we called "Singletree Maple Syrup."

Two years ago we had a few dead top branches trimmed out. By last fall it was clear that some much larger branches in the top of the tree were dead or nearly so. One of the November storms last fall broke off one of those branches; itself as large as some trees. The branch did not fall to the ground, but got caught up in some of the other large high branches and was perched a little precariously half way up the tree. That it did not fall on our neighbor's house was simply the gift of wind direction.

Something had to be done, and much like the decision to put down a long-time pet, we concluded that the tree had to go. Just before the snows began, a certified tree remover spent a whole day cutting the tree into manageable pieces and removing the largest ones. The tree branch chipper was not working, so the brushy ends of branches (quite a few) were installed by the street for later chipping.

The snows came and we now have what looks like a permanent linear brush pile mostly covered with snow. Barring a remarkable early thaw, it will most likely be there by the street until spring.

The branches have proven to be attractive to our neighborhood deer herd. They probably don't get many chances to nibble on sugar maple buds. The buds must taste good, at least to the deer (I have not tried them), but the great majority of the brush pile persists. It provides new shelter for our winter birds, and for at least one rabbit that we have seen.

We had wondered how old the tree might be. The trunk was at least three feet in diameter, and with all the snow, I won't be able to count rings in its stump until spring. David Miles and the archives at the Historical Society were able to provide a low altitude aerial photograph taken when the corner of Burns avenue and Division Street was the location where horses from Hooker's Livery Service downtown came to spend their day between riders. The photo is surely from some time in the 1940s before the neighborhood had any houses. It shows our tree as already the largest one around. Judging from the length of shadows I would conclude that it was nearly forty feet tall at that time. We had always thought of it as a hundred year-old tree, and I guess we were pretty close. In the spring I will count rings in its trunk and make a final report.

There is considerable sadness in watching a tree that has grown for a century disappear from view. We miss it.

We will plant a new sugar maple in the spring, to be enjoyed for another century if the fates be kind. This year's maple syrup will have to be the product of several younger trees in our front yard.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Why not consider an ice rink for East Park?

Editor:

In 2007 Charlevoix was selected as one of the 35 cities to participate in the Cool Cities Blueprint for Michigan's Downtowns. Both Mayor Carlson and I served on a 25-member process committee. After hundres of hours spent by committee members, city staff, consultants from Hyett-Palma, the interested public and thousands of dollars, two of the top seven recommendations for implementation were:

— "... the city and DDA should be most protective of view corridors to and from the water..."

— "At a minimum, this (downtown plan) should include reinstating an ice rink into the current plans to enhance East Park."

So, with a gift of $50,000, why can't the city consider a refrigerated ice rink in the current plans to enhance East Park? This would be something that could actually bring the public downtown.

It's time to dust off this study and reconsider these important goals and ideas that everyone signed on to in 2007.

— Jeffrey Porter,
Charlevoix

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

Charlevoix was impacted by the advent of World War II just like every other community in the nation. Teenage boys put off high school graduation so they could enlist in service to their country. Local businesses and area farms felt the impact of men leaving for war. Busloads of inductees departed from the city hall corner accompanied by waving flags, cheers and tears. Frank Ochs, father of pharmacist John Ochs, was one of them. Mrs. Harley Ochs, Frank's mother, got the idea of placing a framed photo of her son in the window of her husband's Central Drug Store, vowing she would never take it out until he arrived home safe and sound. The idea caught on. Soon Frank was joined by many others, then one by one they appeared as more men enlisted or were drafted through the early 1940s. By 1945 and the approach of war's end the entire Bridge Street window of the drugstore was filled with almost 140 photos of people in service, topped by an American flag and two florescent V-for-Victory light tubes. Frank returned home safely.

LOCAL Highlights

Library collections available on website

The Charlevoix Public Library recently completed three digitization projects: Oral Traditions Videos, 1901 Plat Book, and the Rayder Yearbooks.

Through funding from the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, these projects came to fruition after much planning from the staff. It was determined that digitizing the unique library collections and making them accessible on the website will not only preserve these items for generations, but increase the accessibility for genealogists and other enthusiasts throughout the world.

The Oral Traditions series includes 21 separate video recordings of local residents talking about their life in Charlevoix and nine additional video recordings of local veterans talking about their war memories. The veteran recordings are also part of the Library of Congress' Veteran's History Project.

The 1901 plat book was digitized and now provides easy access to what the county looked like at the turn of the century.

Digitizing the Rayder Yearbooks was a top priority as "the current print editions are showing signs of wear and decomposition, the digital copies will ensure access for years to come," said adult services librarian Linda Adams. Preserving them in this manner will keep the records available forever. The yearbooks are searchable and printable, so looking for photos is quite easy.

All three of these collections can be found on the library's historical collections site at www.charlevoixlibrary.org/charlevoix-history/historical-collections.

For more information about this or other projects at the library, stop by at 220 W. Clinton St., in Charlevoix, or call the library information desk at (231) 237-7340.

Area parks hope to raise funds to expand access

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

While both Charlevoix County's Whiting Park and Petoskey State Park offer universal accessibility for those with disabilities, the two parks are angling to make their beaches and parks even more accessible.

And the primary way they're doing this is through the purchase of an item called a "Mobi Mat."

The Mobi Mat is a flexible, portable plastic sidewalk that rolls out and is staked down across sand beaches, where people who use wheelchairs might not otherwise be able to go.

"We had a couple who wanted to get married in Traverse City on the beach. The bride used a wheelchair, and we were able to move the Mobi Mats to have the wedding where they wanted it," said Annie Campbell, resource development manager for Disability Network.

Disability Network is a nonprofit based in Traverse City that works throughout Michigan, helping environments adapt to those with disabilities.

In Charlevoix and Emmet counties, the nonprofit is helping the parks raise funds to purchase the Mobi Mats. In Charlevoix County, the nonprofit has been working with Leadership Charlevoix. Leadership has made installing the mats at Whiting Park its mission.

"Leadership Charlevoix is made up of nine professionals throughout Charlevoix County who want to get more involved in the community," said Marcia Campbell, who is also the early education program manager for the Charlevoix-Emmet county Intermediate School District. "We thought it was a great idea, to make beaches and water universally accessible. One of the reasons people live and work in Northern Michigan are our lakes and beaches. If one portion of the population can't enjoy it, it doesn't seem fair."

Campbell said Whiting Park was a good target for the project because the park had already done extensive accessibility work. The park recently added a canoe and kayak lift, which allows people who are handicapped to lift themselves into boats.

Leadership Charlevoix and Disability Network wanted to provide another way for disabled people to get into the water. So in addition to the Mobi Mats, Leadership Charlevoix is campaigning for a Mobi Chair as well.

The Mobi Chair looks a little like a floating wheelchair. It has two large wheels in the back, one in the front, and flotation devices on the arms.

"All it's missing is a paddle," said Faith Dunshee.

Dunshee is a representative for people with disabilities for Emmet County, and a person who will use the Mobi Mats once they are installed Petoskey State Park.

She has spearheaded the Petoskey State Park program by calling parks in the Petoskey area until she got a response — from Petoskey State Park manager Dennis McDermott.

"As state park managers, we're always looking at ways we can make our parks more accessible," he said. "When I was manager at Otsego State Park, we put a Mobi Mat there, and I saw how much use it got."

Not only did people who used walkers and wheelchairs use the mat, but families with strollers and young children used it as well. McDermott, Dunshee and the Disability Network have also purchased a Mobi Chair.

For Dunshee, a Mobi Mat and chair is the difference between going to the park, and going to the beach.

"I want to go to the beach," said Dunshee.

Dunshee said the mats, which measure 5 feet across and 50 feet long, can even fit two wheelchairs side-by-side. Petoskey State Park is looking to purchase four rolls of the mat in order to reach the water, and eventually add a few more mats so people can wheel alongside the waterline as well.

Both Dunshee and McDermott as well as the Leadership Charlevoix group have put on fundraisers and garnered grants, but each is partway through its fundraising process. Petoskey State Park and Dunshee have raised about $8,000, and are halfway to their goal, said Annie Campbell, while Leadership Charlevoix has just started fundraising toward its $11,000 goal, said Marcia Campbell. Leadership Charlevoix hopes currently to purchase three mats.

Each roll of 5-feet-by-50 feet mat costs approximately $2,900, while each chair costs about $2,000.

Those interested in donating to the projects can send checks to the Disability Network. Checks should be made out to Disability Network and earmarked either "Petoskey State Park" or "Leadership Charlevoix."

County sets capital improvement plan

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Which projects are most important and urgent for Charlevoix County this year and over the next five years was the topic of a detailed report submitted to the county board of commissioners at its meeting Wednesday by the planning commission.

The board approved the county-wide capital improvement plan at the meeting.

The plan includes an inventory of properties and capital equipment owned by the county as well as a list of future projects ranked as either high priority, medium priority or low priority.

High priority projects are those that are mandated by law, protect public health and/or safety, would protect county assets and are improvements that would generate revenue to pay for themselves.

Medium priority projects are those that would result in operational savings for the county, protect public health and/or safety, are vital to the economic welfare of the county, are a necessary or desirable project that will likely not be available at a later date, are consistent with future plans and need to be completed to allow other highly rated projects to proceed.

Low priority projects are those that will be funded with non-county funds, but have high operational costs, are worthwhile projects if funding were available and are necessary but can be postponed without detriment to the county.

High priority projects for Charlevoix County in 2013:

— Roof replacement on first story of the 1956 addition of county building and courthouse. This project would cost $25,000 and would be paid for out of the general fund.

— Roof insulation and new roofing above dining room and kitchenette as well as boiler room and air handler penthouse at the Grandvue Medical Care facility. This project would cost approximately $25,000 and be paid for by the senior millage.

— Refurbishment and repainting of 16 recycling bins at sites throughout the county as well as purchasing two new recycling bins for cardboard compactors. Both projects would cost $38,000 total and would be paid for using money from the recycling millage.

— U.S. Coast Guard inspection of the Ironton Ferry is ranked as high priority for 2013.

— Engineering plans for a facility upgrade or replacement of the transit authority maintenance facility for $35,000 that would be paid for entirely by state and federal grants.

— Air conditioning charging and recovery equipment, replacement of tire machine and tire balancer for county transit at a cost of $27,500, also paid for by federal and state grants.

— A small, gas engine-powered bus with lift for the county transit at $134,000 paid for in-full by federal and state grants.

— Extensive work on the roof of the county road commission's Ironton garage is needed. Cost has not been estimated, but buildings and grounds funds would be used for this project.

Medium priority projects in 2013 include replacing three patrol cars for the sheriff's department, re-epoxying kennel floors and upgrading the existing phone system for the animal control department, installing a phone system with voicemail at the Grandvue Medical facility, finishing phase three of the Boyne City-Charlevoix trail expansion, replacing the phone systems at the sheriff's office, jail, substations and animal control office, installing an East Jordan recycling site at the EMS building, installing a new engine in the Ironton Ferry, installing a multi-line phone system for county transit and replacing shop windows at the Boyne City garage and purchasing two plow trucks for the road commission.

Donations needed for Project Connect

Plans are in place for the sixth annual Charlevoix-Emmet Project Connect. This year's event will take place 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, March 20, in the Community Building at the Emmet County Fairgrounds in Petoskey.

Project Connect connects people in need with a range of health and human services needed to improve their lives.

More than 50 local nonprofit agencies, as well as some businesses, will be on hand to provide a variety of services and resources. All services are free and include: housing programs; utility support; food assistance; tax preparation; health screenings and services; children's activities, and more. Haircuts and chair massages will be available throughout the day. A hot lunch will be served. Guests can receive gifts of food, personal care items and household items, while they last. It is recommended people bring picture ID, birth certificate and income information with them, if they wish to apply for benefits.

"We are seeking donations of a wide range of goods and supplies — food, personal care items, gas cards and funds to purchase these," says Dana Lorian, volunteer at United Way, who is helping to coordinate the event.

Individuals or businesses wishing to donate items can hold a drive at their business, school or faith community. Lists of specific food, personal care, household or other items that are most needed are available on the United Way website www.charemunitedway.org, under Find a Donation Drive.

Glen's Yes points can also be used to purchase items for the event. Project Connect organizers urge shoppers to use points to purchase cloth bags, gift cards and other nonperishable items on the Donations Needed fliers. Shampoo, lotion and detergent are especially needed.

Volunteers are also needed to help with the event. A list of volunteer opportunities at Project Connect will be posted on United Way's Volunteer Connections website.

For more information about Project Connect, to volunteer goods, services, or funds, contact CharEmConnect@gmail.com; Kathy Hart at (231) 347-8852, manna@mannafoodproject.org; or United Way at (231) 487-1006, info@charemunitedway.org. BASES seeking volunteers for teen program

Officials with Bay Area Substance Abuse Education Services (BASES) are seeking adult volunteers to serve as mentors to teens through a new program the organization is offering.

In a news release on the program, BASES officials wrote, that the program offers a "meaningful volunteer opportunity for adults to become healthy adult role models for local youth."

Charlevoix County Probate and Family Court and BASES recently received a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to provide funding for adult mentors and teens to participate in safe and healthy projects and activities, and area teens are ready to start!

A recent brainstorming session indicated that youth are interested in everything from bowling to woodworking to music lessons, and to that end, BASES is seeking adult volunteers who would be willing to do safe, low-impact recreational activities with teens for two-to-four hours one Saturday per month.

Interested adults will need to participate in a four-hour adult volunteer training to help increase their skills and understanding of today's teenagers and some of the challenges our youth face each day), undergo a background check, pass a drug test, and have a valid driver's license. Adults who have an interest in leading a specific activity are also encouraged to participate. If you are willing to give some of your time to provide deserving teens the opportunity to interact with healthy role models outside of their family and school, please contact B.A.S.E.S. at (231) 547-1144 for more information.

on different days in January, the 10-day window to file nominating petitions (or pay the $100 fee) is slightly different for each ward.

Here are the dates in chronological order:

For 2nd Ward (Bryan Vollmer), petitions may be filed from Feb. 22 until 4 p.m. on March 4. For 3rd Ward (Jill Picha), petitions may be filed from March 1 until 4 p.m. on March 11. For 1st Ward (Dennis Kusina), petitions may be filed from March 5 until 4 p.m. on March 14.

All petitions must be turned in to the Charlevoix City Clerk's office, at Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State St.

Under the new law, the elected officials targeted for recall are automatically placed on the ballot unless they notify the clerk that don't want to be on the ballot.

The recall efforts grew out of discontent among some city residents with the council's Aug. 9 decision to approve a proposal to construct a gas-fueled outdoor community fireplace in East Park's Plaza B.

In September, the council put the project on hold in after the objections to the project surfaced to allow more time to consider options for the project. An advisory steering committee for the proposed project is set to meet next at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 28, in the Charlevoix City Council Chambers at City Hall.

BIDS

was sent out for the county's expiring hauling contract in October, only one company responded, American Waste. It offered a bid for hauling the recycling committee considered too expensive and a second option to combine hauling and processing that offered significant cost-savings for the county.

Because the original bid was not for processing and because the county is in its third year of a five year contract with Emmet County Recycling for processing, the committee opened up bidding again to give other companies a chance at the contract.

Bids came in and it became clear American Waste or Emmet County would be able to offer the cheapest alternative for the county.

The recycling committee recommended that the buildings and grounds committee award the contract to Emmet County Recycling, but buildings and grounds committee members were confused by disparate pricing models, the array of services offered and overall costs involved in the bids.

The matter was tabled at its meeting last month.

"Far too many people have inserted themselves into this debate disallowing any logical decision to be made … short of rebidding the contract to include any criteria necessary to make an appropriate decision," said Gillespie. "Rebidding is the only real way to resolve the issue."

After the recently appointed subcommittee meets and comes up with new bid specifications, the county's legal council will then review the specifications to make sure all is in order before they are posted and bids are opened.

The goal is to open bids on March 6 at the next buildings and grounds committee meeting. A recommendation will be made there to the full county board, which would make a final decision on the matter at its meeting Wednesday, March 13.

cient eighth-grade students as the area's highest score. The rest of the area districts reviewed did not reach the state average. In fourth grade math, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Charlevoix, Concord Academy Petoskey, Pellston and Petoskey exceeded the 45 percent proficient state average, with Pellston's 60.9 percent proficient students being the area's highest score. The rest of the area districts did not reach the state proficiency average.

"Math is difficult for all students and we have some gaps," said Karen Sherwood, superintendent of Boyne Falls Public Schools.

Superintendent of Alanson Public Schools, Jeff Liedel, uses the scores to look not only at how fourth grade scores compare to fourth grade scores from year to year, but also at how various student cohorts progress through the school from third to fourth grade.

"We look at trends over time to see how our students do compared to the state averages," he said. "When I see something like math scores at 43 when students took the sixth-grade test and then a jump to 62 in seventh grade, that tells me we are doing something right in the sixth grade math curriculum."

The tests are taken in the fall, so reflect things students learned in the previous year. Liedel will look further at both cohort scores (same students year to year) and grade level scores looking for patterns that mirror the state.

"With a small school, our scores can vary widely with a class because of the make up of the class," Liedel said. "These scores are valuable when looked at over time to signal where curriculum may have to be looked at to align better with the state or to see particular skills that students may be having difficulty with and adjust to spend more time on those skills."

In eighth grade reading, all area school districts exceeded the state's 66 percent proficiency level, except Pellston. Concord-Petoskey had the most proficient eighth-grade readers with 86.7 percent who met or exceeded the proficiency level. Fourth-grade reading scores showed area districts exceeding the state's 68 percent proficient students, with Concord Academy of Boyne and East Jordan falling below the state average. Fourth-graders from Pellston lead area schools in the percentage of proficient students with 84.8 percent who met or exceeded the standard.

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Robert Gendron also looks at student cohorts year-to-year and overall trends.

"Comparing last year's third-grade scores to this year's fourth-grade scores, we did well," he said.

In fourth grade writing, area districts exceeded the state average proficiency level of 47 percent, except Concord Academy of Boyne City, East Jordan, Harbor Springs and Pellston who were below the state average. Boyne Falls fourth-graders topped the area schools in percentage of proficient students with a score of 68.8 percent.

"I'm pleased with the writing scores, as writing has traditionally been a tough one for students to excel in," Sherwood said.

The percentage of Michigan students reaching science proficiency in eighth grade was only 16 percent in both 2011 and 2012. Even so, five area districts, Alanson, Boyne Falls, Concord of Boyne, East Jordan and Pellston did not meet the state average, though East Jordan and Pellston were only tenths of a percentage away from the average. The highest percent of eighth grade proficient science students in the area was Petoskey's 21.6 percent.

Liedel, Sherwood, and Gendron thought that the low scores in science could have to do with the science content on the test not lining up with the content that is taught, as the student proficiency levels are so low. There could be a mismatch with the test.

Districts around the state and in this area are now aligning curriculum to the Common Core standards, a set of national standards. Testing won't catch up for another year, so in some very content specific subjects, there may be a mismatch for a while, according to Gendron.

rates have slowly climbed despite the fact that more business spaces have been added to the mix during the same time frame.

According to Carey's records, in 2007 there were about 140 business spaces in the downtown "market" and at the end of 2012 there were 152.

Both Bemis and Carey said there have been a few more businesses this year which have been scaled back or closed for the season that haven't done so in the past. But Bemis noted that one thing that seems to also be on the upswing are the number of businesses which are making moves right now.

" She said a lot are business transfers, and other behind-the-scenes jockeying that seem to be in the works as people prepare for the coming busy season.

Both also said while some recent business closures in high traffic areas on U.S. 31 such as Giuseppe's Italian Grille and The Galway Bay Green Grocer on the north side of town are more noticeable, there have been other businesses that have been cropping up and some that are poised to do so.

Carey pointed to a new Asian restaurant that appears poised to open soon downtown as just one example.

"One thing all the movement does is create opportunities for other new businesses to find a foothold in the community," Bemis said.

Both Carey and Bemis noted that the one prize that business leaders are always on the lookout to lure to the community are those businesses that are less-seasonal.

But that struggle is also nothing new to the community, they noted.

business, said Denise Fate, a member of the board of the Osgood Center.

"It was nice training to have," said Anna.

The students need that kind of research to take on the roles of ambassadors from their particular countries.

"Especially hard is Palestine," said junior Julana Swidorski. "It's not really its own country but its own region. So it's difficult to find information about it."

The group of students representing Palestine, in fact, aren't officially part of the United Nations, just as Palestine actuality isn't part of the United Nations. Rather, the students, just as Palestine, hold what's called a "non-member permanent observer" status. So they find themselves in a particularly interesting position: They need to ally themselves with other countries that have their same interests. That way, they have a better chance of getting their particular agenda items acknowledged by the United Nation's general assembly.

"I'm on the environmental committee and I'm representing Palestine," said junior Cora Taylor. "We have to make alliances to get certain things passed."

The Charlevoix students representing South Korea have their own challenges as well: Their neighbor to the north.

"With everything flaring up in North Korea right now — that's what we're going to be dealing with," said Conway.

But that's what's so beneficial about this program, said Conway: Students have to respond to particular political situations in real-time. They have to pick a position, research it and debate it.

"Experiential learning is where it's at," said Conway. "They have to find answers to questions and do serious research ... They have to stand up and make speeches and arguments cogent to the issue at hand."

And it's not just learning about the current political climate. The Charlevoix High School students find themselves making their own personal alliances.

"They get to network with a bunch of kids, not only from the Midwest but from Canada as well. They make friends, exchange emails," said Conway. "During the conference, they're working behind the scenes, building coalitions and learning to be independent thinkers and advocates."

Rayders on a roll

The Charlevoix Rayder boys varsity basketball team continued their dominance on the hardcourt during the past week defeating Lake Michigan Conference foes Elk Rapids and East Jordan and tacking on a non-conference win over Suttons Bay Wednesday for good measure.

On Tuesday the Rayders traveled to East Jordan where Charlie Hamilton sank six 3-pointers for a total of 25 points as the to lead the team to a 77-52 win over the Red Devils.

Hamilton downed five 3-pointers in the first half alone for the Rayders, who improved to 11-2 overall, 9-1 league

The Red Devils kept the game close to start, as the first quarter ended with both teams nailed at 14-all.

By the second quarter, the Rayders began to make their move as they headed to the half up 33-21.

Charlevoix continued to shoot with a hot hand in the third, scoring 28 points in the stanza to extend their lead 61-31 at the end of three.

"East Jordan always plays tough at home," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "I was really proud of how they came out in the third quarter, we were able to go on a nice run."

"We were able to get a lot of guys in tonight, which is good for us," Wood added.

The Red Devils would put together a 21 point fourth quarter, but it wouldn't be enough to steal the lead or the game from the Rayders.

"They beat us up on the boards throughout the night," East Jordan coach Darrin Weher said. "They made a nice run in the beginning of the third there. They're shooting was on."

For East Jordan, 3-11, 1-10, Matt Bolser scored 17 points..

On Friday, Feb. 8, the Rayders traveled to Elk Rapids where Devantae Drain and Tanner Catt lead the team with 12 points each to a 46-38 win over the Elks.

Zack Hankins added 10 points for the Rayders, who improved to 10-2 overall, with an 8-1 mark in league play with the win.

Charlevoix head coach Adam Wood expected a physical game heading in against the Elks and got just what he thought.

"Both teams were really grinding it out until the end," Wood said. "Playing in Elk Rapids is one of the toughest places to play. We were expecting a physical game."

The Rayders held a 9-8 lead after the first quarter of play and closed out the first half again with a one point lead, this time in a 20-19 game.

After three quarters of play, the Rayders held the largest lead of the night from any team, as they came away from the third up 32-24. They'd eventually hold on for the win.

Cole Walker led the Elks, 8-7, 5-5, with 14 points, while Shea Summer brought in 11 points.

On Wednesday the Rayders traveled to Suttons Bay where Tanner Catt led the team to a 55-39 win in a non-league matchup. Charlie Hamilton scored 11 points for the Rayders.

Charlevoix improves to 12-2 overall.

"We didn't play our best basketball but it was enough to come out with the win tonight," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "I wanted to see how we'd respond (on short rest). We came out early, Tanner really had a lot of energy early."

The Rayders led after the first quarter 14-8 and at the half 25-19. After three quarters, Charlevoix extended their lead to 46-31.

Charlevoix is yet to be done with games for the week, with yet another road game scheduled for Friday at Harbor Springs. For now, though, Wood has one plan for his team in the one day the Rayders catch a break from game action.

"Rest," Wood said. "We'll rest as much as we can and get back and get ready for Friday's game."

So close: Rayders just miss comback win

A valliant comeback effort by the Charlevoix Rayder girls varsity basketball team fell just short as the Radyers fell 42-140 to East Jordan in a Lake Michigan on Tuesday.

Madeline Boss turned in 10 points for Charlevoix. Boss also had seven rebounds and three steals, while Gabby Gray scored eight points. Sydney Carlson added six rebounds and three steals.

Charlevoix falls to 5-12 overall on the year, with a 4-7 record in conference play. The Red Devils led throughout the night, leading after the first 11-7, then at the half 23-15.

The Rayders, who had trailed for most of the game, were able to chip away at the Red Devils' lead in the fourth quarter and tied the score up with about two minutes remaining in the game. However, a well-timed three-pointer put East Jordan back on top and the Rayders were forced to start fouling in an attempt to stay in the game. Ultimately, the Rayders had the ball out of bounds under their own basket with about six seconds remaining, but a turnover following the inbound pass sealed up the win for the Red Devils.

"We've got to take care of the ball better," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "We had an opportunity to go up in the first half, we just couldn't capitalize. The girls never gave up, though. I'm proud of them for that."

Valerie Peters finished the night with 13 points for the Red Devils, with Paige Poindexter brining in 10 points.

East Jordan improved to 7-8 overall, 6-5 league.

On Friday, Feb. 8, the Rayders traveled to Elk Rapids where they fell to the Elks 54-44.

Madeline Boss scored 16 points and brought in eight rebounds and three steals for the Rayders, while Gabby Gray added 11 points and four steals. Kourtney Putman had eight points for Charlevoix.

The Rayders fell to 5-11 overall on the year, with a 4-6 league record.

"We played hard, we just need to finish," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "They really have come a long way as a team."

With eight underclassmen making up the roster, Shaw believes the team is bettering themselves for the future, gaining valuable experience throughout the year thus far.

"Really excited about the future," Shaw said. "My top players are playing against juniors and seniors. They're getting there."

Elk Rapids led at the quarter breaks, 10-11 after the first, 26-24 at the half and 39-32 at the end of the third.

Michelle Costa led Elk Rapids, 10-4, 7-2, with 14 points, while Rachel Hintz added 13 points and Paige Granger, 11 points.

A big, pink success

Organizers estimate that about 400 people turned out Wednesday at Charlevoix Middle School for three special girls basketball games between Charlevoix and East Jordan intended to honor staff from both schools battling breast cancer and to raise both awareness of the disease and money to combat it. The event was the idea of Charlevoix Middle School student Nichole Hart and East Jordan Middle School student Julia Sherman who were inspired by staff from both schools who are battling the disease. Nichole's mother Teresa Hart estimated the event earned $100 on tickets to try half-court shots for a prize. One student, Danny Nesburg, made a shot and won a sandwich from Subway. Hart said more that 180 pink and black business-sponsored were and more than 250 hot dogs were sold. She added that the event also brought in more than $2,000 in sponsorship monies, over $500 dollars in other contributions and $250 in cash was put in the donation canisters, and all the ticket revenues from all three games were also donated to the cause. Hart expressed the thanks on behalf of the organizers to the many volunteers and organizations involved.

After all, the right of free speech is meaningless if no one knows what's really going on. That's why more than 100 million Americans depend on their hometown newspapers daily and why today's newsrooms are staffed with dedicated, highly trained reporters and experienced editors who bring you the very best journalism found anywhere, in print and online.

Cuts or cliff?

School board to discuss budget cuts Monday

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Gendron

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education will be discussing budget cuts at its regular board meeting on Monday, Feb. 25, in order to keep ahead of a "fiscal cliff" it expects in the school year 2013-2014, said district superintendent Robert Gendron.

The board will discuss cutting funding to spring junior varsity sports, spring athletic transportation, potential layoffs of spring coaches and budget freezes.

Gendron said the junior varsity sports have been "self-funded."

The junior variety softball and baseball teams may be helmed by volunteer coaches, the players will be hosting fundraisers to pay for officiating and relying on parent transportation. There may not be enough students to fill a junior varsity soccer team, said Gendron.

"A conservative estimate of the cuts (including the spring athletic transportation cut) will save the school about $12,000," he said.

The potential cuts will be in response to a loss of funding from the state in the form of state cuts to "Best Practice Guidance" funding and special education American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funding. The district will see a reduction from $52 per pupil to $16 from the Best Practice funding, and expects a $100,000 loss in special education funding.

"When you start putting all of those numbers together, it adds up," said Gendron. "We're looking at the same thing everyone is looking at. We're just trying to keep ahead of it."

Gendron said the board will also discuss freezing "various school budgets."

"The more we can capture now, the less painful it's going to be next year," he said.

The board will meet at 6 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 25, at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Board to consider Charlevoix native for new football coach

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

At its rescheduled regular monthly meeting Monday, the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education will consider hiring a Charlevoix native and current resident to serve as the new head coach for its varsity football program.

School officials have been in the market for a new football coach since Joe Pruchnicki tendered his resignation from the position in late November.

Charlevoix High School Athletic Director Brian Certa said after seeking applications for more than a month, a search committee pored over the candidates and arrived at a recommendation to hire Ron Bindi. Bindi currently is the head coach at Bellaire High School where he also works as a middle school social studies teacher.

Because of its small enrollment, (about 161 students) Bellaire High School is one of 27 high school teams in the state to play eight-player football. The school dropped down to playing eight-player football in 2010 and has posted a 25-9 record since then. Last year Bindi lead the Eagles to a 9-4 record, which included an appearance in the eight-player state final game where the Eagles lost to Deckerville 14-12.

If approved for the position, Bindi would fill the job Pruchnicki held for just one season.

The school board hired Pruchnicki in early June 2012 after Lowell High School defensive coordinator Jason Katt decided not to take the football coaching (and a teaching position) for which he had been approved in April. At the time Katt said he chose not to take the positions over concerns about job security in light of the district's continuing budget struggles.

Pruchnicki, 65, retired from coaching and teaching at Flat Rock High School in June. He had a 40-year career in coaching and teaching at various schools around the state. Pruch-

Utility rates nudged up, tax rate unchanged

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Millage rates will remain the same in the city of Charlevoix this coming year, but water and sewer rates will go up.

The change will take effect April 1. That's when the 2013-14 fiscal year starts for the city.

The city council adopted its new budget for this coming year and a fee schedule for water, sewer and other city services at its meeting Monday night.

Also at the meeting, the council approved final changes to this year's budget, ending March 31, and approved a redevelopment liquor license for Scovies Gourmet deli and bake shop.

The changes in city utility rates will include increases in rates for water, sewer, electric security lights, the car-charging station and rates and fees for city services including the airport, marina docking, cemetery, golf course, recreational facilities, garden plots and other miscellaneous fees.

The increase in water rates is based on meter size and will bring an additional $51,000 in revenue to city over what was brought in this year.

That increase will equal out to about $1.90 per month for the average customer. The changes in sewer rates will mean $0.90 per month more on the bill of the average residential customer.

"The water fund has gotten to the lowest point you want it to get to. We need to make sure it's turned around," said treasurer Rick Brandi on one reason why the increases were implemented this year.

Brandi

From April 1, 2013, to March 31, 2014, the city of Charlevoix will bring in approximately $3.4 million in revenue and spend slightly more than that. Expenses and revenues are expected to stay about the same this year compared with last.

Also, the millage rate, at 11.1 mills, is the same as last year with an additional 0.9 levied for rubbish collection for a total of 12 mills. The additional millage for the Downtown Development Authority district is 1.36 mills.

A mill is $1 in tax for every $1,000 of a property's taxable value.

"It's the same millage rate we've had for many, many years," said Brandi.

The cash fund balance at the end of the year on March 31, 2014, is expected to be $604,300 with $410,000 of that reserved for bond payments.

"The fund will still not have much cash for the next few years for projects unless there is improvement in the taxable value," wrote Brandi in a report to the council. "Future projections indicate an improved cash position after paying off bonds — but the long-term outlook is

Woman killed in crash with county snowplow

A traffic crash involving a Charlevoix County Road Commission snowplow and a passenger car on Saturday, Feb. 16 claimed the life of a Petoskey woman.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider identified the deceased as Garnette Moore, age 64. Moore, who was a passenger in a car driven by George Moore, 65, also of Petoskey, died at the scene as a result of injuries she sustained in the crash.

According to a sheriff's office news release, the crash happened at about 11 a.m. at the intersection of Upper Bayshore and Murray roads in Hayes Township.

Deputies said Moore failed to stop for a stop sign and the vehicle he was driving was struck by a plow truck driven by Douglas Scott, 61, of East Jordan.

The crash remains under investigation by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office, including an accident reconstructionist.

Charlevoix teen injured in Marion Township crash

A Charlevoix teenager was injured in a two-vehicle traffic crash that took place in Marion Township on Thursday, Feb. 14.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured driver as Shane Sutherland, 16. Authorities said Sutherland was treated at the scene by Charlevoix Ambulance crews for minor cuts to his legs.

According to deputies, the crash happened shortly before 5 p.m. on Marion Center Road near just north of Clark Road.

Authorities said Sutherland was driving north on Marion Center Road when he lost control of the vehicle, spun backwards and struck a southbound vehicle driven by Karrie Gaffney, 38, of Charlevoix. Gaffney was not injured in the crash.

Charlevoix woman injured in two-vehicle accident

A Charlevoix woman sustained minor injuries in a two-vehicle traffic crash south of Charlevoix on Monday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schndeider identified the injured woman as Hillary Cunningham, 22. Authorities said Cunningham complained of head pain from her head striking the side window during the crash, but she refused treatment by Charlevoix Ambulance crews at the scene.

Deputies said the crash happened at about 6 p.m. at the intersection of South Barnard Road and Klooster Road in Marion Township. Authorities said Cunningham was turning left onto Klooster Road from South Barnard Road in her 2005 Nissan Murano when her vehicle was struck in the driver's-side front fender by an eastbound vehicle driven by Robert Vance, 59, of Petoskey. Vance was traveling eastbound on Klooster Road when he failed to yield for Cunningham's vehicle, deputies said. Neither Vance nor his passenger, Mark Dvoracek, 57, of Charlevoix, were injured in the crash.

Dogman Challenge on tap Saturday

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

What might be the best way to win the Dogman Challenge?

Bike like you're trying to get away from the 6-foot-tall mythological Northern Michigan creature.

Named after Michigan's own version of the Yeti, the Dogman Challenge is a first-year bicycle racing event that will take place in Charlevoix on Saturday, Feb. 23.

"There are races named after bears, the Yeti, Sasquatch, that type of creature," said Chet Morris, owner of Revolution Bike in Charlevoix. "We have the Dogman, which is our mysterious creature that lurks in the woods up here."

In the challenge, bicyclists will repeat a two-mile loop over a period of two hours. Whoever completes the most loops, wins.

So, a mountain bike race in February?

That's where the type of mountain bike comes in. Most of the bicyclists will race on a specialized type of bike called a "fat bike." The bikes have a frame designed to hold a tire 3 1/2 inches wider than is typical.

"Most of the tires are roughly 4 inches wide," said Morris. "It just allows the biker to cover more terrain, and lets them float a little — especially through the snow. But they also work really good on hard-packed trails."

Too, if the rider chooses, he or she can run the tire's pressure considerably lower than a traditional mountain bike — 4-22 pounds per square inch versus the traditional 25-35 pounds per square inch.

This puts more rubber on the road, so to speak, and lets the rider access soft snow trails or soft sand beaches — whatever the season requires, said Morris.

The fat bike started to evolve in the early 1990s, said Morris. In 1987, alongside the famous dog-sledding race, Alaska's Iditarod, a race debuted called the "Iditabike." Though the endurance mountain bike race is now defunct, the race gifted the bicycling world the fat bike.

The inaugural Dogman Challenge will take place Saturday, Feb. 23, in Charlevoix.

These fat bikes have only started becoming popular in Northern Michigan over the last couple years, guesses Morris.

"Over the last two years, the bicycle manufacturers have really gotten on the bandwagon," said Morris. "These bikes are so different, they attract people's attention. People say, 'Oh wow, that's cool.' It brings out the kid in them."

The Dogman Challenge will consist of the two-hour endurance race for fat tire category as well as the "Skinny Tire Category," for mountain bikes with normal tire widths. Too, there will be the Dogman Dash, a single, fun run of the two-mile loop.

For the dash, a limited number of fat bikes, mountain bikes and helmets will be available for rent on a first-come, first-serve basis.

There's a minimum $5 entry fee participate in the Dogman Dash. Registration for the Dogman Challenge is $30, and online entry is open at www.onestoprace.com.

Registration will be capped at 100 riders. The Dogman Challenge will begin with a mass start at 9:30 a.m. in front of the ski lodge at Mount McSauba. The Dash will begin at 11:45 a.m. at the same place.

All of the proceeds from the suggested $5 donation for the Dogman Dash will benefit Mount McSauba.

"Mount McSauba has been in the community for a long time. It's city-owned and benefits the community and the kids," said Morris.

"It's not a big hill like Boyne Mountain or Highlands, but it does a lot for kids as far as introducing them to the sport of skiing and snowboarding."

Morris hopes the event will also benefit the cross-country ski trails, snowshoeing trails, and a new 18-hole disc golf course that the city hopes to open by this summer.

"We just thought we'd try to help Mount McSauba, to raise money for them for basic operations of the place or whatever they need it for," said Morris. "It's just kind of a 'thanks.'"

For more information, contact Morris at (231) 237-0900 or at art.bicycles@yahoo.com.

East Jordan awarded $420,000 from Waterways Commission for dredging

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — After months of calling, writing and visiting state representatives in Lansing, East Jordan city officials found some relief for their low-water woes.

The city is one of five in Charlevoix and Emmet counties to be granted a large sum of money from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Waterways Commission to dredge its harbor as Great Lakes levels now reach all-time lows, subsequently reducing the amount of water in subsidiary inland lakes such as Lake Charlevoix.

As water levels fell, municipal marinas scrambled to be able to open up this spring without the fear that boats will scrape bottom and cities themselves will scrape the bottoms of their pockets to pay, for expensive dredging projects.

East Jordan's marina is especially threatened because, in addition to low water levels, a large amount of silt is annually deposited into the harbor in Lake Charlevoix from the nearby Jordan River.

The $420,000 grant from the state is great news for the city commission after the possibility of closing the marina, a pivotal economic asset for businesses in the city. Officials pursued the grant after commissioners realized East Jordan may not have the funds to dredge itself.

All engineering and contractor fees to dredge the entire harbor six-feet deep and to create a disposal site will be entirely paid by the grant, reported parks and recreation director Tom Cannon.

And there likely will be money left over after that is complete.

"There's always been so many hoops to jump through. This year is a unique year," Cannon said. "I don't think anyone has ever seen this kind of money or streamlining of regulations."

The bad news is that the city can't use that excess state funding to build a silt containing wall — a project for which they were approved and for which they received a grant before all waterways funds were directed toward emergency dredging this year. The $164,000 steel wall would keep extra sandy material from entering the harbor from the river and prevent the need to dredge as often in subsequent years.

The city will continue to speak with state representatives about needed funds for the silt diversion wall for this year, but also will move forward with plans to fund the wall itself. If the wall cannot be installed this year, more money would be needed for additional dredging next spring.

"With the amount of money they're putting into this dredging project, it's a waste without this wall going in," said mayor Russ Peck. "This wall needs to be in by June."

The planned disposal area for silt removed during dredging this spring will be an unused river-front lot owned by the city intended as a parking lot for a proposed hotel that never materialized.

Sand and silt will be pumped through pipes running beneath the river and up to the site, where the materials will be deposited and later either be sold or disposed of as needed.

The city will build a containing wall at the site, Cannon said, to prevent silt from returning to the river. Construction of the site will be overseen by the state Department of Environmental Quality.

Travelers' tribulations lead to many memories

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

It's that time of year when we plan a trip to seek the wonders of our nation. Translation: "We are tired of shoveling snow, let's get out of here."

Booking hotels becomes the first part of the adventure. The young lady on the other end of the phone was still in her learning curve as I could hear a supervisor repeat what she felt I needed to hear. Four hours later, the young woman speaking on the other end had definitely improved her grasp of the English language. I gave praise as her vocabulary increased but when I reviewed our reservations with my husband I somehow acquired an accent that was definitely Middle Eastern.

Travel day arrived and we joyfully cleared the car of snow that had fallen the night before. Our happy dance ended far too soon. A fair, slightly-snowy day turned dark with visibility minimized by a blizzard throwing snow at us in all directions. It was something akin to being in a snow globe shaken by a 2-year-old.

As we continued finding our way south we began to wonder if we somehow hooked a Canadian clipper onto our trailer hitch.

Our vacations usually include a few interesting turn of events and the weather is always one of them. It's not unusual for blizzards, tornadoes and highway closings to occur whenever we decide to travel. To be on the safe side, call us prior to booking your next trip.

When we arrived to North Carolina we weren't surprised when locals reported they were experiencing an unusual cold snap. The unseasonable climate followed us south and feeling responsible for this weather we also accepted blame for the red tide that appeared along the Gulf shore. Locals also shared that this hadn't occurred in at least a decade. Well of course it hadn't. We haven't traveled in that locale in quite some time. OK, blizzards, dropping temperatures and dead fish. Maybe this was an omen.

When we arrived at our destination in Florida ready for a good night's sleep, we were awakened by the scampering of little feet. Unbeknownst to us, a soccer tournament was nearby and, of course, the competing teams booked at our hotel. Well, at least we knew it was considered a safe locale. When we arose for breakfast the following morning, we were surprised to see Elvis leaning against the front door taking a drag from his recently-lit cigarette. A poster on display informed us of the traveling Elvis look-alike appearing in town. It took awhile to get used to this slick, ebony haired gentleman in tight clothing strutting so early in the morning. Between scampering feet and swiveling hips, I felt our arrival to the front desk should have come with a warning: "Enter at your own risk."

I enjoy southern cooking but in the wake of high cholesterol, I found it difficult to find greens that weren't slathered in butter. Heavy-sauced foods were in abundance everywhere. Even the Dairy Queen was quick to offer biscuits and gravy to start your morning off right. They might easily rename this stretch of highway the Cardiac Corridor.

As always, the best part of the trip are the memories created by the people we spent time with and the lessons learned. While in the southern states we learned that most end their sentences with, "... well bless her heart." It didn't matter if the person they were speaking of celebrated a birthday or lost a home to a hurricane. This phrase frequently flowed as smooth as honey on warm biscuits. Something I ate a lot of for breakfast.

Wonderful southern Florida is home to many churches, cardiac units, skin cancer centers, golf courses and restaurants, not necessarily in that order. Regardless of weather and what came our way, it was a wonderful vacation embracing an appreciation for Southern living. We arrived home safe and somewhat sound. All is good and I just want to say, "Thank you, thank you very much. Well, bless our little hearts we made it home."

Veteran of the Month: James Wicker Sr.

Wicker

The "Veteran of the Month" for February 2013 is James Arthur Wicker Sr.

He was born Dec. 28, 1925 in Boyne City, graduating from Petoskey High School in the class of 1943 and going to work on a farm in the Petoskey area.

On March 7, 1944 Wicker was inducted into the Army entering into active duty at Fort Sheridan, Ill. and was reassigned to Company D, 66th Infantry Regiment, Fort Benning, Ga. for basic training where he qualified marksman with the M1 Garand rifle. Following basic training he volunteered for airborne training and during a night exercise, to experience parachuting into a water landing, wicker tripped his chute release twenty feet above the water to be free of the chute when entering the water, but either because of a miscommunication with or incompetence of the jumpmaster, they had been told to jump at the wrong time and location and what appeared to be water was actually blacktop and Wicker suffered a broken leg and hip which hospitalized him for five months. On Nov. 10, 1944 at the Separation Center, Fort Sheridan, Ill., Wicker received an Honorable Discharge having attained the rank of private and was awarded The Military Veterans Lapel Button.

Returning to the Boyne area he went to work for The Penn Dixie Cement Plant west of Petoskey and in 1945 he entered into a marriage with Margaret Scott, making there home in Boyne City, that ended in 1954. Following the closing of The Penn Dixie Plant Wicker went to work for Crain Well Drilling and on June 23, 1956 he married Francis Leona Reckall. On Dec. 28, 1990 he retired and enjoyed hunting, fishing, and watching sports. On Oct. 17, 1995 Wickers' wife Francis passed away, but he continued to be very active in The Ernest Peterson American Legion Post by participating in the Honor Guard at funerals and parades, worked Bingo for years and visited the sick, disabled and shut-in area veterans on a regular basis. On Dec. 9, 2012 James Arthur Wicker, Sr. answered the final call and is being honored by his surviving siblings and their families.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of the American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

What? A glorious Frank Lloyd Wright Prairie Style creation in Charlevoix? It nearly came to pass. At the very beginning of the 20th century, wealthy Chicago builder and Chicago Club summer resident Edward Waller commissioned Wright to design a palatial home that would incorporate the natural terracing on the club grounds. (Waller Road on the north side of town is named for him in recognition of the vast amount of acreage he once owned in that area. He provided much of the land for what is now the muncipal golf course.) Wright came up with the first version in 1902. This was scaled down somewhat in 1903. Waller's house never did go up at the club, but a much smaller beachhouse designed by Wright arose on a lakeshore sand dune off what is now PaBeShan Lane, then a dirt two-track, near Old Orchard Road. The house and its later owners gained a reputation as hosts of wild parties fueled by bootleg hooch. It mysteriously burned in the 1920s. Only the foundation survived along with lurid theories as to who did the torching and why. For years thereafter the site was used as a hunting blind and campsite by those who had no knowledge of its prestigious origins.

County jail inmates gain job skills in the kitchen

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

AEBRA COE/NEWS-REVIEW

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider and chief deputy clerk Cookie Borths, serve up pieces of carrot cake for the county board of commissioners Wednesday. The cake was baked by an inmate of the county jail who recently completed a food service training program there.

Abbey Van Horn, 24, has her hair pulled back tight in a ponytail as she walks confidently through the kitchen of the Charlevoix County Jail. Two carefully iced carrot cakes sit cooling on a counter, a testimony to the young woman's skill.

Van Horn does not work for the jail as one might assumed, she is an inmate there.

Two years ago, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider asked for ideas from his staff on ways to give inmates hands-on job skills.

"It's my philosophy that we try to turn people back out from jail better than we received them," Schneider said.

The jail offers GED completion courses, Bible study and the program in which Van Horn is enrolled: food service training.

The jail's cooks heard of a training program through Gordon Food Service, the company from which the facility purchases most of its food products.

They decided to implement the program, and say that so far it has been a success.

Students begin with food safety lessons, then move on to learning about nutrition, budgeting and menu creation. Each step of they way they are tested through written and verbal tests and, if they pass, are awarded certificates.

There are 20 levels to the four month program and Van Horn recently reached the final level. Her last task was to develop a full menu with calorie counts and costs, then prepare the meal.

As part of her meal, Van Horn baked a carrot cake made with carrots from the jail's garden.

"It was delicious," Schneider said.

In fact, it was so good, he asked her to bake another to take to the county board of commissioners recently.

The cake was a hit at the board meeting and the commissioners expressed appreciation to the sheriff for making the program available.

"It's not just about preparing food," said Schneider of teaching inmates a skill such as cooking. "It's giving them confidence in themselves that they are able to do this."

Van Horn says she appreciates the chance to participate.

"Just having the hands-on experience is nice," she said. "This is one of very few jails that let you have this learning experience. I'm grateful."

She was a server in restaurants before she was put in jail and says she is happy to learn a new skill in food service.

"This way I can cook, serve, bake, do all sorts of stuff to broaden my horizons," she said.

Hospital to host heart-healthy grocery store tour

In honor of February being noted as American Heart Month, the cardiac rehabilitation department at Charlevoix Area Hospital has teamed up with the hospital's nutrition services to bring the community a grocery store tour that will help people to make smart and informed food choices when doing their weekly shopping.

The event will take place from 1-2:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 26, at Glen's Market in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Area Hospital program director for cardiac rehabilitation Tina Foltz said that the goal of the event is to make healthy shopping easier for the community.

"When life is busy, it can be overwhelming trying to plan and make healthy meals, and with so many health claims bombarding people, it can be difficult to sort through the labels to find the food items that are really best for you," Foltz said. "The tour will respond to some of these health claims, and will also give brief tutorials about label and ingredient reading, how to navigate the aisles, and general shopping tips."

Organizers said the goal of the tour is to provide a new perspective for how people approach grocery shopping, to answer nutritional questions that shoppers may have, and help shoppers learn easy ways to plan and make healthy meals at home.

Glen's Market is located at 111 M-66 North in Charlevoix. There is no cost to attend, but space is limited, so registration is required. For more information on Shop For Your Heart or to reserve a spot on the tour call Tina Foltz in the cardiac rehabilitation department at (231) 547-8525

OBITUARIES

Beverly 'Bev' Jeanne Kaiser, 85

Beverly "Bev" Jeanne Kaiser, 85, of Charlevoix Township, died peacefully on Feb. 14, 2013, in Charlevoix, of natural causes following a brief illness.

Beverly was born March 9, 1927, in River Rouge, Mich., to Mary Crawford of Ohio and Royal Van Patten of New York. Beverly was a musically talented child who played piano and sang beautifully. She earned a degree in music from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where she also met her husband, Elbert Kaiser, a future chemical engineer. They were married Aug. 26, 1949, in Dearborn, Mich. Bev and Elbert had three children and a wonderful life together. The couple celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary last year.

In addition to her family commitments, Bev enjoyed successful careers as both a piano teacher and a real estate broker. Over the years, although she and Elbert lived in Ohio, Florida, California, and many cities throughout Michigan, their favorite place was Charlevoix. Elbert was the plant manager for the local Medusa Cement Company, and they happily decided to stay in Charlevoix after his retirement.

Bev was an energetic, involved presence in whatever she pursued. In addition to her music, she had a passion and affinity for reading books, playing golf, taking nature walks, doing crossword puzzles, engaging in lively conversation, tending to flower gardening, and artfully painting in oils. Bev also carefully followed neighborhood issues, local politics and the financial markets. She was a skilled bridge player with her friends, and a savvy stock market player with the investment club she helped organize.

Bev is survived by her husband, Elbert, of Charlevoix; daughter, Linda, and son-in-law, William Shannon, of Royal Oak, Mich.; son, Paul, and daughter-in-law, Annie, of Northville, Mich.; son, William, and daughter-in-law, Robin Daley, of Thousand Oaks, Calif.; and by granddaughters, Catherine, Caroline and Madeline Kaiser, and Kathy and Debbie Shannon.

At Bev's request, no services will be scheduled. Her family invites all of Bev's many friends to celebrate her life in their thoughts and in their hearts.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, or to the Charlevoix Public Library.

She was born to Julius and Lois (Housel) Hanslovsky on July 6, 1930, in Detroit. She moved to East Lansing, and graduated from East Lansing High in 1948. Parents trained to lend voice to community discussions

A group of parents is being trained to lend their voices to community discussions involving family issues.

The Great Start Collaborative of Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties has started a Parent Leadership Council, comprised of parents and providers of children 12 and under, to help strengthen families and build a thriving community.

"The authentic voice of parents is vital to community planning and growth," said Maureen Hollocker, director of the Great Start Collaborative.

Parent Leadership Council members will gain personal and professional development, Hollocker explained. They will build personal leadership skills, increase understanding of family strengths and the community, as well as have the opportunity to network with parents, community leaders and other professionals - all while serving as the voice of parents of young children throughout the region.

Members will participate in community outreach by representing Great Start and sharing materials with others as a parent voice at community meetings. They will also help plan and facilitate events put on by Great Start, as well as share child development materials and community resources with other parents.

Council members attended an orientation session in January where they learned from local experts about the five protective factors that make families strong, community meeting decorum, event planning, and received early childhood development materials. The parent representatives reside in Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Harbor Springs, and Petoskey.

"I love what Great Start is doing for the community and I'm excited to be a part of it," said Valerie Schreiber, a Parent Leadership Council member.

The leadership group is already taking part in planning Great Start's upcoming Early Childhood Regional Parent Networking Night on Wednesday, Feb. 13, entitled "Preventing Meltdowns SOS (Sensing Opportunities Sooner)." This is one of a series of early childhood education nights designed for parents and providers in collaboration with the Health Department of Northwest Michigan and the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

nicki, who owns a cabin on Starvation Lake near Mancelona, inherited a Charlevoix team from coach Don Jess, who resigned in December 2011 following a nine-year stint during which he guided the Rayders to a 41-44 record, including a 4-5 mark in 2011.

Under Pruchnicki, the Rayders posted a 1-8 record for their 2012 season.

Monday's school board meeting starts at 6 p.m. in the large meeting room at Charlevoix Middle School.

BUDGET

not positive because the tax base must grow to pay for the later term bond payments."

And updated numbers from Debra Chavez, the city assessor, show that between February 2012 and February 2013, taxable value in the city did not go up, but in fact fell by 0.1 percent.

Those lower taxable values, coupled with unexpected costs and less funding from the state have led the city to spend money from its fund balance the last two years in order to balance its budget.

"I'm concerned a little about, two years in a row, dipping into the fund balance. But, we're still ... at 31 percent of our total budget, which is a good place to be. We'd like to stay there," said Brandi.

In the final budget for 2012-13 fiscal year, which was approved Monday, expenses were nearly $132,000 higher than expected, coming in at about $3.4 million.

The main reason for the change, according to Brandi, was unplanned grant expenditures for the disc golf course and lake-to-lake trail, the extra expense of moving assessing services from the county to the city, the repair of a fire department pumper truck, the higher cost of electric services and several other factors.

City council also approved Scovies Gourmet deli and bake shop to move forward with an application to the state for a special redevelopment liquor license, hoping to sell beer and wine with lunch and dinner.

Unlike traditional liquor licenses which include a finite number that are bought and sold within the city, a redevelopment license is entirely new and is issued to a company, usually within a downtown area, that plans to make improvements to the physical structure of its building and property.

Planned improvements to Scovies include an expansion, a pass-through from the existing restaurant to the addition, a small bar for service of beer and wine for the restaurant, new signs, paint on the front of the existing building and the addition, additional equipment for the kitchen, heating and cooling improvements and handicap accessible bathrooms.

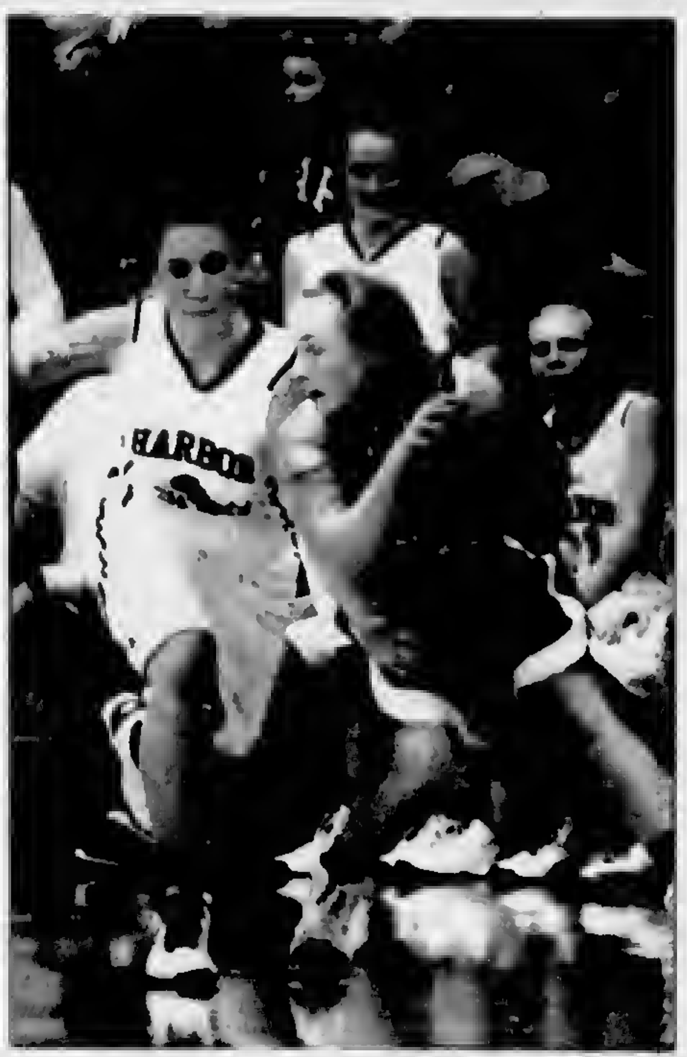
Charlevoix's Sydney Carlson looks to make a pass during the Rayders game against the Rams Friday, Feb. 15.



KURT GRANGOOD/NEWS-REVIEW

Charlevoix's Ellie Way looks to get past to Harbor Springs defenders during the Rayders' game against the Rams.

Rayders come back to beat Rams, fall to Grayling

HARBOR SPRINGS — Sydney Carlson scored 16 points and had three steals and three assists while Karley Pearsall added 11 points and nine rebounds and three blocks for Charlevoix during a 55-46 Lake Michigan Conference win over Harbor Springs on Friday, Feb 15.

For Harbor, Shallon Grawey scored 14 points and Maddy Savard added 13.

The Rams led at the end of the first quarter, 16-12, and at halftime, 27-20.

The Rayders would cut into the lead through to end the third quarter up 33-32.

"We had great senior leadership tonight," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "Sydney (Carlson), Karley (Pearsall), and Katie Hybl stepped up in the second half and made the difference in the game."

Also for Charlevoix, Kourtney Putman added 10 points, five rebounds and three steals while Gabby Gray scored eight points and Hybl had five steals.

Charlevoix improved to 6-12, 5-7 and will host Grayling on Wednesday, Feb. 20.

In the JV game, the Rayders fell to the Rams, 52-43. Olivia Storm and Leah Davis had 12 points and Sophie Herboldsheimer had 8.

On Wednesday, Madeline Boss put together a complete game for the Rayders, scoring 28 points with eight rebounds, four steals and four blocks, as Charlevoix lost to conference foe Grayling 69-66.

Gabby Gray finished the night with 14 points and four steals for the Rayders, now 6-14 overall, 5-9 in league play. Katie Hybl finished with 12 points, while Sydney Carlson had six steals and five assists.

Grayling held a 10-8 lead

BOYS VARSITY BASKETBALL

Rayders fall to Rams, Vikings

HARBOR SPRINGS — Peter Lauer finished with a team-high 20 points while Peter Kelbel and Neal Zoerhof each added 15 points as Harbor Springs held off Charlevoix, 71-70, Friday in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

With the win, the Rams improve to 7-10 overall, 5-7 league, while Charlevoix moves to 12-3, 9-2.

"It was a good win for us," Harbor Springs coach Geoff Morse said. "We've been playing better as of late and it felt good to get a win and to continue to play better."

The Rams led 19-10 at the end of the first quarter and were in front, 34-30, at halftime. At the end of the third quarter, the Rams were in front, 57-46.

Charlevoix narrowed the gap in the fourth quarter and cut the deficit to one point with just four seconds remaining on a Charlie Hamilton 3-pointer.

Hamilton finished with a game-high 32 points, while Devontae Drain added 13 and Tanner Catt, 11.

"We came out a little bit flat to start the game," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "Give Harbor credit, they have really been improving and it was our third game in four nights for us."

Also for Harbor, Zoerhof added 10 rebounds, while Kelbel added seven rebounds and three assists and Spencer Kloss grabbed six rebounds.

On Wednesday, Charlie Hamilton's 15 points weren't enough to push the Rayders past Grayling, as Charlevoix dropped a Lake Michigan Conference meeting in the Grayling High School gym 73-48.

Zach Hankins finished the night with 12 points for Charlevoix, who sat tied at 9-2 in league play with Grayling before the game.

With the loss, the Rayders fall to 12-4 overall, 9-3 in the league.

Both teams were tied at 12-all after the first quarter, but Grayling quickly took the lead in the second, and eventually took the lead at the half, 36-27, thanks to some costly Charlevoix turnovers.

"In the second quarter we really started to turn the ball over," said Adam Wood, Charlevoix head coach. "Defensively I thought we did not match up well."

Grayling would extend their lead in the second half, 55-35, at the end of three quarters of play, pushing the game out of reach in an uncharacteristic game for the Rayders.

Jake Swander led Grayling, 13-4, 10-2, with 16 points on night.

"Charlevoix will need to rebound quickly from the loss, with a matchup against league leader Traverse City St. Francis coming on Friday."

"We don't have enough time to dwell on it, we've got to get back and prep for Traverse City," Wood said.

Elsewhere in the Lake Michigan Conference Wednesday, East Jordan 62, Kalkaska 41

Jordan Weber scored 15 points for East Jordan as the Red Devils posted at 62-41 win over Kalkaska on Wednesday.

The Red Devils led all the way including at halftime, 38-28.

East Jordan would limit Kalkaska to just six third quarter points, while scoring 14, to end the third quarter up, 52-34.

Also for East Jordan, Matt Polsur scored 11 points, Collin Petrie added 10 points, and Noah Bacchus dished out eight assists.

East Jordan improved to 3-13 overall, 1-12 in league. The Red Devils will travel to Grayling on Friday, Feb. 22.

Brown qualifies for finals

One of three Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers who competed in the Michigan High School Athletic Association Individual Regional Tournament last weekend in Rogers City qualified for the upcoming state final tournament.

Although the season ended for sophomore Spencer Bruce (215 lbs.) and junior Jake Novotny (145 lbs.), senior Alex Brown (171 lbs.) took second place in his weight class and will be competing in the state finals set to take place two weeks at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

Rayder wrestling coach Mike Hinkle note that he was proud of all three wrestlers who competed in the regional tournament.

"It is only Spencer's second year and it was a big accomplishment for him to make it to regionals," Hinkle said. "Junior Jake Novotny has shown great leadership and a tremendous work ethic all season and is already planning his training for next year."

He added: "We are looking forward to supporting Alex while he makes his run at state. He took second at regionals to the reigning state champion at 171 lbs., Galloway Thurston from St. Ignace. We are hoping Alex gets a chance to face him again."

BOYS JV BASKETBALL

JV suffers 1st conference loss

The Charlevoix Rayder boys junior varsity basketball team suffered its first loss in Lake Michigan Conference play Wednesday, falling to the Grayling, 72-66.

Charlevoix coach Bryan Hawkins said sophomore forward Andrew Michaud and freshman point guard Walker Drost put in strong performances."But as a team could not convert from the free throw line, shooting only 7/18 for the game, including four crucial misses in the fourth quarter," Hawkins said.

Nick Plude, Austin Putman, and Will Telgenhof were leading scorers with 17, 15, and 13 points respectively.

Hawkins noted that the team can clinch at least a share of the conference championship with a win Thursday at Traverse City Saint Francis.

The team is now 13-3 overall and 11-1 in the league

On Thursday, Feb. 14 the Rayders had no problem walking away with a win over Harbor Springs, defeating the Rams 68-28.

"The defensive effort was incredible as (we) erased the Rams two top scorers fmm their previous matchup."

Hawkins noted that in the team's win over Harbor Springs earlier in the season the Rayders gave up 68 points.

"Holding them to 40 fewer points and getting a running clock was tremendous."

after one quarter of play and a 33-29 lead at the half on the Rayders.

"We played tough the whole game, said Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw. "I thought we did a decent job in the pressure defense. A couple baskets here or there it could have been a different ball game."

Charlevoix took the lead at the end of the third quarter in the back and forth ball game, leading 49-42 after three.

Grayling would come together late in the fourth, thanks to a strong night at the free throw line and eventually walk out with the win.

"They did really well at the free throw line, we struggled," said Shaw as the Rayders went 8-for-20 at the free throw line.

Grayling, 9-10, 4-9, was led by Sam Denno on the night with 20 points.

The Rayder JV team won its game Wednesday, 49-33. Olivia Storm had 24 points and Nicole Peterson had 14 rebounds.

Dolly (Carly Thompson, left), Horace Vandergelder's marriege broker, congralulates Horace (Brandon Arp), because he is about to propose to the widow Mrs. Irene Molloy, which she tried to arrange.

'Hello Dolly!'

High school musical production opens Friday

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix High School Performing Arts program will present the musical "Hello Dolly!" at 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, March 1-2, 7 p.m. Saturday, March 9, and 2 p.m. Sunday, March 10, at the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

"Hello Dolly!" is the story of Mrs. Dolly Levi's efforts to marry Horace Vandergelder, the well-known half-a-millionaire, and send his money circulating among the people like rainwater the way her late husband, Ephraim Levi, taught her. Along the way she also attempts to match up the young and beautiful Widow Molloy with Vandergelder's head clerk, Cornelius Hackl, Cornelius' assistant, Barnaby Tucker, with Mrs. Molloy's assistant, Minnie Fay; and the struggling artist, Ambrose Kemper, with Mr. Vandergelder's weeping niece, Ermengarde.

The show takes the audience on a whirlwind race around New York at the turn of the 20th century, as it follows the adventures of America's most beloved matchmaker, said Jodi Thompson, Charlevoix High School performing arts program director.

"Hello Dolly!" is full of memorable songs including "Put On Your Sunday Clothes," "Ribbons Down My Back," "Before the Parade Passes By," "Elegance," "Hello, Dolly!," "It Only Takes a Moment" and "So Long, Dearie."

Thompson said her affection for the movie version of the show (with Barbra Streisand playing Dolly) played a big part in choosing it for this year's production.

"What appealed to me most was the humor," Thompson said. I enjoyed the scenes in the movie where Dolly and Horace Vandergelder interacted with each other. The dialogue between the two characters is hysterical. I also love the music and costuming, especially the hats."

Thompson said the entire cast has been working hard and doing a good job getting into their characters.

"One of my favorite scenes in the movie version of "Hello, Dolly!" is the vocal duet between Barbara Streisand and Louis Armstrong. I tried to recreate that duet in our show with Zack Crandell, a young man in our cast who does an excellent job with vocal improvisation. He is playing the role of Rudolph, the head waiter. When Carly Thompson, as Dolly makes her grand entrance down the stairs of the Harmonia Gardens Restaurant, Zack (as Rudy) and Carly (as Dolly) sing a duet together."

Thompson said she's also particularly excited about the performance of Jake Sharrow, a junior, who just began

Spring JV sports, athletic transportation spared cuts

Official: Nearly $1 million in cuts likely needed for next year

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education voted Monday to spare spring junior varsity sports and transportation to all spring sports from a host of previously-proposed budget cuts.

To save a total of $10,470, the board proposed and passed multiple cuts in the athletic department at a Feb. 11 meeting. But because the Feb. 11 meeting took place in violation of the Open Meetings Act (see related story) decisions made at the meeting were deemed invalid and had to be reconsidered at Monday's meeting.

Those decisions included supporting a hevy of cuts to the athletic department. At the earlier meeting, the board voted to cut athletic transportation for all spring sports to save $8,500. The board also voted to cut the $1,970 salary for the junior varsity baseball coach. (A salary for a junior varsity softball coach had not been included in the 2012-2013 budget written back in June 2012.)

"I wasn't aware you were considering cuts until I read about it in the newspaper and got information from the athletic director," said Allen Telgenof, Charlevoix's varsity baseball coach, during the public comment portion of the meeting. "I was told the junior varsity baseball program would be self-funded. No one talked to me about that."

Telgenoff questioned the fairness of the cuts to the spring programs when fall and winter sports programs operated with full funds.

Ken Hoffman, Charlevoix's varsity softball coach, also worried that the cutting of a junior varsity team would discourage girls from playing varsity softball.

See related budget story on page A3

"We just got our junior varsity program back last year," said Hoffman. "We've been sending 1-2 kids to college (from the varsity) every year for four years, getting their education paid for. If we're out a junior varsity program, freshmen are more than likely not going to continue with the program."

But at Monday's board meeting, the board reversed from its Feb. 11 decisions, which had to be rescinded anyway.

"To address Alan's (Telgenof) comment, which I take to heart, about the fairness of (the cuts), we didn't want to do it earlier in the year because we thought it was not right," said board member Dick Joseph. "I think it was sort of a knee-jerk reaction to the fact that the fund (balance) was going to be so low."

Joseph referenced a figure given in a Feb. 4 meeting, at which Jeff Crouse, assistant superintendent with the Charlevoix-Emmet County Intermediate School District, worked through Charlevoix's school budget.

According to the minutes from that meeting, Crouse shared information about declining student counts with the board, as well as decline of expenses and loss of revenue that the district incurred after its budget was made in June 2012.

Crouse said, in a follow-up interview the district lost money because it did not get nine students it expected, which resulted in more than $70,000 in lost revenue. The district also had to adjust its staffing needs for those additional nine students who never materialized. Finally, the district lost money from the Best Practices initiative which previously funded students at $100 each. Because of state cuts, students are now funded at $52 each.

The Charlevoix Rayders will soon have one of their own heading up the school's football program.

At its regular school board meeting Monday the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education approved a recommendation from a search committee to hire Bindi, 59, to serve as the next head varsity football coach.

Bindi was born in Chicago, but moved with his family to Charlevoix when he was about 5 years old and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1971, after playing four years in the Rayder football program.

After graduating from Charlevoix High School, Bindi went on to earn his bachelor's degree in education from Central Michigan University and later earned a master's degree in health and

Health officials warn of renewed pertussis threat

The number of pertussis cases, otherwise known as whooping cough, are rising nationally, and cases locally in 2013 are up as well.

Pertussis can be unknowingly spread to others, especially infants and young children, to whom it may be deadly.

According to Joshua Meyerson, medical director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, in Michigan, 847 cases were reported during 2012 and one infant died. Three Northern Michigan cases have appeared already during the first two months of 2013.

"The best way to protect young infants is to ensure everyone around them is vaccinated," Meyerson said, adding that routine hand-washing is also helpful.

"Make sure every adult coming in close proximity to an infant has been immunized with a vaccine to prevent pertussis (Tdap). Make sure young children receive all five recommended doses of DTaP (diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis) vaccine at 2, 4, 6 and 15 months of age, and again at 4 years of age."

Meyerson added that there are new vaccination recommendations for women who are pregnant.

"All pregnant women are now being advised to get a Tdap during their third trimester, between 27 and 36 weeks, and they should get the Tdap with each pregnancy," he explained. "This provides additional protection for infants when they are born."

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the disease usually starts with cold-like symptoms and maybe a mild cough or fever. After one to two weeks, severe coughing can begin. Unlike the common cold, pertussis can become a series of coughing fits that continues for weeks.

Pertussis can cause violent and rapid coughing, over and over, until the air is gone from the lungs and you are forced to inhale with a loud "whooping" sound. This extreme coughing can cause you to vomit and be very tired. The "whoop" is often not there and the infection is generally milder (less severe) in teens and adults, especially those who have been vaccinated.

The Health Department offers all necessary immunizations, including Tdap and DTaP vaccines, through its clinics in Bellaire, Charlevoix, Gaylord, Harbor Springs/Petoskey and Mancelona. Medicare, Medicaid and many forms of private health insurance are accepted. Those without health insurance coverage for immunizations qualify for reduced rates for these vaccines. For more information or to schedule appointments for yourself and your family call the health department at (800) 432-4121.

Emmet County won't resubmit Charlevoix County recycling bids

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

Once, twice but not three times.

The Emmet County Department of Public Works Committee has advised its staff not to bid again with Charlevoix County to provide recycling processing and hauling services.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners reopened bidding in mid-February for companies interested in bidding on hauling and processing recyclables in the county. The deadline is Wednesday, March 6.

This latest round of bid requests marks the third time in four months the county has requested bids for the services.

Elisa Seltzer, Emmet County Recycling director, says Emmet County stands by its second bid and she has not been authorized to submit a third pricing quote.

"We have a standing agreement with them for processing," Seltzer said. "We stand behind the low bid we submitted for hauling, but the DPW (committee) is recommending we not go into another bidding process. There has been a lot of discussion about it, and it's an unfortunate situation."

In October, Charlevoix County opened bidding for its hauling and received only one bid from private-entity American Waste. That bid was in the form of a combined bid for processing and hauling, though. Emmet County has two years remaining on its five-year processing contract with Charlevoix County, so the public entity did not bid on hauling.

The combined bid sparked a second round of bid requests to provide both hauling and processing. While the Charlevoix County Recycling Committee recommended the county accept the Emmet County Recycling as the low overall bid, the Charlevoix Building and Grounds Committee recommended further restricting the bids to simplify, and again open them up.

Although it has not been specifically discussed by Charlevoix County, the current contract for processing with Emmet County Recycling has a termination clause of 60 days — meaning it would likely end a 12-year relationship between the counties if someone from this latest round of bids is chosen for processing and hauling combined.

In an administrative Emmet County Board of Commissioners meeting, department

County officials: Recycling bid request process was flawed

Officials in Charlevoix County may not agree on much when it comes to recycling contracts, but they do agree on one thing — The process of requesting and evaluating bids for its hauling and subsequently for its hauling and processing contracts was mishandled.

"I'm just disappointed in the way this whole thing has been handled," said Nancy Ferguson, chair of the Charlevoix County Recycling Committee.

Ferguson made that comment on the heels of news that Emmet County, one of two entities that were being considered to do the work, announced it would not submit a new bid to Charlevoix County for recycling services as requested.

Bids to contract a company to haul the county's recyclables to the Emmet County processing facility were originally sent out in October. But, when the sole bidder, American Waste suggested a price that was higher than recycling committee members desired, bids were opened a second time.

In its first bid, American Waste included an option for the county to save money by bundling hauling and processing services. It suggested Charlevoix County switch processing services from Emmet County Department of Public Works to American Waste.

Charlevoix County is in its third year of a five-year contract for processing with Emmet County.

The recycling committee was instructed by the buildings and grounds committee — a group of three county commissioners who would ultimately make a recommendation on the matter to the full county board — to go out to bid a second time.

School district headed for own fiscal cliff

Board holds off on immediate cuts as budget crisis looms

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

If it continues on its current path, by the end of this school year, the Charlevoix Public Schools may be teetering on the edge of its own fiscal cliff, with just $40,000 in the bank.

Jeff Crouse, assistant superintendent with the Charlevoix-Emmet County Intermediate School District, delivered the news to the school district at a Feb. 4 school board work session. Crouse consults with the district during the year about its budget.

The budget the board approved in June called for $10,262,921 in spending, but because of increased costs to basic programs, instructional staff, administration, operational costs and transportation, among other costs, expenses are expected to increase about $363,000 to $10,626,211. At the same time, revenues fell by a total of $65,139.

At the Feb. 4 work session, Crouse told the school board that because of the revenue decreases and expense increases, the district is on course to spend an additional $412,000 from its fund balance, which had rested at $452,827 when the board approved its budget on June 30, 2012. When approved in June, the budget had actually called for revenue to exceed expenses by about $58,000.

The change would leave the district with about $39,149 in its fund balance (savings) at the close of the school year in June.

Based on the grim budget outlook, Crouse recommended that the district make cuts that would total $925,000 for the 2013-14 school year.

The dire financial news prompted the board to look at making some tough cuts before the end of the 2012-2013 school year, said Charlevoix superintendent Bob Gendron.

Two injured in Marion Township accident

Two Ellsworth residents complained of head, neck and back pain following a two-vehicle personal injury accident on Marion Center Road on Friday night.

According to a release from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, the accident occurred when 19-year-old Christopher Light of Ellsworth lost control of his 2004 Ford F-350 pickup truck while southbound on Marion Center Road near Mascho Road at approximately 7 p.m. The F-350 crossed the centerline and was struck on the passenger side by a northbound Jeep Grand Cherokee driven by 55-year-old Glenn Rubingh, also of Ellsworth.

Both drivers were uninjured, however, Light's 45-year-old father, Shane Light, and 12-year-old brother, Joshua Light, had complaints of head, neck and back pain. Both family members were transported to the Charlevoix Area Hospital for further evaluation.

Winter walking: Good for the body, good for the mind

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

A few years ago I wrote in this space about the joys and benefits of walking in Charlevoix. I still do it and it still works.

It is just over a mile to busy downtown Charlevoix from our home, and most mornings I walk down to pick up a newspaper and maybe a few light-weight groceries from Olesons. The ducks no longer visit East Park, but the view is still inspiring

For me, walking brings the world around me into sharper focus, and while sidewalks may have the occasional patch of dangerous ice, they do not have the life-threatening chuck holes that are beginning to mark the streets and highways.

Even on a cold day (those with single digits on the thermometer),the walk is invigorating rather than troublesome. If the predicted wind-chill is well below zero, I might drive. Real frostbite of the nose or cheeks is not a laughing matter, and my circulation is not what it once was.

Winter does not provide the variation and change in plant life that we have in the warm seasons, but a new layer of snow with its new sets of deer, fox, squirrel and rabbit tracks makes for day to day variation. As someone once said of me many years ago, "It doesn't take much to entertain you, does it?"

Walking while thinking about walking has an almost philosophical character. We could call it "meta-walking" and make it the basis of a whole new sort of meditation practice. If the world needs a winter-walking guru, I am ready to apply.

This week's advice is to walk through Charlevoix this winter for your physical and mental health. There is a well-recognized condition called Seasonal Affective Disorder (appropriately acronymed SAD) that may especially afflict those of us north of the 45th parallel. And even on a cloudy day, the level of light that can offset SAD is available out of doors. A walk in Charlevoix can chase away the SAD winter blues.

So go walking. Get a dog if you need that stimulation, but recognize that you are doing it for yourself, not the dog. Besides, most days my walk downtown is pretty lonely, and I could use the occasional company. We need not only light, but people, to be truly happy.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

LETTERS to the editor

Clinton Street better for fireplace location

Editor:

Recently, my husband and I attended the meeting of the Charlevoix Steering Committee and left that meeting with the feeling that regardless what the residents believe to be best for their city, the fireplace/pit will be a reality. I did do some research and, depending who you talk to in Holland, most do not feel that it is a big draw to the city. It is located near the "watering holes" of the young adults. The seats are heated as is the sidewalk. It is mostly used during the busy festival weekends, and there is not much activity during the winter months.

The residents of Holland do not have to drive past the fireplace/pit to maneuver their way through town, unlike visitors and residents — summer and year round would have to do to make their way through town here. We have very limited green space in the downtown area and locating the fireplace/pit in the proposed area is taking away green space, not to mention the safety issues that it presents in the current location.

I have looked around Charlevoix and at the end of Clinton Street is a great location for this project. There is off-the-main-street parking, it would be visible as people traveled down the Bridge Street hill. For those coming down Clinton Street coming toward the lake it would be an interesting visual and from Round Lake, what a sight. And Mr. Winn would have a beautiful view from his residence.

The issue of how the gas bill would be paid after five years needs to be determined by the cost of gas five years from now. And a big thank you to those couple on the committee who are trying to do what is best for Charlevoix. Efforts should be going to keep this city alive and vacant stores filled. Otherwise there will not be any visitors coming here.

United Way asks taxpayers for 'check off' donations

Editor:

The CharEm United Way is encouraging Michigan residents to "check off" for the United Way Fund on Michigan tax returns. Tax form 4642 will allow people to donate all or part of their 2012 Michigan tax refund to the United Way Fund, a fund created to help Michigan's needy families with their most basic needs. The fund helps provide food, clothing and shelter for Michigan's low to moderate income families. Not getting a refund? You can still donate through your Michigan tax return by increasing your payment when you make your final payment.

Given today's economic conditions and high unemployment in Michigan, more families are at risk than ever before and the need for assistance has never been greater. The Michigan Association of United Ways worked with the Michigan Legislature to create a quick and easy way to donate resources that help ease the burden for many Michigan families. This year, please be sure to "check off" for the United Way Fund. All proceeds will benefit the United Way in your community. Giving has never been so easy!

County board hears recreational trail plans

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Plans for the second phase of a recreational trail that will stretch from Boyne City to Charlevoix are being firmed up.

Lucas Porath, a civil engineer for Northwest Design Group in Petoskey reported on what the second phase of the trail might look like to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at its meeting Wednesday evening.

The trail, to be built in phases as funds become available for the project, would accommodate bicycles, walkers, joggers and those on skateboards, scooters and wheelchairs. The first phase of the trail is fully funded and will stretch 3.2 miles from Boyne City east to Springwater Beach Road. Engineering on the first phase of the trail has not been completed yet, but construction is expected to begin either this year or by next year at the latest.

After anticipated federal funds for the second phase of the recreational trail were reduced, adjustments were made to the plans.

Rather than three larger phases, which would each cost in excess of $2 million, the engineer said the best plan would be to construct the trail in smaller pieces, each costing less with construction moving ahead as funds become available.

Porath and his company has had discussions about the project with the entities that provide state and federal grants for such projects, the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund and Federal Highway Administration.

"Based on those conversations (with the Federal Highway Administration officials) ... They're recommending we limit our request to half a million dollars to be competitive," said Porath. "We may not be successful if we ask for more than that."

The Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund grant from the state is currently capped at $300,000.

"That gives us about $800,000 to work with that would be potentially available in grants," he explained. "With that in mind, we came up with these trail segments with logical ends.

Plans for the second phase of the trail would have it stretch from Waller Road in Charlevoix, south to Quarterline Road. That segment would end by Susan Lake, where a nearby nature preserve and lake would serve as a destination.

From there, a third phase would run to Camp Sea-Gull, a fourth to Pincherry Road and a segment from Pincherry Road to Springwater Beach Road would complete the trail and connect it with the first phase, which will starts in Boyne City.

All of the segments are about three miles each.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' March 27 meeting will be held at the city hall in Boyne City at 7 p.m.

The board of commissioners agreed to hold a meeting in Boyne City at the request of city manager Michael Cain. The commissioners decided an evening meeting would be best because it would allow more members of the public to attend.

Commissioner George Lasater mentioned that the commission could hold a meeting in East Jordan as well, if the community there is interested.

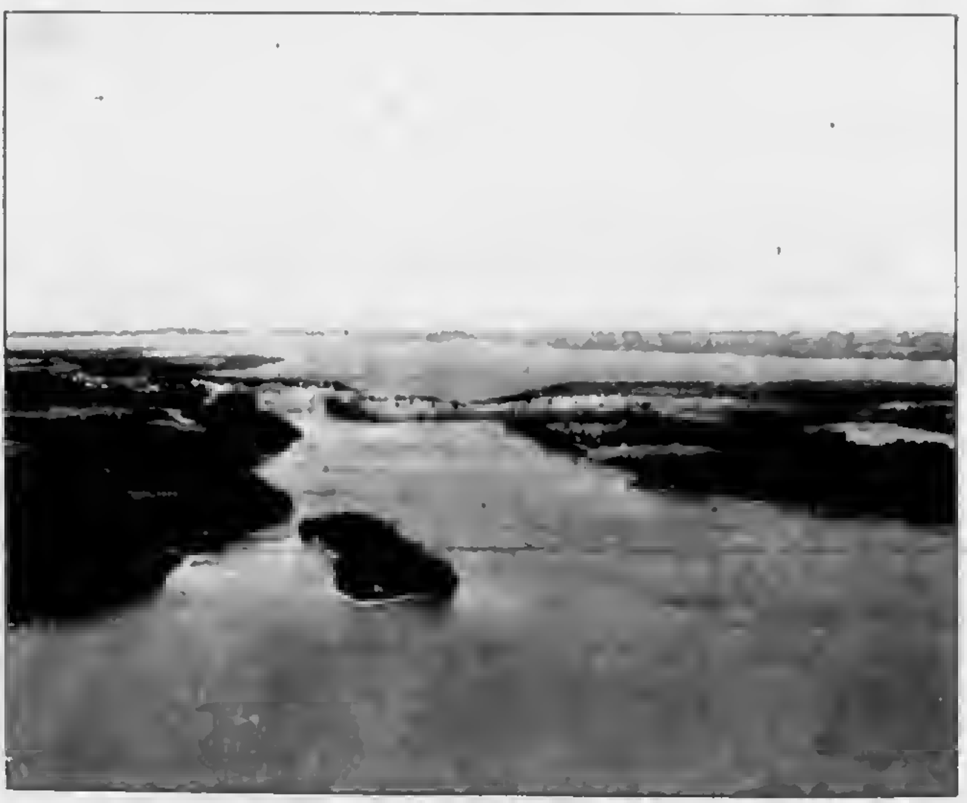
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Holy Island sits a few hundred yards south of Ironton in Lake Charlevoix's South Arm. What's holy about it? Only the fact that it was named such by King James Strang, the renegade maverick Mormon who founded his religious colony on Beaver Island in the mid 1840s. He crowned himself king in a bizarre ceremony using theatrical Shakespearean props in 1850. Mormon influence began to disseminate throughout this region as his rule grew stronger and more followers were drawn to the island. Strang and many of his people would often boat over to Pine River, as Charlevoix was then called, pass through and travel on to the inland lake where they held what they called religious "feasts" on the island they called holy. The little bit of land was intended to be their future mainland base and control center. Strang even named future Lake Charlevoix as Lake Mormon. But after Strang's assassination in 1856, Mormon dominance collapsed immediately like a house of cards. Only the name Holy Island, now populated by resort cottages, remained to remind us of the once and never-future fanatical yearnings of a power-mad religious sect.

Name chosen for proposed regional Catholic high school

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

St. Michael the Archangel Regional Catholic Academy is the name chosen for a proposed new Catholic high school in Northern Michigan. The regional Catholic high school committee determined the name after internal discussion, consultation with church leaders and informal parish surveys in Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Petoskey and Indian River.

"We went through a process called ignatian discernment, a spiritual way of making decisions," said committee co-chair Deborah Gagnon. "Initially, we came up with 10 names. Then we narrowed the choices to five in consultation with Bishop Bernard Hebda. These five names were sent to parishes all over the region. With that input, the committee settled upon St. Michael the Archangel."

"We were looking for a saint that kids could connect to," Gagnon said. "In St. Michael's prayer is the phrase 'protect us in battle.' Parents related to the spiritual battle of keeping kids close to their faith in this modern world. St. Michael was a warrior, and we liked his strength."

Catholic tradition recognizes the archangel as a strong, courageous guardian of the church and a defender of truth and goodness.

The school hopes to graduate resourceful and resilient Catholics by offering a rigorous, yet balanced curriculum targeting work and college-bound youth alike, along with extra-curricular activities and athletics, all integrated with the Catholic faith, according to Gagnon.

The committee has commissioned The Steier Group to determine the financial feasibility in this area of a capital campaign aimed at raising $13 million to build the school, as well as an $8 million school endowment. Private donations, a fundraiser reception with Bishop Hebda at Stafford's Perry Hotel, and a donation from Holy Childhood Parish in Harbor Springs raised the $25,000 necessary to do the capital campaign feasibility study.

"The current plan is for students in eighth grade to continue ninth and tenth grade in the current St. Francis Xavier School facility. Then, once the new school is built, seventh grade through eleventh would move to the new school," Gagnon said. "Ultimately, the new school would house grades seven through twelve."

Tuition payments, the proposed endowment, fundraising, parish support and sustainable Catholic ministries would cover operating expenses.

Fireplace steering committee update

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The five-person steering committee appointed by Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson to provide design and location suggestions to the Charlevoix City Council about a contentious proposal to construct a community fireplace in East Park was set to have its next meeting at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 28 — about six hours after the Charlevoix Couriers weekly press run time.

Since late December the committee has been working with two consultants to come up with design and location alternatives for the city council to consider. At its last meeting about a month ago, the committee seemed narrowing in on a design that was very low profile.

An update on the city's website about the steering committee's work read, "Please be aware that the subcommittee may be finalizing their recommendation at the end of the meeting on Feb. 28. Three out of the five members will be voting. John Winn and the city manager will not be voting. A joint meeting with the planning commission, city council and the DDA will most likely take place in March. We will update the web as soon as the date is finalized."

See the Courier's website, www.charlevoixcourier.com or next week's print edition for updates on the subcommittee's work.

In a related matter, the first of three windows for city residents interested in running in the upcoming city council recall election to file nominating petitions to appear on the ballot is now open.

For 2nd Ward (seat currently held by Bryan Vollmer), petitions may be filed from Feb. 22 until 4 p.m. on March 4. For 3rd Ward (seat currently held by Jill Picha), petitions may be filed from March 1 until 4 p.m. on March 11. For 1st Ward (seat currently held by Dennis Kusina), petitions may be filed from March 5 until 4 p.m. on March 14.

All petitions must be turned in to the Charlevoix City Clerk's office, at Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State St.

The recall election, which will take place on May 9, was prompted through a petition campaign sponsored by community members who are unhappy with the council for initial approval of the community fireplace project in August.

COACH

physical education.

Bindi's career has taken him to schools from Michigan to Texas. He has taught and coached at both the high school and Division 2 and Division 3 collegiate level. He even had three-year stint from 2001-03 working for the Arena Football League team the Grand Rapids Rampage, which folded in 2010.

Bindi said while working for the Rampage he filled many roles, from coaching to breaking down film to scouting.

He moved back to Charlevoix in 2004 and since 2005 has been a social studies and physical education teacher and football coach at Bellaire Public Schools.

Because of its small enrollment, (about 161 students) Bellaire High School is one of 27 high school teams in the state to play eight-player football. After struggling to maintain a roster with enough players to field an 11-man team, the school dropped down to playing eight-player football in 2010 and has posted a 25-9 record since then. Last year Bindi lead the Eagles to a 9-4 record, which included an appearance in the eight-player state final game where the Eagles lost to Deckerville 14-12.

Bindi said the Charlevoix coaching job came at just the right time as he plans to retire from teaching at the end of this school year. Bindi, who has served as an assistant, and sub-varsity football coach for Charlevoix in the past, said part of the appeal of the position was to come back and coach at his alma mater.

Bindi fills the job vacated by Joe Pruchnicki, who resigned from the post in late November after just one season leading the Rayders. Under Pruchnicki, the Rayders posted a 1-8 record for their 2012 season.

The school board hired Pruchnicki in early June 2012 after Lowell High School defensive coordinator Jason Katt decided not to take the football coaching (and a teaching position) for which he had been approved in April. At the time Katt said he chose not to take the positions over concerns about job security in light of the district's continuing budget struggles.

Charlevoix High School Athletic Director Brian Certa said after seeking applications for more than a month, a search committee pored over the candidates and arrived at a recommendation to hire Ron Bindi.

Bindi told the Courier Tuesday that he's aware of the struggles the Rayder football program has experienced in recent years and one of his primary goals this year will be to put those past problems behind the program and move in a positive direction.

"One of the biggest things I want to focus on, after what's happened here the past couple years, is build support for the program," Bindi said. "We want to try to put the differences behind us and work together. If you can get everybody working on the same page, things will work out."

He added: "I've been in the weight room a few times already, and the kids all seem to be on board to get going on a new endeavor. No matter what you do in life, if you are divided, you aren't going to be successful."

Bindi said he likes to play an aggressive style of football, especially on defense.

"We're going to try to force some turnovers. We want to be fundamentally sound."

"I like to run triple option (on offense)," Bindi said. "One thing I always liked about Charlevoix when I played and after was that Charlevoix always had speed. We need to use that trait to the best of our ability."

Bindi, who wasn't very big, but played offensive guard and defensive line in his playing days, added: "It isn't about how big you are, its about how big your heart is."

"If you are going to have successful football program, we have to take responsibility. We have to be in weight room lifting. We have to be disciplined. We have each other's back ... It has to be a 'we not me attitude out there.'"

Bindi said he hopes to build momentum in program and in the community.

"When I played here, we were always in the hunt for the conference title. The town was buzzing (about it) and that was a really good feeling."

Historical society to present program on Castle Farms

COURTESY PHOTO

Castle Farms, shown here in a photograph taken from an aircraft, will be the topic of a Charlevoix Historical Society program on March 5.

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present an illustrated program on the history of Castle Farms at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, March 5, at The Depot, located at Charlevoix's Depot Beach.

Kathleen Paterka, administrator/staff writer at Castle Farms and co-author of the recently published book "For the Love of a Castle," will narrate the program.

Paterka will trace the history of the development of Loeb Farms, built by Sears Roebuck vice-president Albert Loeb in 1918 as an experimental farm modeled on a northern French chateau, through its decline in mid-20th century, its years as a rock concert venue founded by impresario Art Reibel when more than 120 of the era's greatest musical attractions came to Charlevoix and Castle Farms, and now its resurrection as one of Northern Michigan's finest attractions.

Questions regarding the farm's beginnings, dismaying middle years, and rise to prominence over the past decade will be welcomed.

Light refreshments will be served. There will be no admission charge, but donations in support of the society are welcome. For more information, call the society at (231) 547-0373 or Paterka at the Castle at (231) 237-0884.

Hospital selected to be site of MSU Rural Community Health Program

Wendling

Charlevoix Area Hospital has been selected by Michigan State University's College of Human Medicine as one of three pilot locations for its newly expanded Rural Community Health Program.

Dr. Andrea Wendling, a family care physician at Boyne Area Medical Center, a Charlevoix Area Hospital affiliate, has accepted the position of director of Rural Health Curriculum at Michigan State, a role she will fill while continuing to care for her patients at Boyne Area Medical Center.

As part of her new position, Wendling has been working with MSU to develop the Rural Community Health Program, which is designed to enhance the medical education of students interested in rural health care by placing them into rural communities throughout Michigan for extended periods of time during their medical school education. This is done to help students better understand how care is delivered across a rural population as well as the special challenges encountered by rural health systems.

According to a hospital news release, Charlevoix Area Hospital was selected as one of the first rural education sites for the program because of its reputation for quality health care, the instruction students have received there in the past, and its status as a critical access hospital. The hospital will be providing on-site housing for the students, the first of whom is expected to arrive in July.

To take part in the program, students must be interested in rural medicine. Once selected they will spend up to 20-24 weeks of their medical school training in their assigned rural site, where they will receive hands-on medical training as well as a detailed look at the varied roles that rural physicians fill, not only in treating medical needs, but also in providing a leadership role in public health and community health care.

For the pilot year of the program there will be only one student selected per site, but in future years MSU plans to expand this to two students in each location. As the program continues, the rural sites can expect to have up to eight students at various educational levels present on their medical campus.

All of the active physician staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital will be considered adjunct clinical faculty of MSU's College of Human Medicine and students will be encouraged to learn from everyone.

Charlevoix Area Hospital CEO Lynn Jenks noted the hospital will benefit from the association of running a nationally recognized program, which it can leverage for medical staff.

"We can draw people to the area with not only the goal of providing excellent rural health care, but by providing them teaching opportunities as well," Jenks said.

Hospital officials said one of the greatest benefits to the community and another major goal of the program is to eventually increase the number of rural physicians in Michigan and to improve the retention of physicians working in rural communities.

Since graduating medical students often take their first job at a facility where they were trained, it is thought that involvement in the Rural Community Health Program will result in an increased commitment to the communities where its students lived and learned. Developing relationships with the staff as well as the patients will foster a personal connection that hopefully encourages students to return north for their medical careers.

"Ultimately, the goal is to highlight what our rural health care system already does well, and to teach the students how it can be done even more effectively," Wendling said. "We have wonderful health care management providers and practices in place up here, we just need to focus on maintaining and improving these practices as well as attracting future rurally-minded health care providers so that all communities can benefit, and this program is a great place to start."

RECYCLING

of public works committee members lamented to the bidding process, referring to the Charlevoix County process as faulty.

"I think it was the conclusion that we had made a good faith bid the second time around, that there was a process over there that we don't understand, that there was no reason for us to continue participating in a process that appears to be flawed," said Emmet County Commissioner and public works committee member Charlie MacInnis.

"It's not a win for Charlevoix County. They may discover that the prices are going to be more expensive," MacInnis went on to say.

Emmet County Commissioner Shawn Wonnacott went even farther.

"Personally, I'm sick of seeing (Emmet County Recycling staff) work so hard and not get anywhere," Wonnacott said, commending the staff for its labor during the last few months.

Wonnacott said he hopes Emmet County Recycling backing out of the latest bidding process entices more private companies to step in and bid.

Potential impact

Because Emmet County Recycling works on "economy of scale" the loss of its Charlevoix County contract could potentially mean scaling back.

Two years ago, Emmet County expanded its facility partly in anticipation of its long-term contractual relationship with Charlevoix County.

However, Emmet County Recycling has already bid to provide both processing and hauling in Otsego County.

Emmet County Recycling is the low bid on a three-year hauling and processing contract with Otsego County, though a decision has not been made. The county encompassing the Gaylord region approved a recycling millage in 2012 to begin offering the service to its residents.

On Thursday, the Emmet County Board of Commissioners approved up to $86,000 for the purchase of 12 recycling bins to facilitate the contract if it is awarded.

BID FLAWS

New bid specifications were drawn up, again for hauling, but American Waste and Emmet County — two companies capable of processing recyclables in the region — were requested verbally to submit quotes for how much it would cost to handle both hauling and processing together.

Those came back and the recycling committee recommended that the buildings and grounds committee accept the bid for hauling and processing from Emmet County.

But, there was confusion over the cost of the bids and the matter was delayed for several months, before, in February, the committee made a decision to send the services out to bid once more.

"To debate this any further would be useless," asserted chair of the buildings and grounds committee Richard Gillespie in a February email to county clerk Cheryl Potter Browe. "Rebidding is the only real way to resolve the issue."

A subcommittee made up of recycling committee liaison Larry Sullivan, recycling committee member Michelle Hewitt, human resources coordinator Kevin Shepard, maintenance director Frank Shaler and Browe was commissioned to come up with new bid specifications.

Of the five people involved, three met to come up with nine questions to ask bidders, according to Sullivan. It was reviewed by the county's civil council and chair Gillespie, said Sullivan, before the remaining two members, himself and Hewitt, received copies of it and were involved.

"I did not see it until after the chair and civil council reviewed it," Sullivan said.

Then, on Feb. 20, all five members of the subcommittee met and minor changes were made to the questions and a few paragraphs soliciting bids was drawn up. The deadline for bids is Wednesday, March 6.

The request was placed on the county website, but was not advertised in any of the county's newspapers, according to Browe.

Despite the fact that the hauling and processing bid specifications and expectations have been placed on the county website under the "accepting bids" tab, some of the subcommittee members don't see the questions as a new request for bids.

"They were just to clarify the bids that were submitted before," said Shaler, "Not to submit entirely new bids. The second time we got bids from both parties they had hauling and processing in their second bids. It was to clarify their bids as they had been submitted."

"Both parties last time offered us hauling and processing ... Both of them were different ways that they were presented and the buildings and grounds committee wanted this clarified," he continued. When asked if other entities could bid if desired, Shaler admitted that they could. Nine questions and a few paragraphs are enough detail for bidding on a county service, he said. "If there's confusion, I guess they could always call," he said.

Shepard was also of the impression that the nine questions were more of a clarification of the existing bids than a request for new bids.

"I don't want to call it a rebid or spec sheet," he said. "That wasn't my interpretation from the buildings and grounds committee."

The intention, he said, was to "clarify information we already have to compare apples to apples."

Shepard admitted that the process used to date in pursuing contracts for recycling contracts "hasn't been the best."

He went on to say that it was all done in order to ensure taxpayers in the county were protected and the process of finding a new company was as fair as possible.

"In terms of bidding process," countered Ferguson, "I feel ... it was precocious to bid for processing and hauling before our contract was up. In two years from now (when the contract expired with Emmet County) I don't have a problem, bring it on."

She said she believes breaking the existing processing contract with Emmet County is a mistake.

"I'm not happy with our board and our buildings and grounds committee," she said. "I think you honor contracts. Who will want to make another contract with Charlevoix County?"

Recycling committee member and East Jordan city manager Chris Yonker agrees.

"From a moral and ethical standpoint, I think it was important that Charlevoix County stand by that five-year agreement that we had with Emmet County," he said at a recent East Jordan City Commission meeting. "From my perspective what's going to happen is the bids are going to come in and they're going to have one bid. How that is better than the system we had put in place in the first place is beyond me."

He said he feels bad that Emmet County invested money in expanding its processing facility with the understanding its contract would be honored with its neighboring county.

"It's wrong," he said. "I have nothing against American Waste. I think it's just the process that was used was unacceptable."

The Emmet County Department of Public Works Committee has advised its staff not to bid again with Charlevoix County to provide recycling processing and hauling services. Elisa Seltzer, Emmet County Recycling director, says Emmet County stands by its previous bid and she has not been authorized to submit an additional pricing quote.

Crouse said the district should estimate to use an additional $412,000 from its fund balance. At the end of fiscal year 2011-2012, the school had just over $452,000 in its fund balance.

If the school's spending proceeds without cuts, it is projected to have just over $40,000 in its fund balance at the end of the school year.

At the Feb. 4 meeting, Crouse recommended the district make cuts during the 2013-2014 budgeting process totaling $925,000.

"It's kind of a ballpark estimate to let them know that they're looking at a pretty good-sized number. $925,000 is a very significant amount of money," said Crouse.

To reach that nearly million-dollar mark, the board will likely have to again eye programs such as junior varsity sports.

But Board secretary and treasurer Valerie Snyder made the motion to not approve the sports-related budget cuts for this school year, and the motion carried unanimously.

So the spring junior varsity sports and spring transportation for 2013 are safe — for now. In fact, the board also voted to add the salary of a junior varsity softball coach to the budget, because that salary had not been included when the budget was made in June 2012.

"But you might want to, as a coach, maybe not count on it so much in the future because something is going to have to give somewhere, and that's an item I would look at for next year," said Joseph.

"At that time, the board realized they needed to move forward with trying to capture as much money as they could before the end of the (school) year," he said.

The board moved quickly, scheduling a special meeting for Feb. 11 to consider the proposed cuts for this school year.

At the Feb. 11 meeting, the school board approved nearly 80,000 in immediate budget cuts that would have given the school about $120,000 in its coffers at the end of the year.

Then the board ran into another problem: The Open Meetings Act.

A bill signed into law by Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder on Dec. 27 modified the open meetings act to require public bodies to also post notices of their special meetings on their websites at least 18 hours before the meeting. Since the online posting did not take place, none of the decisions the board made at the Feb. 11 meeting were valid, said Valerie Snyder, board secretary and treasurer, at the board's regular meeting on Monday.

At the regular board meeting Monday, the board was slated to approve the February budget amendment, an adjustment that most school boards make partway through the year after the school has taken stock of its enrollment and state revenues, said Crouse in a follow-up interview.

That budget amendment included appropriating $369,794 from the fund balance to cover expenses the district incurred by hiring new staff. But some of the board were uncomfortable with dipping into the fund balance to that degree.

"I agree with Lori's (Martincheck, director of finance and administrative services for the district) numbers, but I couldn't vote to approve this amendment because I don't agree with the process and how they got to it," said board trustee Glen Catt. "I don't think it's a wise decision."

Member Dick Joseph questioned how the school would pay for its expenses if it doesn't approve the amended budget.

"I know none of us really wants to do it, but we did it. We hired the teachers. Now, how do we move forward and pay for that if we don't include this budget?" said Joseph.

Valerie Snyder, board secretary and treasurer, said there were still questions about the district's revenues and expenditures.

"I think we can still move forward and pay for that," she said. "We'll have to amend our budget to match what we actually spent."

Member Nancy Allison moved to table the motion until a following board meeting, and the motion carried 4-1 with Joseph opposing. Board president John McLean and vice president Kevin Pearsall were absent.

"I think with something of this caliber, we need a full board to discuss it," said board member Mike Pearsall. "We have two vacancies tonight. I feel we really need the other two inputs."

Next, the board considered the budget cuts it had approved at the Feb. 11 meeting, which had since been deemed invalid.

The first portion of the cuts included $49,000 from school budgets — including $12,000 from the high school budget; $15,000 from the athletic budget; $15,000 from the middle school budget; and $7,000 from the elementary budget.

Board member Nancy Allison worried that the numbers within that $49,000 were not clear enough.

"We don't have solid enough numbers behind any of this. I do not feel we can make an educated decision tonight, especially with some of the things that have just come up at the state level and federal level. Our revenues may be changing again," she said. "We're not in deficit spending at this point."

"I think we have to deal with it tonight," said board trustee Glen Catt. "These are a lot of tough, emotional things, and we have a financial problem."

Catt pointed out that the district was spending down its balance to an alarming point.

"In 2001-2002, we had $4.376 million in our fund balance," he said. "At the end of this year, we're projecting to have 40 (thousand)."

Board member Dick Joseph moved to approve the $49,000 budget cut with Catt seconding the motion.

The $49,000 did not include actual cuts to departments in the school, said Gendron in a follow-up interview. Rather, he asked administrators at the elementary, middle and high school to tighten down expenses they did not expect to use before the end of the school year.

"We're not cutting," said Gendron. "We wanted to conserve a few dollars before the end of the year. Some (budget items) are necessities and some are wants. So (the administrators) are taking care of (eliminating) some of their wants."

The board also voted to strike down other cuts it had previously approved at the Feb. 11 meeting. The board voted 5-0 keep funding for spring sports athletic transportation and spring junior varsity athletic coaches salaries, which would have saved the school $10,470. The board voted 5-0 against laying off a custodian to the tune of $12,000.

The district also voted 5-0 against laying off a half-time library media specialist and half-time athletic and attendance secretary. That move would have saved the district between $2,500 and $5,800 and $4,000 and $8,000, respectively.

But while the board decided not to make those cuts after all, that reprieve still leaves the district with a problem: the $40,000 fund balance it will be staring at while trying to put together its budget for the school year 2013-2014, and more than 900,000 to cut from its 2013-2014 budget.

"These positions are probably not going to be there next year," said Catt. "With a million dollars hanging over our heads to cut next year."

The board will meet next for a work session at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, March, 5, at the administration building. Its next regular board meeting will take place at 6 p.m. on Monday, March 18, at the Charlevoix Middle School.

performing with the Performing Arts Program this year, as Jacob Markey in "A Christmas Carol."

Thompson noted that a back injury kept Jake from finishing the wrestling season this year, but he has been very involved with Performing Arts instead, this time in the role of Cornelius.

"I have been amazed at what a natural he has been with his acting and dancing. Unsure at first about singing, he has tackled that as well and has been doing a great job."

Thompson said the production has again benefited from contributions from John Guirey and the Charlevoix High School Art Department who helped out by drawing and painting the design on the street scene.

Thompson also offered her thanks to all the parents and community members who have volunteered their time and talents on the production.

"The students and I would not be able to put on this production without all the creative adults who have helped us this year with set building and painting, costumes, props, makeup and hair, sound and lights, programs, and various other behind-the-scenes work," Thompson said. "We also appreciate all the businesses that have supported us by purchasing ads for the program, and have let us borrow set and costume pieces (Consign Design and Grey Gables). And, we are thankful for the Charlevoix Schools Foundation who supported us through a grant that helped to pay for our script rental fees and royalties."

Tickets will be sold at the door and are $5 for students, $7 for adults. For the Sunday matinee, a family package for two adults and two or more children is offered for $20.

SPORTS

Rayders fall to Gladiators, roll past Cheboygan 73-47

After suffering two tough losses to conference foes last week the Charlevoix Rayder boys varsity basketball team returned to its winning ways Tuesday with a win over non-conference Cheboygan 73-47 on their home floor.

The Rayders were led by junior Zach Hankins, who finished with 12 points. Seniors Charlie Hamilton and Tanner Catt each scored 11.

With the win, Charlevoix moves to 13-5 overall.

"We talked to the guys about stepping up each game before districts," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said.

"It feels good to get back on the winning track. It's a good confidence boost."

The Rayders and Chiefs battled throughout the first quarter with the Rayders coming away from the first with a one point 14-13 advantage.

The Rayders led by as many as 11 points in the second quarter, but the Chiefs would push it to a nine-point game at the half, 31-22.

Charlevoix pushed out to an even greater lead after the third quarter, up 52-34, with the game well in hand.

Cheboygan, 9-8, was led on the night by junior Ben Pearson with 15 points.

Charlevoix were set to close out the regular season hosting conference foe Grayling on Thursday, Feb. 28.

On Friday, Feb. 22, Kody Kleinrichert scored a game-high 22 points, Damon Sheehy added 18 and Byron Bullough had 16 as Traverse City St. Francis defeated Charlevoix, 78-57, in a Lake Michigan Conference contest.

The Rayders trailed at the end of the first quarter, 20-17.

"We played a great first half," Charlevoix coach Adam wood said. "During the third quarter without a starter we ran out of gas against a good pressure team."

The Gladiators stretched the lead to seven, 39-32, to end the first half.

The Gladiators would outscore the Rayders 23-13 in the third quarter to pull away.

BOYS JV BASKETBALL

JV defeats Cheboygan, St. Francis

Stage set for rematch against Grayling Thursday

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity boys basketball team bounced back from its first conference loss of the season last week with two wins.

On Thursday, Feb. 21, the Rayders suffered their first conference loss (and only third overall) of the season when they fell to Grayling 72-66. Nick Plude led the scoring for the Rayders with 17 points, followed by Austin Putpman with 15 and Will Telgenhof with 13.

But the loss didn't keep the Rayders down long, as they bounced back the following night posting a 60-56 win over Traverse City St. Francis on Friday, Feb. 22. the win clinched at least a share of the top spot in the conference for the Rayders for the season.

Plude led the way in scoring again for the Rayders with 25 points, while Telgenhof and Putman had 9 each. Charlevoix coach Bryan Hawkins also lauded the play of KeNan Borths, Walker Drost, and Andrew Michaud.

On Tuesday, the Rayders made quick work of Cheboygan, defeating the Chiefs 72-43 in a non-conference match-up

The win improved the Rayders' record to 15-3 overall.

Hawkins said his team "punished the glass, and owned the interior" as they surged away from Cheboygan in the second and third quarters.

Sophomore center Nick Plude scored 14 of his game-high 23 points in the second quarter. Freshman power forward Austin Putman scored 16.

Hawkins also lauded the contributions of sophomores Nate Moon, Adam Michaud, and J.J. Wachler who all "played solid defense and made timely baskets."

The JV boys close out their season with a rematch against the Grayling Vikings Thursday — the only team to beat the boys in conference play.

Tough competition awaits Rayders in district tourney

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

BOYNE CITY — In order to be the best, you have to beat the best.

In the case of the Class C boys' Boyne City district, that old saying is as real as anything.

With two conference champions and just one team below the .500 mark, the best of the best of local Class C basketball make up Boyne City's district.

You won't get an argument from Charlevoix head coach Adam Wood, who believes it's one of the best brackets in the state.

"We have, in my opinion, and I think the opinion of a lot of people around the state, one of the toughest Class C districts in the state," Wood said. "I think we got a good draw, but a tough draw."

The Rayders, 12-5, drew rival Boyne City, 9-8, in a first round matchup at 5:30 p.m on Monday, March 4, at the Boyne City High School gym, while Elk Rapids, 9-9, drew Maple City-Glen Lake, 16-2, in a first round matchup the same day in Boyne City at 7:30 p.m.

Ranked No. 2 in the Class C Michigan Associated Press poll, Traverse City St. Francis, 18-0, has a first round bye, as does East Jordan 4-13.

The winner of the Boyne City-Charlevoix matchup will play St. Francis, while East Jordan plays the winner of Elk Rapids-Glen Lake. Both games will take place in Boyne City on Wednesday, March 6.

The championship game is set for Friday, March 8, in Boyne City.

Charlevoix brings in a 6-1 record against teams in their district and matchup first against a rival they've beaten twice already this season, in games of 51-40 and 56-47. Wood knows it won't be easy, as the third time could be the charm for the Ramblers.

"It'll be fun to play Boyne again," Wood said. "It's always tough to beat any team three times, but we're looking forward to that challenge. With the rivalry, all previous records go out the window anyway."

The Rayders are led by an impactful senior group, headlined by 3-point aces Charlie Hamilton who's averaging 14 points per game and Tanner Catt, who's at 12 points a game and 6-foot-4 Sawyer Russell. Seniors Devantae Drain and Logan Hess add to the solid group.

Juniors Justin Pearl and 6-foot-8 Zach Hankins, 10 ppg, 7 rebounds, are key underclassmen for the Rayders as well.

"We haven't necessarily had that one person that has carried us every game," Wood said. "It seems to be someone different each game. That's a good thing for us."

With a first round win, the Rayders would matchup against Lake Michigan Conference champion, St. Francis, the only team in the Class C district they've lost to this season.

"Obviously if we're fortunate enough to come away with a win, we've got Traverse City looming on the other side," said Wood. "We got a pretty tough draw, but it's part of the tournament."

Boyne City would love nothing more than to end the Rayders season, just as they did in the Class C district last season and the two before that.

Last year, the Ramblers then went on to win the district.

"We're excited, I'm glad we get to play them because it's a rivalry game and the districts add to that," Boyne City coach Nick Redman said. "So it's going to be a very exciting game."

Led this season by sophomore Corey Redman, who is averaging 21 points per game, the Central Michigan University product is one of many underclassmen the Ramblers feature to build around for the future.

Brad Fouchia, who's averaging 12.5 points, and Ryan Carson headline the juniors, while sophomores Maceo Vroman, 10 point a game, and Zach Napont add to the group.

"We've definitely improved throughout the year and we're finally starting to get healthy," Redman said. "I'm really happy with where we're at now. We're an awfully young team and the kids have been working hard and playing together. As a coach that's all you can ask for."

East Jordan is led by seniors Joseph Manville and Matt Bosler, along with junior Noah Bacchus and freshman Jordan Weber.

After a down season in Lake Michigan Conference play, the Red Devils will welcome a fresh start.

Whoever comes out of the Boyne City Class C district, they'll have proven themselves through one of the toughest gauntlets the state has to offer. Just what a team needs to prepare themselves for bigger and better games.

"If your goal is to get to Lansing and make it to Breslin, you're going to have to face the best teams anyway. At some point you've got to get through them," Wood said. "So, bring your hard hat and lets play some ball."

0710 IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY

ROBIN MERTEN
Jan. 30, 1994

TOPPER CAREY
Feb. 24, 1994

"A butterfly lights beside us
Like a sunbeam.
And for a brief moment
Its glory and beauty
Belong to our world.
But then it flies on again
And though we wish
It would have stayed,
We feel so lucky to Have seen it."

We are so grateful that even for a brief moment you "belonged to our world." You shared your love with us and brought us joy and laughter. We made special memories that will never fade. But then, much too soon, it was time for you to "fly on again." Though we wish you could have stayed, we will always feel so blessed, and lucky, to have had you in our lives. Your strength and courage continue to inspire us.

We will always love you.
Steve and Nina (Carey) Merten, Christopher and Cassidy

Council to consider policy on zoning

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

At its regular semi-monthly meeting on Monday, the Charlevoix City Council discussed yet another matter spawned by the East Park fireplace controversy: Should city projects, such as the fireplace in East Park, go before the city's planning commission?

In the weeks after the fireplace project was approved, one of the many complaints about the project and the process the council followed to approve it, was the fact that the city's planning commission was not consulted before the project was approved.

In response, city officials said a project like a fireplace feature wasn't required to go before the planning commission, a contention against which some opponents of the fireplace bristled.

The debate jogged the memory of some current and past planning commission members who recalled in 2006 the council had approved a policy recommendation from the planning commission that, in a nutshell, said all city projects should be subject to the same zoning requirements that any other project would.

However, research by city clerk

East Park fireplace issue headed back to council

Special meeting set for 6 p.m. Monday, March 11

After months of discussion, debate and community uproar that led to a recall election, the Charlevoix City Council may be getting close to making a decision on the future of a highly contentious community fireplace project in the city's East Park.

The council has scheduled a special joint (or concurrent) meeting with the city's planning commission and the downtown development authority board for 6 p.m. on Monday, March 11 to discuss the options for the project.

The move to schedule the meeting comes the heels of a third and final meeting of last week of a sub-comittee tasked with coming up with suggestions for options for the fireplace's design and location.

The sub-committee was appointed by Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. in response to a chorus of complaints among some city residents about the project.

In July city resident John Winn came to the council on behalf of an anonymous donor who wished to pay for the construction of a gas-fueled community fireplace and chimney in East Park's Plaza B, which is located along the east side of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason streets. The council approved the project at a special meeting on Aug. 9, but when construction started several days later, residents began raising concerns about the project. Primary concerns were that the 20-foot tall chimney would block views of the park and Round Lake from Bridge Street, that the structure did not fit in with the park, and that its burning of natural gas was an unnecessary cost to the city. After hearing a chorus of complaints at several meetings, the council voted in September to put the project on hold so it could explore options for the project.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

About a dozen audience members and the fireplace steering committee listen and consultant Richard Hitz talks about design options for the proposed fireplace at a meeting at city hall on Thursday, Feb. 28.

A short time later, consultants Mark Buday and Richard Hitz, both of whom had a role in the design of portions of East Park, offered to help the city come up with options for the project at no charge to the city. At the same time, the donor, who had originally made completion of the project in time for the 2012 Apple Festival a condition of his donation agreed he'd be willing to consider modifications and to delay the project until spring.

The steering committee was made up of Winn representing the donor, city manager Rob Straebel, representing the city; downtown business owner Jodi Bingham, representing people opposed to the project; Becky Doan, representing people in favor of the project; and Pat Miller, representing those with no opinion or undecided on the matter.

From the outset the Hitz and Buday focused the committee on what they believed to be its charge. Not whether or not there should be a fireplace in the park, but rather, if there is going to be one, where should it go and what should it look like.

The group looked at several different locations including the corner of Clinton and Bridge Streets, near the trout pond, and near the performance pavilion at the south end of the park, but discussion eventually returned to the original location in Plaza B as being the best to allow the fireplace to be seen from the road and to serve one of its main intended purposes — to serve as a draw and gathering space for visitors to the downtown, especially in the cooler "shoulder seasons."

Dealing with the design aspect — in particular the objections to the structure's impact on views, the committee had a bit of a breakthrough when it realized that there was no functional reason the fireplace had to have a chimney at all. With this in mind, Hitz and Buday came back with a suggestion for a design that more like an open, elevated fire pit, that would sit two to three feet above the ground in the center of Plaza B.

At the committee's last meeting, Hitz and Buday returned with a modification suggestion to the bowl/elevated pit design that would change it from a circular shape to an oval to address concerns some committee members had about the fireplace impeding pedestrian traffic flow on the sidewalk.

Recall races shaping up

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

With one filing deadline passed this week, and two set to pass next week, the races for three Charlevoix City Council seats that will be contested in the upcoming May 9 recall election are starting to take shape.

In the city's 2nd Ward, the only candidate to file a nominating petition before the deadline on Monday, March 4, was Gabe Campbell. Campbell's name will now appear on the recall election ballot as he runs against current 2nd Ward council member Bryan Vollmer.

The next petition filing deadline to pass will be for the 3rd Ward. The 10-day filing window opened on March 1 and will close at 4 p.m. on Monday, March 11. As of 5 p.m. on Wednesday, the only person who had filed a nominating petition for the 3rd Ward was Shirley Gibson. Gibson, and any other eligible 3rd Ward resident that may file before the deadline will run against current 3rd Ward council member Jill Picha in the recall election.

The final petition-filing window, for the 1st Ward, opened on Tuesday and closes at 4 p.m. on Thursday, March 14. As of 5 p.m. Wednesday, the only person who had filed in that ward was Jeff Porter. Porter, and any other eligible 1st Ward resident that may file before the deadline will run against current 1st Ward council member Dennis Kusina in the recall election.

Petitions must be filed at the Charlevoix City Clerk's office, located at Charlevoix City Hall, 201 State St. Petitions must have three signatures of registered voters in the ward of the person wishing run in the recall election. Alternately, a qualified person could pay a $100 fee in lieu of a nominating petition.

Charlevoix Schools budget on the brink

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

By the end of the year, the Charlevoix Board of Education will be facing a difficult budget scenario.

The school has had to spend down its fund balance to just $40,000, and at a special work meeting on Tuesday, district superintendent Bob Gendron and director of finance Lori Martinchek explained why the school's funds have dipped so low.

"Sometimes, people don't understand where all those funding sources, those revenues, those line items, are coming from," said Gendron. "We decided to take a look at all the things we have in the district to make you be better able to make decisions on your finances."

At the outset of the school year, the school budget approved an operating budget of $10,321,556.

Just after approving that budget, the district approved the hiring of four teachers, a special education aid and administrative assistant. But it also had to deal with some unwelcome news: a drop in some state funding and flatlining local tax revenues.

At the state level, the district's pupils are funded at $7,954 per year. It also receives funding through the "Best Practices" initiative. In prior years, the Best Practices funding brought in $100 per pupil to the district. This year, that dropped to just $52, said Gendron.

Too, between 2003-2012, the district lost 400 students. That's a $7 million blow to the school's fund balance.

Gendron

"That's nearly a full year's operating budget that we've lost in the last 10 years," said Gendron.

After approving the $10,321,556 operating budget, the school ended its 2011-2012 fiscal year with a fund balance of $452,827.

But because state funding dropped and expenses increased, the school will have to borrow $369,794 from that fund balance to make it through the end of the year.

That will leave $39,149 in its fund balance — less than half a percent of its operating budget.

"That's a day and a half of operations," said Gendron.

Recently, the board of education met with Jeff Crouse, assistant superintendent with the Charlevoix-Emmet County Intermediate School District. Crouse told the board that it would need to cut $925,000 from its operating budget in order to remain financially solvent over the coming years.

The board will have its work cut out for it to find where that money will come from.

This week, Gendron met with administrators, teachers and staff at each building — the elementary, middle and high school — to see where cuts could be made.

"The million dollars as a target goal — that brings us back to zero," said Gendron.

That has some teachers worried.

"I'm nervous that we're going to switch at some point, maybe prematurely, that we're going to switch from a scalpel to a machete," said Josh Block, computers teacher for Charlevoix schools.

After Gendron has met with district staff and administration, the board will meet again to hammer out a plan for cutting that $925,000 from the school's budget.

That plan will be discussed at the board's regular board meeting, 6 p.m. Monday, March 18, at the Charlevoix Middle School.

City managers talk industry jobs

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

When manufacturing in Michigan was in its heyday during the last century, a boom of industrial growth spread across Northern Michigan and much of it centered around bodies of water such as Lake Charlevoix where natural resources were plentiful and close proximity to railroad tracks.

There was Dura Automotive in East Jordan, a coal-fired power plant and the tannery in Boyne City and Big Rock nuclear plant in Charlevoix, to name a few.

All of those have since closed.

"The waterfront used to be the commercial and industrial hub for the community," explained Michael Cain, city manager of Boyne City. "Times changed," he said, after the railroads stopped running and downtown waterfronts became valued for their natural beauty and draw for tourism.

In those three Charlevoix County municipalities, industry may have faded and tourism boomed, but the city managers of all three say industry still plays a large role in the economy of their city.

The way it looks and where it is located has merely shifted.

East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix each has an industrial or business park located within the city, but outside downtown. Each is actively recruiting manufacturing and industrial businesses to occupy its park.

Year-round industry can offer a living wage and fringe benefits for workers, adding to individual and community wealth, said Chris Yonker, East Jordan city administrator, which can offset the seasonality of tourism.

"While we are pushing for Charlevoix County to have a year-round tourism aspect ... We understand full well we typically do better in summer than winter," he said. "We can't put all of our eggs in tourism. But then again, these days, you can't put all of your eggs in industrial recruitment and new industry either. Finding a balance makes us much more resilient and more sustainable."

Cain

Still, attracting new or existing businesses to East Jordan's industrial park is a major focus of the city administrator. Managers in Boyne City and Charlevoix agree on its importance.

Bringing good-paying, high quality jobs to the area, said Rob Straebel, Charlevoix city manager, is good for the city not only because it increases the tax base as that industry pays property taxes, but also brings more people into town who work at those factories who purchase property of their own and patronize local businesses.

Yonker

"It helps maintain our tax base," he said. "And if we bring in more families to the community, we also bring more kids into the school, which helps the local school system."

Cain said he looks at the economy of Boyne City as if it were a three-legged stool.

There are the residential areas of town, the commercial or retail area — which is mostly located downtown — and the manufacturing area, which is mostly located in the industrial park. Each is as important as the next, he said.

Straebel

Industry provides what Cain calls "family-sustaining jobs."

"I think you have to have that mix," he said. "When manufacturing went downhill things were tight. It was good to have those other two legs to stand on."

And the three areas of the economy complement one another, he said.

"It all cross pollinates each other," he explained.

He is constantly recruiting and reaching out to bring new businesses to Boyne City and into its business park, he said.

Yonker and Straebel agree; Bringing in industry is some-

City receives three tribal grants

The Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians recently awarded three grants to the City of Charlevoix. The grants will go towards funding the Third Day Fellowship and Outreach Program, Joppa House Transitional Program and Mount McSauba Ski Area. The grants are available twice each year for local units of government in Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, and Manistee Counties.

The Third Day Fellowship and Outreach Program received $9,000 in grant funding to offset some of the costs of running their benevolence ministry. Since 2011, the program has fed more than 1,700 local families in need and has given out gas cards, grocery cards, bus passes and laundry certificates.

"Our street level ministry is funded solely by community support, contributions and grants," stated Third Day pastor The Rev. Ginger Stevens. "We are grateful for the generosity of the Grand Traverse Band for their support which will be used to fund our benevolence ministries and help us expand our services to help the marginalized, underprivileged people of our community."

The second grant award for $7,405 goes to the Joppa House Transitional Program. Joppa House which is affiliated with Third Day Fellowship and Outreach is set to be completed in 2013. The project is a transitional home for women and children who find themselves homeless. Funding will be earmarked for teaching materials, soft goods, food, equipment and overhead expenses meeting the goals of mentoring and training women, organization officials said.

"Our goal is to have the renovation of Joppa House completed and ready for residents by June of this year," The Rev. Stevens said. "This grant will help us equip the home with all the necessities required to operate a shelter of this magnitude. Our residents will be offered a safe, rehabilitative environment that will enable women to learn the life skills they are lacking to sustain independent living."

Because tribal regulations require that these grants go to governmental entities, often municipalities, such as the city will apply for grants on behalf non-profit organizations and then pass the money along if the grant is awarded.

Mount McSauba Ski Area received the final grant of $11,382 for purchase of skiing and snowboarding features for the terrain park. The terrain park has been a popular attraction for local youth and visitors to the community, city officials have noted.

"The Grand Traverse Band has always been very supportive of recreational amenities within the City and we sincerely appreciate their financial backing through these generous grants," stated City Manager Rob Straebel. "The new terrain park features will create fun and challenging amenities for youth and families and that are looking for a high quality, affordable skiing/snowboarding experience."

Committee debates recycling contracts

Two of three members support staying with Emmet

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County should not break its recycling contract with Emmet County Charlevoix County commissioners George Lasater and Larry Sullivan, two of three members of a committee tasked with making a recommendation on the matter to the full county board said at a meeting Wednesday.

Despite that, after much debate at the meeting, the committee voted to recommend the board accept a bid from American Waste to haul and process the county's recyclables, which, if accepted, would necessitate the termination of the five-year intergovernmental contract with the Emmet County Department of Public Works for processing.

This is the third round of bids relating to recycling put out by the county in the past five months. None have been accepted as of yet.

American Waste submitted its newest bid to the clerk's office and it was opened at the committee meeting Wednesday. It included a cost not to exceed $175,000 for the first year of service to the county, with a 2.9 percent annual price increase.

Emmet County refrained from submitting a new bid this time around.

Emmet County officials have publicly stated they will stand by their previous bids on both hauling and on bundling hauling and processing services.

Chair of the committee, commissioner Richard Gillepsie, made a motion to recommend the bid by American Waste to the full board.

But, Sullivan and Lasater made it clear they were not interested in breaking the current contract between Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

"I feel an obligation that we should honor — for the credibility of our county — our contract with Emmet County," said Lasater. "I will not bring that motion or support," he said referring to his unwillingness to support Gillespie's motion.

He has received many phone calls from constituents over the past month concerned with the counties' contract being broken, said Sullivan.

"They're not only concerned with recycling, but other activities with Emmet County such as the county fair, 9-1-1, health department ..." He explained. "They see the premature end of the contract with Emmet County to be detrimental to intergovernmental cooperation ... I have a serious concern with ending that contract. My recommendation would be to stay until end of contract, then after that, have at it."

During public comment two members of the public agreed with the commissioners.

"The county is under the obligation to have processing done with Emmet County for next two years," said Denny Jason of Ironton. "As a moral obligation, I think we need to stand by that contract."

Legally, the county may end its contract with Emmet early, said Nancy Ferguson, chair of the county's recycling committee. But, it is her opinion that should not happen.

Education isn't just a matter of degrees

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Now more than ever, it's important to rely on yourself as well as helping others. We've evolved into a society of part-time positions continuing to spread ourselves much too thin. The stores I used to rely on to fix my appliances have become a thing of the past. Cradle to grave doctoring is dwindling. The only person following you from youth to old age is your hairstylist or barber. They probably have taken the time to know the real you and all about your kids and grandkids, so heed their advice when you ask them. They are more likely to be in the know of what's going on and the resources available, all honed by many years of just listening.

While finishing high school in the 60s, vocational schools were considered the place to go if you weren't college bound. What a shame to put such a stigma on skills that are needed today now more than ever. I grew up in a family where relatives filled the positions of doctor, nurse, lawyer and police, fireman, secretary, mechanic, plumber and electrician. Family reunions often brought about shared work. My dad would take a closer look at my uncle's rash and my uncle would rewire mom's newest light fixture. In the 70s, vocational classes were still considered beneath the college-educated and by the 80s, vocational classes were the first to be cut in the school system. Today we have jobs but not enough individuals educated in the jobs available. I miss the knowledge family members shared with all of us. My cousins took on jobs that put money on the table but not the type of positions that may help any family member. It's too bad that college was stressed to the max as being better or more important. I've never regretted my college experience, but it's not the end-all and I know that. Real life taught me more than classrooms. I learned from books, but I also value what I learned "hands on" in farming, woodworking, painting, and repair.

Due the trend of fewer individuals at our beck and call, I have learned to rely on taking better care of my health and learning to fix rather than pitch, which is what we should all strive to do. Lifestyle changes which include regular exercise and finding a friend to help with a new home dilemma or taking a course on the subject are good things to do.

When stores recalled spinach off their shelves, it reminded me that growing the leafy vegetable was something I used to do and could do again. We have attained a point in this world we live in to be resourceful, flexible and knowledgeable about many topics. Grow as much of your own food as possible. Learn from a gardener and farmer. Think about the item you no longer need and find another use for it or donate it to someone else. Case in point: Someone frustrated with their snow blower left it for free at the end of their driveway. A minor repair brought it back to life and now our son-in-law has a new snow blower.

We also need to support the local community whenever programs present themselves. Educational opportunities at your local library and activities that coordinate with the community are endless. If you want to know more about building, try your hand at Habitat for Humanity. If you enjoy reading, why not volunteer at the schools and early education programs by reading with a child?

If your child does not have an interest in higher education but he or she does show an interest in fixing or taking things apart, be certain to let this path of creativity continue as your son or daughter may be my next repair person or mechanic.

We all strive to have a life with purpose. Sharing your knowledge and skills are needed now more than ever and I hope you will consider doing so everyday. In the end, you are not only helping to build a better community, but helping yourself as well. This is the best kind of second helping I can think of.

Holland business owner: Fireplace experience has been 'excellent'

Editor:

Our experience with the outdoor fireplace in Holland has been excellent. The landlord of our building came up with the idea to construct the fireplace and he made an agreement with the city of Holland for placement and operations.

The unit has both a timer and thermostat so it can be turned on and off depending on the season and time of day. It is set to turn off if it gets over 65 degrees. We did get a complaint that it was running when it was 80 degrees and we were wasting taxpayer money. So, the thermostat was installed to prohibit it from running during the warmer temperatures.

Overall, we believe the outdoor fireplace has been a tremendous addition to downtown Holland. It is a gathering site for people and kind of a landmark already. People can't believe that a town our size has such a cool outdoor fireplace. Plus, with the heated benches around the fireplace and snowmelt, it is comfy there most of the year.

Sincerely,
Darl Dalman,
Kilwins Holland

Concerns over water use in fracking

Editor:

A mind-boggling 21 million gallons of groundwater was mixed with toxic chemicals and used to frack State Excelsior well 3-25 HD1, located within the Mackinaw State Forest in Kalkaska County. Two other gas extraction wells on the same pad owned by Encana Corporation brought the total water usage and contamination to over 42 million gallons. This water can never be returned to the hydrologic cycle.

How much water is 21 million gallons? Tahquamenon Falls is the largest waterfall in our state. Roughly 5,000 gallons flow over the falls every second (U.S. Forest Service estimates). Watch the water cascading over the falls for one hour and 10 minutes. That represents the 21 million gallons of water used to frack just one well. Now picture our state with hundreds or thousands of horizontal fracking wells, each sucking up and contaminating millions of gallons of water that should be replenishing our rivers, streams and the Great Lakes. This is water that could be used for growing crops. This is the water that defines our state and is the bedrock of our tourism economy.

Horizontal fracking for natural gas is profitable because drillers get the water for free and they lease state land at rock-bottom prices ($10 minimum bid per acre at the upcoming May auction of state land). They are exempt from state and federal environmental laws such as the Clean Water and Clean Air Acts, the Clean Drinking Water Act and Michigan's Water Withdrawal Rules. We need to end gas industry exemptions to environmental laws, end the subsidies, save our forests and water which should belong to all the people of Michigan. As a state we need to invest in solar and wind to save our environment, our health and our economy.

When the 455-foot City of Detroit III was launched in Wyandotte, Mich. on Oct. 7, 1911 it was the largest sidewheeler steamboat in the world — for one year, until another one was built a few feet longer. It cost $1.5 million (about $34 million in today's dollars), could carry 5,000 passengers and was a veritable floating palace complete with palm court and winery. In 1938 the boat was chartered by the Detroit Board of Commerce for a Great Lakes junket which brought it to Charlevoix for a day. Way too big to be accommodated in Round Lake, she was slated to pull into the channel by the fish hatchery if the waters were calm enough. But they weren't, so she had to anchor out in the lake just northwest of the piers where a flotilla of small craft was sent out to ferry her 300 or so passengers into town. Many events were organized for their entertainment including golf out at the Belvedere, capped by a banquet at the Beach Hotel on West Dixon Avenue before it set sail that night. A call went out for 90 volunteer cars to meet the passengers at the Mason Street dock to squire them around. About 125 showed up.

Humane society gets new director

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

MacKenzie

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix Area Humane Society has a new director. Scott MacKenzie has taken on the job after Jodi Adams, director for the past seven years, retired.

His first day in the new position was Monday, Feb. 25, and on Tuesday, MacKenzie sat down with the Petoskey News-Review and talked excitedly about his plans and goals for the organization.

"The humane society has always been near and dear to my heart," he explained.

MacKenzie's mother was on the board of the Genessee County Humane Society. He looked up to his mother's efforts to be involved and make a difference.

"I fully believe in trying to make the world a better place. And this is a great opportunity to do that," he said of his new job.

He is originally from Flint and met his wife, Jane, at college in Kalamazoo. The couple lived in North Carolina after college, then moved to Boyne City in 1999 when Jane was selected to be executive director of Northern Homes Community Development Corporation, a nonprofit organization based in Petoskey.

When they moved, both quickly became involved in the community. He became part of the Fourth of July committee, chaired the committee that built the community playground in Boyne City, did fundraising for the Charlevoix community pool and worked at Wagbo Peace Center in East Jordan. The list goes on when it comes to community organizations and events MacKenzie has been involved with over the past 14 years: Kiwanis Club, school boosters, the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, Team Boyne, the mushroom festival committee and the chef's challenge are a few others.

Then, beginning in 2001, he spent about seven years as the director of the Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce.

Since then he has become a partner in the web development company, Cignify and works as a concierge at Boyne Mountain.

Jane is also deeply involved in the community as a public servant. She serves on the Boyne City planning commission, Boyne District Library board and is the executive director of the city's housing commission.

"Both of our parents were civically involved, hopefully we're instilling that sense of responsibility in our kids," said MacKenzie. "I actually can't do a job where I feel like I'm not contributing to society in a positive way."

The more actively involved he is with the humane society, MacKenzie said, the more he realizes how great a need there is for the organization.

His first goal as director is to educate the public about what it is the humane society does.

"We don't just provide adoption services. There are many other roles in the community."

He not only plans to educate the public, but also the humane society board of directors.

"I'm excited about doing board development," he said. "I'm looking forward to some real long-range goal setting and strategic planning. We want to make this a model of one of the best humane societies in the Midwest."

The MacKenzies live in Boyne City with their son, Camden, 17, who is a senior at Boyne City High School and daughter, Katie, 19, a student at North Central Michigan College.

Clark promoted to mailroom leader

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Clark

After welcoming Kevin Clark to the Petoskey News-Review ranks in December, the News-Review recently promoted Clark to mailroom team leader.

Clark, 51, began working as an entry level mailroom worker in mid-December. He was promoted to the position of team leader in late January.

He says his new position shares much of the same duties as his old position: making sure the correct advertising inserts go into the correct papers.

"Now I more oversee the mailroom, keeping our overhead down and problem-solving," said Clark.

Clark moved to Charlevoix five years ago along with wife, Cindi. Previously, they lived in Traverse City, where their daughter still lives. There, Clark worked at Fastenings Inc., a construction supplies company with branches across Michigan.

"That's where most of my management experience is from," said Clark.

That management experience will help in Clark's role of training people for mailroom jobs and overseeing workers in the mailroom.

"Kevin's management background along with his willingness to jump in and learn the variety of aspects of our production department showed a real desire to grow in responsibility," said News-Review chief financial officer Larry Hensley. "He is a great asset to our organization and has a bright future."

"I'm really enjoying the challenge of it. All of the job is so new to me. I'm looking forward to doing my part in being as profitable as possible for the company," said Clark. "All of this is brand spanking new to me. There's a lot I have learned, and a lot more I need to learn."

ZONING

Carol Ochs showed that the council at that time voted to "accept" the policy recommendation, but there is no record of the council formally "adopting" the policy in the form of a formal resolution. Ochs noted the minutes taken at the time show no resolution number was assigned to the action or any of the other steps usually taken for a formal resolution.

This prompted city planner Mike Spencer to research what is common practice in other communities, and the city to seek a legal opinion from its attorney.

Spencer reported to the council that his research with other communities is that they do not put capital improvement projects in parks through a planning commission review unless it involves a new park or major capital improvement. He said even then, the other communities he checked with typically review the project for how it fits with the city's master plan only, not for zoning compliance.

"No city we are aware of requires their own municipal projects to get a zoning permit or development plan approval," Spencer wrote in a memo to the council.

Graham concurred in his memo to the council noting that, "Michigan courts have clearly ruled that a municipal project completed in furtherance of a governmental function is exempt from that municipality's zoning ordinance requirements."

Spencer also noted that having the city approve a zoning permit for its own municipal projects would be a redundant process. He also pointed out that the zone in which parks exist, "public reserve," have no zoning regulations (such as structure height limits or setback requirements) against which projects could be measured.

The council also discussed what public projects should be reviewed by the planning commission centered around "planning" instead of "zoning review."

Both Graham and Spencer agreed that bigger projects should go before the planning commission for its input on whether or not it is consistent with the city's master plan (or in the case of a park, also if it is consistent with the city's parks and recreation master plan.)

The difficult part, is determining what type of project should trigger a planning review by the planning commission.

Spencer noted that the language in the state Planning Enabling act uses the words, "building or structure," but does not define what constitutes a building or structure.

Ultimately, the council voted unanimously Monday to direct Spencer and Graham to work together to develop a proposed resolution that would set criteria for what would trigger planning commission review of a municipal project. Spencer said possible criteria could be a dollar amount for a project, size aspects or other criteria. He also noted that the suggested language would likely include type of projects that are automatically exempted, such as public safety features such as fire hydrants.

Chamber orchestra presents 'The Virtuoso Orchestra' concerts

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra will present a concert titled "The Virtuoso Orchestra" at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 9, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix and at 4 p.m. on Sunday, March 10, at the First Presbyterian Church of Harbor Springs.

Guest conductor Robert Nordling has programmed four works — Paul Taffanel's Fantasia on "Der Freischutz" featuring flutist Erin Kendall Murphy, Stravinsky's Concerto in E flat, subtitled "Dumbarton Oaks;" Edward Elgar's Serenade for Strings, and one of the greatest symphonies ever conceived, and Mozart's 40th Symphony in G Minor.

Taffanel is recognized as the father of the modern French school of flute playing. His Fantasia serves as an example of the tradition popular in the 1800s of turning famous operas into instrumental fantasies that made up the European salon music genre.

Stravinsky's concerto was completed in 1938 during his neoclassical period and is scored for flute, clarinet, two horns, three violins, three violas, two cellos and two double basses. Stravinsky conceived it as a sequel to Bach's Brandenburg concertos.

Elgar, considered the foremost English composer of his period because of his 1899 "Enigma Variations" and other works, regarded his serenade composed in 1892 to be one of his favorites.

Written during the summer of 1788, Mozart's 40th symphony is regarded as an example of the highest musical achievement of the classical era and is considered to be an exemplary model of exquisite craftsmanship, clarity, design, proportion and refined elegance.

Nordling has served as the music director of the Baroque on Beaver Island Music Festival for many years and is active internationally as a freelance conductor. Until recently, he served as the orchestra director at Calvin College.

Flutist Erin Murphy is a doctoral candidate at the University of Wisconsin, with a long association with the Charlevoix community. Her parents live on Lake Charlevoix where she spent many summers.

Reserved seating for "The Virtuoso Orchestra" performance is available at $35; general admission tickets are $20. Students, youth 18 and under, military personnel and people with disabilities registered with VSA Arts of Michigan are admitted free of charge. Tickets may be purchased online at www.gleorchestra.org and MyNorthTickets.com, at the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra office, at the door, or at area chambers of commerce in Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Harbor Springs and Petoskey.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra is now in its 12th season. The season will continue in May with a concert titled "Songs of Love and Joy," and, in June, with "Symphonic Hollywood."

Support for the orchestra is provided by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Bay Harbor Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Meijer, and more than 300 individual patrons of the arts.

"If we decide to end the contract we have with Emmet County, who's going to make a contract with us?" She asked. "I think that's a problem. Contracts are made for a specific amount of time and are meant to be honored for that specific amount of time."

Emmet County did not respond to the committee's most recent request for bids, said Gillespie.

"In large part we have agreed to bid out the hauling and processing as a combined service. And that's why we're here today — to open bids for hauling and processing. Emmet County has chosen not to enter the clarification which — muddies things up," he said, explaining his position.

"As to whether we have to excuse ourselves from the contract or not," he continued, "Clearly we have a right to do that if it's in the best interest of Charlevoix County."

More than five minutes after Gillespie's motion had garnered no support, Sullivan made a new motion.

"I would move that we retain the processing contract with Emmet County and put the hauling contract out for rebid," he said.

That is not the task of the committee, said Gillespie.

"We're here to open bids," he said, and either accept or reject those bids.

After more discussion, Lasater agreed to second and vote for Gillespie's original motion.

"I still have the same feelings," Lasater said. "But, in order to bring this to the full board I will second it ..."

Both Lasater and Gillespie voted to recommend the bid to the county board and Sullivan voted against it.

A decision will be made on the recycling contract at the next board of commissioners meeting at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, March 13, in the Charlevoix County Building in Charlevoix.

COURTESY IMAGE

This image, created by consultants working with the fireplace steering committee, shows how pedestrian traffic would flow around an oval-shaped fireplace in the center of East Park's Plaza B.

FIREPLACE

Ultimately the committee voted 2-1 to send a recommendation to the council that if it chooses to continue with the project, that it consider the Plaza B location with the low-profile design. (Straebel and Winn said they were supportive of the plan, but did not have a vote on the committee). Bingham, who had conceded that she saw some merits in the modifications from the original plan, said she still couldn't get behind modified proposal because she needed more detailed information about it, and she'd like to see something in that space (Plaza B) that doesn't involve fire. Included with the recommendation was some of the concerns that some members of the committee had including about what kind of seating would be provided around the fireplace and how everything in the plaza would affect pedestrian flow in the area.

During Thursday's meeting Winn said he had talked to the donor that day. "He said if that's what everyone wants (the low-profile design), he's willing to go along with it," Winn said.

Speaking to the Courier on Wednesday, Straebel said at Monday's meeting he expects Hitz and Buday will come back with some somewhat more refined descriptions of what the committee discussed. He said the meeting will also provide opportunities for the downtown development authority board, the planning commission and the public to weigh in with their thoughts on the matter.

Straebel said although the council could decide the fate of the project at Monday's meeting, it will be his recommendation that it hold off on the decision for a week, until the council's next regular meeting on March 18.

The council will ultimately have three choices. It could chose to proceed with the fireplace plan as originally approved; to proceed with a modified plan for the project; or to rescind it's Aug. 9 approval for the project altogether. However, to completely do away with the project the council would have to have two two-thirds majority votes. The first would be to suspend the rule that prohibits the council from reconsidering its actions at a meeting after the next meeting has passed; and then another to actually rescind to Aug. 9 action which approved the fireplace.

past experience on the city council and in other areas of city government. In fact, both Gibson and Campbell ran unsuccessfully (for city council and mayor respectively) in November. Gibson ran against incumbent Shane Cole for the a 3rd Ward seat and Campbell ran as a write-in candidate against current mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr.

Campbell and Porter are also the sponsors of the recall petitions that forced the recall election against their respective opponents in the upcoming election. Resident Julee Roth was the sponsor of the petition that was circulated against Picha.

Whoever wins the respective recall election will immediately assume or retain that seat on the council and will serve the remainder of the term, which expires on Nov. 18.

The deadline for filing petitions to run in the November general election — for the same seats that will be contested in the recall election and the city clerk's — will follow shortly after the recall election is over on May 14.

The recall efforts stem from discontent with the city council among some city residents stemming from a proposal to build an outdoor community fireplace and chimney in Plaza B of East Park. The fireplace project, which was to be paid for largely by an anonymous donor, was approved by the city council at a special meeting on Aug. 9, 2012. Complaints about the project began surfacing when construction began days later. After hearing many complaints about the project, in September the council voted to put the project on hold so it could explore other options for the project that might make it more agreeable to more members of the community. (See the related story on page A1.)

The Courier will do a story profiling the candidates in an upcoming edition after all of the filing deadlines have passed.

INDUSTRY

thing the cities are actively striving to do.

There are two ways the cities can manage that.

They can provide incentives to businesses to draw them in and they can launch recruitment campaigns to make businesses aware of those incentives and other reasons Northern Michigan is a good place to locate a manufacturing business.

Incentives include offering discounted rates for property in an industrial park, tax abatements and providing industry-ready land with utility hookups and road infrastructure already in place.

Tax abatements usually mean the Industrial Facilities Tax, or IFT, abatements.

Cities create districts where businesses can be eligible for the tax write-offs and in those districts, property taxes are cut in half and discounts can be offered on personal property taxes as well.

The cities are allowed to offer the 50 percent property tax rate for a maximum of 12 years. The number of years is limited by the state, but each community can negotiate with a business on how long they will offer the abatement — between one and 12 years — and whether it will be the full 50 percent for both property and personal property taxes or not.

The discount Boyne City offers is based on a formula, said Cain, based on investment: number of jobs created, wages and benefits of those jobs and whether the company is a good match for the community.

"We negotiate the price (of property) with each property owner that goes in to the business park," he said. "It's the same as with abatements. We're looking to see what they're bringing to the community to see how we can best partner with them."

Once cities establish positive policies meant to attract industry, it is essential to market an industrial park in order to bring in businesses.

"We do work with the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance and with the local chamber of commerce and also work in partnership with the Downtown Development Authority (to market the industrial park)," he said. "All of those groups are in collaboration with each other to do what we can to bring more jobs to the city of Charlevoix."

East Jordan and Boyne City take it a step further.

The park in Boyne City is a certified business park with the state of Michigan, which means it is listed on the state's website, where businesses can browse the various business and industrial parks when choosing a location.

East Jordan is pursuing getting its industrial park certified with the state for that reason.

Both, too, are members of the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance, which works with industries looking to relocate or start up in the area and helps them find the best place to do so.

That organization also puts out packets with information on the various industrial parks in the area.

Each also advertises its park individually through city websites, social media sites, paper mailers and in chamber of commerce or other local publications.

"Word of mouth is huge," said Cain. "We have a lot of active and quality businesses in the city. A lot go to trade shows. As they are marketing their businesses, they are marketing the region as well."

There are times, he conceded, when a business he is attempting to recruit may not be the right fit for Boyne City.

"But if they're not going to locate to Boyne City, I want them going to Charlevoix, East Jordan, Gaylord or Petoskey," he said. "Because our residents can hold jobs in those locations too and because gainfully employed residents can visit stores and go to restaurants."

It is important to think on a regional level, he asserted.

BOYNE CITY — The third time was not the charm for the Charlevoix Rayders boys varsity basketball team, who, on Monday, fell just short of defeating perennial Lake Michigan Conference rival Boyne City for a third time this season.

For the fourth straight year the Boyne City boys' basketball team pushed rival Charlevoix out of the postseason, ending the Rayders' year and shot at a district title.

The Ramblers beat the Rayders Monday, 46-42, in the first round of Class C district action at the Boyne City High School gym. The Rayders had defeated the Ramblers in both of their regular season meetings.

Boyne City coach Nick Redman had as hard of a time as anyone describing the Ramblers,. 11-10 overall, recent postseason success against their rival.

"I think honestly, they just believe," Redman said. "I think we've really improved throughout the year. You could see tonight, they actually played with a little bit of discipline."

Corey Redman led the Ramblers with 22 points and 10 rebounds, but it was his last six points from the free throw line that would prove to be pivotal.

Bradley Fouchia scored 10 points, while Ryan Carson added seven points, eight rebounds and four blocks for Boyne, which with the win advanced to a Class C district semifinal against Traverse City St. Francis on Wednesday.

Charlevoix, which finished 14-6, was led by junior Zach Hankins with 15 points, while Tanner Catt added nine points and Charlie Hamilton, six points.

"They're (Boyne City) physically tough but they're also mentally tough," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said of Boyne. "It was a real grind-it-out game tonight and I think they seem to thrive in that, especially come tournament time."

Charlevoix looked confident and on their way to breaking their recent postseason troubles with Boyne early, as Hamilton opened the game with a deep 3-pointer.

Boyne would hang with the Ramblers in a back-and-forth first, as the two sat tied at 10-all after one.

The physicality of the boarder-town rivalry would take off in the second as the Ramblers visited the free throw line six times, going 9-for-12, while Charlevoix visited the stripe four times for a 5-for-8 clip. The Ramblers closed the quarter thanks largely in part to their free throws with a 26-18 lead.

"We knew they were going to bang us around a little bit. We expected that, especially with our youth," Redman said.

"I was real proud of how we competed."

Charlevoix would respond in the second half with a 9-3 third quarter advantage to make it a 29-27 game after three.

The quarter ended on a Hankins dunk that sent the Rayder fan base into an eruption, seemingly giving the Rayders the momentum into the final quarter.

Corey Redman would take off in the fourth, however, scoring eight straight points for Boyne and finishing with 10 in all in the fourth.

Boyne made it a 40-34 game with just over two minutes remaining, but Charlevoix wouldn't go without a fight.

Hankins delivered on a three-point play, making the first of two free throws then tipped in his own miss to make it a 40-37 game.

Catt would later knock down a 3-pointer with 3.4 seconds remaining to make it a 44-42 contest, but Redman would seal the game from the line sinking both free-throw attempts after an ensuing foul.

Free throws would be the key down the stretch for the Ramblers, as they made 8-of-9 attempts to deliver the four point win.

Overall, Boyne shot 20-for-29 in attempts, while Charlevoix was 11-of-17.

In Monday's other semifinal, Maple City Glen Lake defeated Elk Rapids, 55-44.

With the win, the Lakers, 19-2, advanced to a semifinal contest against East Jordan, 4-14, on Wednesday.

For the Lakers, Mike O'Brien had 24 points and Carter Lee added 10 points.

Glen Lake outscored the Elks 18-8 in the second quarter to take a 27-15 halftime lead.

At the end of the third quarter, the Lakers were in front, 43-30.

For Elk Rapids, which closes a 9-12 season, Austin McMullen had 23 points.

On Wednesday, Boyne City fell to Traverse City St. Francis in its district semi-final game 67-64.

In the other semi-final game, Maple City-Glen Lake defeated East Jordan 58-33.

That sets up a district final pitting Maple City Glen, 20-2, Lake against Traverse City St. Francis, 20-1, at 6 p.m. Friday, March 8 at Boyne City High School.

Rayders wrap up season with win over Vikings

Charlie Hamilton hit eight 3-pointers, leading to a game-high 30 points for Charlevoix in a 75-50 Rayder win over Grayling during a Lake Michigan Conference contest on Thursday, Feb. 28.

"Tonight we came out more focused, and ready to play," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "We have some confidence back in our game."

The Rayders jumped out to a 19-5 lead over the Vikings at the end of the first quarter. At halftime, Charlevoix stretched the lead to 41-24.

"We broke the trap, got rebounds, and made our outlet passes," Wood said.

Also for Charlevoix, Zach Hankins had 12 points, eight rebounds, and eight blocks, while Sawyer Russell added 12 points and Tanner Catt dished out 14 assists.

For Grayling, Scott Parkinson scored 18 points.

Charlevoix finishes the regular season 14-5 overall, 10-4 league.

JV BOYS BASKETBALL

Rayder JV avenge loss, take league title from Grayling

The Charlevoix Rayder JV boys basketball team earned an outright first place finish in the Lake Michigan Conference with a 59-56 win over Grayling at home on Thursday, Feb. 28.

The Rayders had clinched at least a share of the title with a win over Travese City St. Francis on Feb. 26. If the Rayders had lost, they would have shared the title with Grayling who defeated the Rayders on Feb. 20 72-66, giving Charlevoix its only league loss of the season.

Nick Plude led the Rayder scoring with 25 points while Austin Putman added 19.

The Rayders were able to keep the Vikings at arm's length for the first half, leading 14-9 at the end of the first quarter and 27-21 at the half.

But Graying picked it up in the third'outscoring the Rayders 19-12 and taking a 40-39 lead into the fourth quarter.

The Rayders had to work their way through some foul trouble by Plude,. Putman, and Will Telgenhof but during the fourth quarter, sealed the game at the free throw line, while the Vikings struggled. Ryan Joy and Putman went a combined five-for-six, while Grayling shot just one-for-five. Joy also drilled a critical 3-pointer during the fourth quarter, Charlevoix coach Bryan Hawkins noted.

The victory closed out the JV boys basketball season with a 16-3 record overall, and a league-best 13-1 record.

WRESTLING

Brown bows out early in state wrestling finals

Charlevoix Rayder wrestler Alex Brown bowed out in early rounds in the individual State Division IV wrestling finals at the Palace of Auburn Hills on Thursday, Feb. 28.

Brown went 0-2 as he fell in his opening round match in the 171 lbs. division to Sandusky's Pat Brown by pin in one minute, 31 seconds; then in the consolation bracket he was pinned by Hartford's Jacinto Arreola in 1:32.

Brown won the right to compete at the state tournament placing second at the regional meet earlier in February.

Pat Brown, who defeated Charlevoix's Alex Brown in the first round, went on to take second place in the tournament, losing in the final match to St. Ignace's Galloway Thurston by a 5-0 decision.

Charlevoix robotics team completes first competition

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

About the only thing Charlevoix's robotics team — called the "Raydernators" — can't do is toss a disc golf disc while wearing socks and Birkenstocks.

But that's probably not for lack of trying by the team of about 19 students.

The students, along with leader Tom Schultz, who teaches chemistry at Charlevoix High School, have been building a robot since January as part of the FIRST Robotics Competition, a world-wide organization in which teams build a robot to perform certain tasks.

This year, robotics teams were challenged with building a robot that could hurl discs through targets in a 27-by-54-foot field. At each end of the field, there is a glass wall. The robotics teams, who work in alliances of three teams, stand behind the glass walls to work their robots remotely. In the glass walls are also three targets for the discs — and the tougher the target is, the more points it brings.

But that's not the only hurdle the robotics teams have to deal with. On the floor are two pyramids, and at the top of each pyramid is another target. Students can gain points by making a disc into that target, and they can also gain points by directing their robots to climb the pyramid. The robot must remain on the pyramid when the competition ends.

So far this year, says junior Delaney Hodge, getting ready for the competitions has been a lot smoother than last year. Charlevoix's program is only in its second year, and the first year had a fairly steep learning curve.

"We're getting good this year," said Delaney. "We're a lot further than we were last year at this point."

This year, Delaney is working on two sub-teams within the robotics team: computer programming and marketing.

The robotics program's approach to competition is holistic: Students are responsible for the entire creation of their project — from raising funds to purchase the parts for the robot and creating marketing materials in order to raise those funds to welding the robot together and writing computer programming code to make it throw discs.

It's paid off. Students garnered a $2,500 grant from the Charlevoix Schools Foundation, which will help the students attend their two regional competitions at little to no cost, said Schultz.

In that way, the program draws students in who might not otherwise participate in robotics, which might sound off-putting to someone who would picture the program just circuit boards and computers.

"Robotics is beyond my mental capacity," said Lily Matchett, a junior, who has found her niche on the program's marketing team. "It's more unique than any other sport."

Another student on the team, said Schultz, found his specialty in welding the robot together and helping with more of the hands-on aspects of building.

"It's a program in which kids can get excited about science, technology, engineering and math," said Schultz. "But it's also about gracious professionalism."

That means though the Charlevoix robotics team competes against other schools at these regional competitions, there's a spirit of camaraderie.

"Teams are constantly helping other teams," said Schultz.

Last year, at a competition, when Charlevoix was a rookie team, another team helped Charlevoix out during a match by writing a computer code that would help them succeed.

"It's a really neat aspect to the culture of the organization," said Schultz.

Another neat aspect: buttons.

Each team designs its own T-shirts and buttons. Students exchange buttons with other teams.

"It's a way for teams to have fun getting to know other teams," said senior Tag McCreadie, who is on the team for the second year.

He can attest to that fact. At a competition last year, Tag gathered as many buttons as he could, handing out Charlevoix's button in turn. Now, his team shirt is covered in buttons from teams around the state.

Tag himself is the safety captain for the team, and he does his job well. Last year, the team won the top safety award at a competition. It was the first rookie team to win such an award in the 21-year history of FIRST Robotics.

"Second place team had four tokens," said Tag, explaining that each compliance with a safety rule earns a team a token. "We had 12."

On Saturday, the team had its first chance to test its robot in a competition setting. But the team was set back because of a week of snow days.

"We didn't come out on top, but the experience was such a great learning opportunity," said Schultz. "We actually were exactly where we wanted to be — but we lost a week because of snow days."

The snow days cost them a week to learn to drive and test the robot, but doing that testing under fire, at the competition, allowed the team to really see which bugs it needed to work out. It also allowed the team to see what other schools had accomplished with their robot.

"We might be the only robot at the Grand Valley State University competition to climb to the top of the pyramid," said Schultz. "It was great to get exposure like that, to different schools and different kids. ... It was cool to be able to be part of the competition, and see how it could open doors to future careers and passions."

Two city boards favor revised fireplace design

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

In what has been the biggest public showing of support to date for the mere notion of a fireplace — of any sort — in East Park, two Charlevoix city governmental boards on Monday voted to recommend that the city council proceed to the design phase of a revised low-profile version of a contentious outdoor community fireplace.

The votes took place during a special concurrent meeting of the Charlevoix City Council, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Board and the Charlevoix Planning Commission at Charlevoix City Hall Monday.

The downtown development authority board voted unanimously (among those present) to recommend to the city council that it proceed to the design phase on the low-profile community fireplace design in East Park's Plaza B. The design came out of three meetings of a design steering committee that was aided by consultants.

The planning commission not only approved a similar recommendation to the one approved by the downtown development authority, but it also approved a motion finding that the fireplace project is consistent with the city's overall master plan and its parks and recreation master plan. Both votes were by a 5-2 margin with commission members John Hess and Judy Clock voting no.

For its part, the city council took no action regarding the fireplace at Monday's meeting. Instead the council will revisit the matter at its next regular meeting, which is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Monday, March 18, at city hall.

Several members of both the planning commission and the downtown development authority board spoke in favor of the revised fireplace plan, saying they feel it fits in with the character of East Park, won't detract from the view and may serve as yet another amenity to draw people to the downtown — especially during the cooler "shoulder seasons."

Many of the same people who spoke in favor of the revised plan said they were not in favor of the original plan which called for the fireplace to be 8 feet tall and to be topped by a chimney that reached about another 12 feet in the air for a total structure height of about 20 feet.

The fireplace, which was offered as a donation to the city by an anonymous donor, has been a contentious issue among many city residents since shortly after it was approved at a special city council meeting on Aug. 9. When work began on the project days later, some residents and downtown business owners objected to the project. Among the most common complaint were that the fireplace would block views of East Park and Round Lake from Bridge Street, that it does not fit in with the park, the cost and emissions of burning gas, and others.

In fact, the issue has been so contentious it has spawned an effort to recall three members of the city council. That matter is now set to be decided during a May 9 election.

In response to the complaints, the city

School board set to discuss $1 million in cuts March 20

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education will host a special meeting to propose plans that would cut nearly $1 million from its budget

The meeting will take place at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, March 20, at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Superintendent Robert Gendron said two plans will be presented — including one that might close a school building. The plan could require the district to house students in a K-6 building and the 7-12-grade students in another building.

The other plan would keep all three buildings open. But both plans will require significant cuts in order to keep the district financially solvent, said Gendron.

"We're looking at cuts all the way across the boards, in all departments, taking us the rest of the way," he said.

Gendron said one of the two plans could be approved at that March 20 meeting. If needed, a plan could be approved at a meeting on March 25. That meeting would also take place at 6 p.m. in the middle school.

Camp Sea-Gull purchase inches closer to reality

Hayes Township and Charlevoix County inched closer to purchasing two properties on Lake Charlevoix when the state senate passed Senate Bill 233 last week.

The two properties in question are the Butler Trust Property acquisition near Charlevoix and Boyne City, and the Camp Sea-Gull property, between Charlevoix and Boyne City. Senate Bill 233 would provide funds toward purchasing those properties. It also approved by the house and then signed by Gov. Rick Snyder.

If the bill is approved, Hayes Township would get a major portion of the money it needs to acquire the Camp Sea-Gull property along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. The 20-acre property, which was home to an all-girls summer camp for many years, has 1,400 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline, and is priced at $4,500,000. Funding from Michigan's Natural Resources Trust Fund would cover $3,375,000 of the cost. The remaining $1,125,000 has been raised by the township through donations and money set aside by the township for such a purchase.

If the grant is approved and the purchase goes through, Hayes Township plans to turn the property into a township park.

Ross Maxwell, director of parks and recreation for Charlevoix County, has been leading the grants to acquire the Butler property. The property would expand Whiting Park by 72.4 acres.

"The Butler property is an incredible piece of property in a beautiful forested land," said Maxwell.

The property shares 2,700 feet with the Whiting Park property, and would increase the park by to 248 acres.

"From the property, you can see Boyne City and panoramic views of Lake Charlevoix," said Maxwell.

The total cost of the property is $306,000. The amount the state may match is $214,200, said Maxwell, and Charlevoix County agreed to match $91,800.

The bill includes $23.5 million for 22 land acquisition projects and 54 land development projects. The funding comes from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund, which provides grant money to local units of government and the Department of Natural Resources for the purchase of land for outdoor recreation and protection of natural resources. The money in the fund comes from the proceeds of the sale of mineral rights on state land.

The bill also includes the $21 million for 49 emergency dredging projects for public access boating sites, as proposed in Snyder's 2013 budget.

Senate Bill 233 goes now to the house for consideration.

County breaks recycling contract

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners accepted a bid from American Waste Wednesday to haul and process the county's recyclables for the next 10 years.

The move will break a five-year processing contract and end a 12 year recycling relationship with Emmet County.

The board made the decision in a 4-2 vote. Commissioners Larry Sullivan and George Lasater voted against accepting the bid.

American Waste will provide the service for $175,000 the first year of the contract, with a 2.9 percent increase each of the remaining nine. With the increase applied each year, the 10th year of the contract will cost $226,347.

In the first year, that would save the county $86,000 over what it paid last year, with progressively less savings each year.

A bid offered by Emmet County for the services cost $183,000, and stretched two years. It would have meant $156,000 of savings for the county over two years compared with costs in 2012.

When comparing the bids of the two service providers, the difference was $8,000 in the first year and $3,000 in the second, with American Waste the lower bidder. The reason the savings would be less the second year of American Waste's contract is because of the annual 2.9 percent cost increase.

While American Waste was the lowest — and only — bidder in this, the third round, of bidding; Emmet County came out as the lowest bid in the second round of bids solicited by the county for recycling in November. None of the bids in the second round were accepted or rejected.

Still, during public comment at the meeting Wednesday, there were many who vocally opposed breaking the contract with Emmet County, despite a several thousand dollar cost-savings.

East Jordan City Manager Chris Yonker, who is also a member of the county recycling committee pointed to a recommendation his committee made that the bid from Emmet County be accepted.

"One thing I don't see before you is a copy of the committee's recommendation," he said. "I think you need that before you to make a solid, educated decision."

He went on to say that when considering service bids, as opposed to project bids, there are often factors other than a dollar figure to consider.

"I can't support a 10 year bid, that's a long time and at a 2.9 percent multiplier, look where that will be 10 years from now," be said.

Boyne City City Manager Michael Cain, who spoke as a resident of the county, agreed.

"It is appropriate and just that we should be looking to get the best service at the best possible price," he said. But, "I think it's important that you not only look at the financial aspect of the decision ... but also any other intangible costs that go with it."

He cited the need to maintain a good relationship between the board and its committees and the importance of considering the relationship between the two counties.

Finally, be said, the process used for bidding should be examined.

"From what I can see on the outside, it seems to be a contorted process," he said. "All the actions that Charlevoix County has been doing I'm sure are within the letter of the law, but are they within the spirit of the law?"

Commissioners read two letters from members of the public in support of accepting American Waste's bid: Glen Catt of Catt Development and Erin Bemis, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

"I would like to see you select American Waste for these services," wrote Bemis. "The last thing we need to do is lose business in Charlevoix County, especially the quality ones. We need to support businesses like American Waste that are locally-owned and locally-invested ..."

American Waste is based in Kalkaska, but does own a transfer station located in Charlevoix.

Is it true the county will save $86,000 by going with American Waste? Commissioner Chris Christensen asked maintenance supervisor Frank Shaler.

Yes, responded Shaler, $86,000 compared to last year

"That's 28 percent of the tax

Beaver Island county garage plan proceeds

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

In February, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners agreed to pay for the construction of a nearly $1.5 million structure on Beaver Island to house road commission, sheriff's department and transportation authority vehicles and offices.

In addition to paying for the construction of the building, the county voted to purchase a piece of property — still to be identified — on the island on which to place it.

The road commission is its own legal entity, with its own funding sources while the sheriff's department and transit authority are departments of the county. Because the road commission and county are separate entities, the plan is for the county to draw up a long-term lease agreement with the road commission for its use of the garage.

The board of commissioners met Tuesday to discuss details of the building on Beaver Island and how to move forward with the project.

Howard Haselschwardt, a representative of Northwest Design Group, the engineering firm in charge of the project, presented information about where it stands.

"We're done with the conceptual phase and entering the final design and bidding phase," explained Haselschwardt.

His company will handle the bidding process, help the county select a construction contractor and then perform engineering services during construction as well.

As part of the final design phase, the company is also helping the county identify a parcel of property for the building. It will identify all available parcels on the island, then do engineering evaluations of each before making a recommendation on which to purchase.

During the meeting Tuesday, commissioner Chris Christensen — who voted against the February decision to construct the building — raised several questions and offered a few suggestions for alternatives to the current plan.

Christensen asked if changes are still possible on the design.

The engineer said this can happen.

"We're better than halfway through, but it's not hard to change the design. I would suggest that that's maybe where your buildings and grounds committee might be active in this thing — or charge someone with — come to these meetings and pick at it," he said.

Commissioner Ron Reinhardt said he thought the three department heads — the sheriff, transit manager and road commission manager — would be the best ones to decide what changes may be needed in the design of the building.

"We can ask their opinion, but we can get a second opinion as well," said Christensen. "I don't disagree with the department heads, but I think there are professionals out there that can objectively evaluate needs."

"You can go hire a consultant if you want to and pay him a whole bunch of money," responded Reinhardt, "I don't agree with that."

In previous meetings and again on Tuesday, the three managers expressed that the building will provide for their basic needs — no more.

Christensen proposed the county use the existing road commission garage on the island and expands it to accommodate the transit buses and sheriff's department's needs on the island.

Then, the county could loan money to the road commission, he said, to build a new facility of its own. The existing building would be a sort of down payment on the loan, be said.

"That building is an old, old building," said Reinhardt. "Its life cycle, even if you fix it up, is going to need a lot more maintenance than a new building down the road."

Haselschwardt said his company does lifecycle cost analyses.

"Everyone can envision this, but we can evaluate this for you and analyze the cost over the lifetime of the buildings," he said.

The commission did not take any action at the meeting.

No serious injuries in South Arm Township crash

EAST JORDAN — A 54-year-old East Jordan man and a 9-year-old boy escaped serious injuries in a single-vehicle traffic crash Sunday, March 10 on Rogers Road near Mount Bliss Road in South Arm Township.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office news release, the crash happened around 8 p.m. when Kenneth James Phillips of East Jordan was traveling west on Rogers Road west of Mount Bliss Road in his 1987 Ford F-150 pickup when he lost control of the vehicle, ran off the road and struck a large tree head-on. The passenger in the vehicle, Kenneth Wayne Phillips Jr., complained of pain on his chest from the seatbelt. All occupants of the vehicle declined treatment by ambulance crews.

Deputies were assisted at the scene by the East Jordan Police Department.

Recall races nearly finalized

Halverson files in 3rd Ward creating three-person race

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

With the last of three deadlines set to pass just hours after press time for this week's print edition of the Charlevoix Courier, it appeared that the Charlevoix City Council recall election set for May 9 will feature two-person races in the city's 1st and 2nd wards and a three-person race in the city's 3rd Ward.

Shortly before Monday's filing deadline passed for the 3rd Ward race, former Charlevoix police chief and current Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District official Dennis Halverson threw his hat in the ring making it a three-way race in that ward. Halverson will now run against former city council member Shirley Gibson, and current 3rd Ward city council member Jill Picha.

In the city's 2nd Ward, the only candidate to file a nominating petition before the deadline on Monday, March 4, was Gabe Campbell. Campbell's name will now appear on the recall election ballot as he runs against current 2nd Ward council member Bryan Vollmer.

The final petition-filing window, for the 1st Ward, was set to close at 4 p.m. on Thursday, March 14. As of 9 a.m. Wednesday, the only person who had filed in that ward was Jeff Porter. Assuming no one else files to run in the 1st Ward in the final hours before the deadline, Porter, who has served on several city boards in the past, will run against current 1st Ward council member Dennis Kusina in the recall election.

Both Gibson and Campbell ran unsuccessfully (for city council and mayor respectively) in November. Gibson ran against incumbent Shane Cole for a 3rd Ward seat and Campbell ran as a write-in candidate against current mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr.

Campbell and Porter are also the sponsors of two of the three the recall petitions that forced the recall election against their respective opponents in the upcoming election. Resident Julee Roth was the sponsor of the petition that was circulated against Picha.

Floating some fun fireplace ideas

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

I have hesitated to express an opinion about the third rail of Charlevoix politics, — the East Park fireplace project — but I have thought about it for a long time and I believe I have the answer to the local quandary.

It seems clear community opinion is so divided that a new idea is necessary. We need something other than what Holland has; something that could be unique to Charlevoix and that might successfully spread the word that Charlevoix is the place to be.

Various groups and people want a fireplace in different places around the community and many are unhappy with the current design or any design. The perfect solution seems to me to be a portable fireplace of a more modest size. My vision is of a fireplace less than 12 feet tall (We will see the necessity of this presently), built on a sturdy, very low flatbed trailer of the sort usually used to transport large bulldozers or end-loaders from one construction site to the next. Fuel for the fireplace could easily be provided by a large propane tank on the front of the trailer, painted appropriately, maybe with a petunia motif. And there would be room for some benches on the sides and back if the trailer were the widest allowed by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Imagine the additional possibilities. The fireplace could be downtown in either East Park or Bridge Park in the summer and could be moved easily if someone objected to its position. It could be located at either the skating rink or Mount McSauba in the cooler months. It might even be towed by the Petunia Truck and take part in celebratory parades in regional communities. (Now you see why it has to be low enough to accommodate highway underpasses.) Rentals for important private parties would make the fireplace even more widely used.

And finally, if we can decide collectively on a permanent location, all that is necessary is to remove the wheels and build a simple foundation of cement blocks in that permanent location.

You may recall the song from the musical "Guys and Dolls" that lauds "the oldest established, permanent floating crap game in New York." We could call our all-purpose fireplace "The only established permanent mobile fireplace in the North." I'll bet we could hire one of our local musicians to write a song about it. That song could be played from the petunia truck during the parades.

Only one further thought. If a crap game can be floating, why not our fireplace? A couple of large, sturdy, detachable pontoons under that trailer and we could boast a potentially floating fireplace. Certainly that would make it available to even more venues and multiple additional uses. I can almost see the light of the flames dancing off the little waves surrounding it. It could probably be towed from one aquatic location to another by civic-minded boaters, and could take a temporary station anywhere around Lake Charlevoix. Or attaching a good-sized outboard motor would make it even simpler to get from place to place. The fireplace could be self-propelled! Removing the pontoons and motor, and getting the fireplace out of the water would be as simple as winterizing any boat. Then it's back out to the skating rink or the ski hill for our fireplace.

It may all be just a crazy dream, but it would certainly set our community apart from any other town in Michigan, maybe even anywhere else in the world. And with an idea as important as this, there is no reason to think small. Our fireplace could be a very big thing.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Char-Em awarded consolidation grant

Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District was one of seven intermediate school districts statewide to be awarded a competitive grant to help support the costs of consolidation of services among school districts.

The grant in the amount of $25,327 will allow districts within the service area of Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties to convert or update their financial software to a common web-based platform. School districts included in the conversion are Alanson, Beaver Island, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Central Lake, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Harbor Springs, Pellston and Char-Em ISD.

Currently, many of the districts operate their business offices as independent functions, explained Char-Em assistant superintendent Jeff Crouse. "The conversion or upgrade will allow for common operating procedures, common forms, consolidated purchasing, sharing of cross-trained staff and immediate access to information at both the local and ISD level."

"It will allow us to share information, resources, and staff online between districts that now cover 1,200 square miles, saving time, resources and ultimately money," Crouse added. "Currently we have to cover duplicated costs of upgrades or trainings whenever new state or federal reporting requirements are implemented. With a common platform, we will avoid these duplications of effort, saving time and money."

The project is a collaboration among the local boards of education, administration and business managers, and Char-Em ISD. Crouse estimated the change will save approximately $10,000 in the first year and $50,000 over the course of a few years.

Crouse said the project will begin immediately and the ISD and districts will develop operating procedures, and establish cross-training and internal controls over the next few months.

The Michigan Department of Education awarded $10 million in state grants to local districts and ISDs whose applications demonstrated the most efficient and effective impact of consolidation efforts. Char-Em ISD Superintendent Rick Diebold noted it was great for Char-Em ISD to be one of only six ISDs across the state recognized for this cost-saving measure, noting it helps keep dollars in the classrooms and closest to students.

Officials watching legislation that could affect schools

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District superintendent Rick Diebold is watching state legislation for how laws enacted during the lame duck session of 2012 may affect schools. He is also monitoring more than 50 bills that might affect education that the new legislature has in process.

"In the last 36 hours of the last year, 248 bills were approved," Diebold said. "We are now starting to analyze, interpret and understand what has been passed."

One piece of legislation that passed at the end of last year has to do with school board members and when they must abstain from voting.

"Folks are starting to take a look at the make up of school boards, as legislation was passed that a school board member must abstain from voting on any contract, including collective bargaining agreements, if there is a family relationship involved. The legislature has defined all the various familial relationships, he said. If a board gets below its regular quorum with abstentions, the remaining members represent the new quorum. Theoretically, one or two board members could approve a contract.

"This will be problematic in some districts," Diebold said.

According to Diebold, there were 21 changes to sales and property tax that will impact school aid somehow.

"What that impact will be is yet to be determined," he said.

So far in 2013, 56 bills about schools have been introduced, according to Diebold. He categorizes these into four major categories. The first, with the vast majority of introduced bills, is school safety. There are bills concerning weapons, when one can carry, waiving weapons rules, anti-bullying rules, and even one dealing with making sure students have flu shots.

The second broad area that affects schools where bills are being introduced is in considering changes to the graduation requirements, particularly the Algebra II and foreign language requirements that came in with the Michigan Merit Curriculum. There are possibilities of eliminating requirements, changing requirements, allowing schools or students to waive requirements in certain situations, though nothing is imminent.

"I agree that the legislature should look at the requirements, but caution is needed, because schools have just geared resources toward the previous legislation," Diebold said. Changing things too quickly has a "yoyo" effect on schools, Diebold explained.

Another area of introduced legislation is in the area of equity of school funding formulas.

"At this point, all we can do is watch and wait until things become clearer," Diebold said, but he expects some changes in the areas of funding, equity of funding, graduation requirements, and school safety, just based upon the number of bills addressing these areas.

Assistant superintendent Jeff Crouse added that the fast-approaching federal sequestration could impact Char-Em Intermediate School District with a loss of about $102,000 to $115,000, primarily in the special education area.

"These cuts wouldn't be felt until the 2013-2014 school year, if they come to pass," Crouse said.

He added that local districts will lose a significant amount of Title grant monies if the sequestration is implemented.

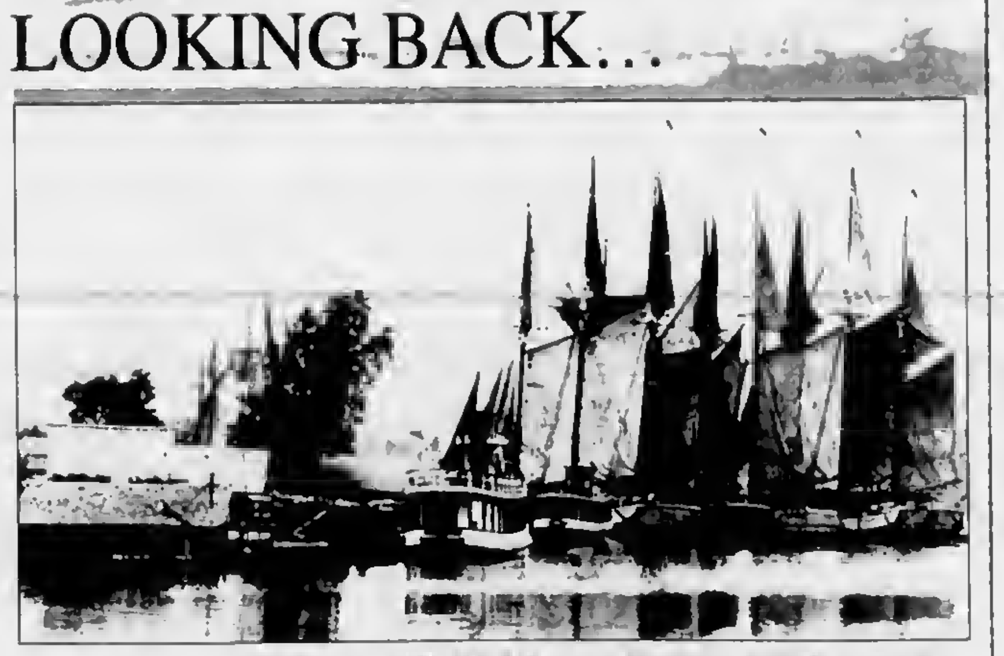
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

When storms erupted on Lake Michigan with no warning, schooners in the vicinity often raced to Charlevoix's Round Lake for shelter. This was a common sight along the waterfront for about five decades as the graceful vessels, sometimes tied up side by side five to six deep, hoisted their sails to dry out for a few days before they continued their journeys. Seen here at the Mason Street dock are, from left at center, the Clara Belle, a Lake Charlevoix passenger steamer, the tiny Gazelle which picked up passengers in Boyne City who had disembarked from the train at Boyne Falls and taken the stagecoach from there to Boyne City as the last leg of their land journey, the schooner Starke out of Milwaukee, the John S. Bauer, also out of Milwaukee, the H. D. Moore out of Sheboygan, Wisconsin, and the Charlie Marshall out of Chicago. The view is from the south shore of Round Lake just to the east of present day Ward Bros.

collection (on the recycling millage)," remarked Christensen. "A full third that could … potentially be provided for curbside recycling, be provided for other alternatives. We may be able to give it back to the taxpayer by cutting their millage rate."

He understands the emotions involved, he continued, and the relationship with Emmet County.

"I'm challenging us to take a hard look at this as to what is in the best interest of our citizens in this scenario," he said. "If this was $5,000 or $10,000 we wouldn't be having this argument. I think we need to take a hard look at the numbers."

The cost-savings when comparing American Waste's bid to Emmet County's standing bid is $8,000 in the first year. The figure to which Christensen referred is not a comparison of the bids of the two service providers. $86,000 is the difference between the county's 2012 costs for hauling and processing and what it will pay American Waste to perform the services moving forward.

"I've… told four of the county commissioners that if it went over $30,000 I'd have to look real hard at it," said commissioner Ron Reinhardt. "But then it was explained what we'd be spending over the next 10 years and what we could save. We have to look out for the taxpayers in this county. I have come to the conclusion that the money being saved, I have to go with American Waste."

"The numbers that I've seen are showing that American Waste is probably a little bit lower," said Sullivan. "I'm not looking at the $60,000- $80,000 range. The numbers I've seen show a $5,000-$7,000 savings going with American Waste instead of Emmet County."

He would like to see the contract maintained, he added, because he believes severing it could affect future joint efforts with other governmental entities.

"My thought is we've got two to two-and-a-half years (left on the contract with Emmet County), let's ride that out. The dollar numbers I've seen are not as great as some other numbers that are being bandied about," he said.

Lasater agreed the contract should be maintained.

"I've always taken the responsibility of a commissioner is to be a voice of the constituents I represent. Ninety-nine-point-five percent of the constituents I've contacted have indicated that we should honor the contract," he said. "As sheriff of Charlevoix County, Emmet was always there if I needed something. To maintain our credibility in Charlevoix County is important, we need to honor this contract."

"The only thing I'm hung up on is the money of the taxpayer," responded Christensen. "The problem that I see here is just the amount of money."

Emmet County recycling director Elisa Seltzer raised her hand to speak.

"The offer made in the bid, you keep talking about this $80,000 from American Waste, that's compared to last year's numbers," she said, "There are savings no matter who you go with. There is no $80,000 difference between us."

After the board voted 4-2 to accept the bid from American Waste, during public comment, Dennis Jason, chair of the county's planning commission expressed that he believes the long and drawn-out process of contracting recycling services over the past five months may have been more efficient and effective if the county had an administrator.

"I think we've just witnessed the absolute need to have a professional manager, controller, administrator … We would have gotten this whole things resolved months ago … and been able to do it with our head high," he said.

Cain added: "To not know if there is a couple thousand dollars or an $80,000 difference means you don't have the right or complete information in front of you," he said. "To not have that is a disservice to you and your decision-making process and frankly to the entire community."

Christensen expressed the desire to sit down with the county's three city managers to talk about ways the county may have handled the recycling contract controversy differently.

tive recall election races will immediately assume or retain that seat on the council and will serve the remainder of the term, which expires on Nov. 18.

The deadline for filing petitions to run in the November general election — for the same seats that will be contested in the recall election and the city clerk's — will follow shortly after the recall election is over on May 14.

The recall efforts stem from discontent with the city council among some city residents stemming from a proposal to build an outdoor community fireplace and chimney in Plaza B of East Park. The fireplace project, which was to be paid for largely by an anonymous donor, was approved by the city council at a special meeting on Aug. 9, 2012. Complaints about the project began surfacing when construction began days later. After hearing many complaints about the project, in September the council voted to put the project on hold so it could explore other options for the project that might make it more agreeable to more members of the community. 'Jesus' movie showing to serve as Joppa House Fundraiser

Organization leaders with the Joppa House Women's Transitional Home will host a showing of the film "Jesus" at 4 p.m. on Friday, March 29 (Good Friday) at Charlevoix Cinema III. The suggested donation is $5.

Third Day Fellowship and Outreach pastor The Rev. Ginger Stevens, said the movie is an ideal fundraiser for the transitional home because it does the same thing that the Joppa House program will seek to do: Share the love of Jesus.

The Joppa House project, an outgrowth of the Third Day Fellowship and Outreach ministry, is a transitional home for women and children who are homeless or facing homelessness that is currently under construction at the corner of State and Garfield streets in Charlevoix.

"Many young women today have never been properly parented or had positive role models in their lives," Steven said. They have not learned the basic life skills necessary to sustain independent living. Consequently, they find themselves in abusive relationships or living in sub-standard conditions with their children. Joppa House Women's Transitional Home is intended to mentor and train women in the basic skills they need to succeed in life and become productive citizens in the community."

Stevens noted that the "Jesus" film has been called by some "one of the best-kept secrets in Christian missions," and a number of mission experts have acclaimed the film as one of the greatest evangelistic tools of all time.

She said donations collected through the event will be use for some of the remaining construction and renovation work needed on the home that will become Joppa House. She said about $80,000 is still needed to complete the following renovations:

— Kitchen Renovations, $3,500
— Heating, $10,000
— Electrical, $5,000
— Parking lot, $3,000
— Entry enclosures, $1,000
— Basement finishing, $10,000
— Other bathrooms, $3,000
— Handicap bathroom, $3,000
— Floor covering, $10,000
— Siding, $10,000
— Roof, $20,000

Effort started to establish memorial to honor fallen Charlevoix soldiers

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

A fundraising effort has taken off to raise money to establish a memorial that will honor all fallen military veterans from the area, but especially Maj. Douglas E. Sloan, a 1985 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Sloan died from injuries suffered when an improvised explosive device detonated near his vehicle on Oct. 31, 2006, in Wygal Valley, Afghanistan while he was serving in support of Operation Enduring Freedom with the 1st Battalion, 32nd Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade Combat Team, 10th Mountain Division, Fort Drum, New York.

The effort to establish the memorial is being spearheaded by Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson, who graduated one year before Sloan. Carlson said he counted Sloan among his friends and spoke at Sloan's memorial service in 2006.

Carlson said the plan is for the memorial will be a representation of the often seen Fallen Solider Battle Cross comprised of boots, a rifle and helmet, will be placed near the flagpole at Kipke Field, the site of many of Sloan's athletic accomplishments while in high school.

Carlson said so far he's collected about $3,000 in pledges for the expected $8,000 cost of the memorial. He is hopeful that the memorial will be in place in time for this year's memorial day observance. He is also expecting a special dedication ceremony to take place for the memorial on Memorial Day. Further details of that event will be announced when the day draws closer.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the memorial, may do so by sending a check to Charlevoix State Bank, P.O. Box 191, Charlevoix MI, 49720. Checks should be made payable to the Friends of Doug Sloan, an account that has been established at the bank for the memorial.

Ellsworth native, partner launch eyewear accessory

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

When looking over the brand label on a pair of sunglasses, Northern Michigan native Tyler Essenberg came to a realization about eyewear.

Unlike other wearable items, Essenberg noted that people often put on the same pair of glasses day after day without a way to freshen the look.

This observation triggered a problem-solving interest that Essenberg, a 21-year-old student at Davenport University in Grand Rapids, said he's had since childhood. The resulting solution — decorative silicon bands that fit around eyeglasses' temple areas — began hitting the market this winter under the name g-raps.

For Essenberg, a 2009 graduate of Ellsworth High School, the initial sales results have been satisfying.

"We've been on the market a few weeks, less than a month, and we've sold a few thousand," he said.

Examples of g-raps designs include pink bands inscribed with the word "Believe" — a portion of that model's sales benefit breast cancer charities — as well as hunting-themed variations and popular university colors. The business also received orders for g-raps customized with corporate logos, and Essenberg said he hopes to establish a larger selection of university-themed bands with licensed logos.

Calvin Beeke, a former Davenport student and a friend of Essenberg's, is his partner in the g-raps business. The venture began coming together during 2012.

The partners settled on the g-raps name as a variation on "glasses wraps" that could roll more quickly off the tongue. It also offered a reference to the venture's home city.

G-raps relies on local producers to handle its manufacturing needs, Essenberg noted.

"Everything's made in Michigan," he said. "The product is made in Grand Rapids, the packaging is made in Grand Rapids."

The business pays a bit more for U.S. manufacturing resources than it might sourcing its product from lower-cost foreign labor markets, but "we still have fantastic margins," Essenberg said.

"There's fantastic manufacturing capability in Michigan," he added. "Sometimes, (businesses are) overlooking that just to save a few pennies."

The partners turned to an acquaintance with a plastic mold manufacturing business for help with prototyping and mold creation. They kept the costs for those services low by offering some website and social media work in partial trade.

Start Garden, a Grand Rapids venture capital firm established by Rick DeVos, provided two investments which helped g-raps launch production. The business secured the first, for $5,000, as part of a program in which Start Garden funds the top business idea as determined by the public in weekly online voting. As a follow-up, g-raps provided an update on its business progress at a public event, and was awarded an additional $20,000.

By way of Start Garden, Essenberg said his business also lined up help with packaging ideas and distribution channels for its products, as well as contacts for other potential investments.

So far, g-raps have been offered for sale mainly at some west Michigan eye doctors' offices — Essenberg is looking to line up similar offices in Northern Michigan as retail sites — and via a website, www.g-raps.com. Essenberg said the business also is in discussions with a distributor that could help arrange access to chain retailers.

Essenberg, who's on track to obtain his bachelor's degree in finance from Davenport this spring, recalls that one of his earliest ideas for an invention came around age 6. He sought to create a device that would allow someone to talk on a telephone while keeping their hands free.

When told by his mother that headsets had already been developed for that purpose, Essenberg didn't let discouragement set in.

"It kind of put the confidence in," he said. "I was just, 'Let's keep thinking.'"

Since then, Essenberg said he's come to realize what one of the key factors is for bringing an invention idea to reality.

"I've learned it's your network, who you know and getting your idea out there," he said.

Northern Michigan Review welcomes new members

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Northern Michigan Review welcomed two new employees this week.

Adam Batchelor, 24, is now in charge of digital sales for Simple Digital Media and Greg Anderson, 51, is a sales representative for the PhoneGuide. Both men will work out of the PhoneGuide office on Mitchell Street in Petoskey.

In his new position, Batchelor, a 2007 Petoskey High School graduate, will sell ads for Northern Michigan Review's websites and will also offer consultation to local businesses on ways to reach out digitally to customers by showing them new ways to use social media and helping them adapt their websites to mobile platforms.

"What makes this job exciting is that more people are going from reading all traditional print to walking around with media on their cell phones and iPads," said Batchelor, who graduated from Michigan State University in 2011 with an advertising degree. "That means there are many opportunities for businesses to grow their customer base through digital platforms and apps."

He can bring a young person's perspective to the company, Batchelor added.

"I know what my friends are doing on their phones. I know what can reach my generation."

He returned to Northern Michigan after college because he "loves it here," he said. "I grew up here. I like to ski, be outside, I like to swim and golf."

Anderson, a Petoskey transplant, originally from St. Clare Shores, brings nearly 20 years of sales experience with him to his new position as PhoneGuide sales representative.

He owned a document shredding company downstate for 12 years before moving north to be closer to his two sons.

"I'm a salesman at heart," Anderson said.

Meeting new people and dealing with people on a daily basis are two things he likes about a job in sales.

He says his sales philosophy is old-fashioned.

"Personal contact is a necessity," he explained. "And building relationships."

In his spare time, Anderson enjoys golfing, skiing, fishing and visiting Northern Michigan's beaches.

He has two sons, Joseph, a sophomore in high school and Jacob, a senior. Both attend Harbor Light Christian Academy in Harbor Springs.

REVISE

council put the project on hold in mid-September to allow time for further options for the project to be explored. Ultimately, mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. appointed a steering committee to assist consultants Mark Buday and Richard Hitz in developing a recommended design and/or location option for the fireplace. The results of that committee's work are the design which was discussed at Monday's meeting. The revised plan still calls for the fireplace to be placed in East Park's Plaza B (located on the east side of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason Streets) but now calls for it to have no chimney with an oval shaped bowl design that would be about 3 feet tall.

While the revised design drew many positive comments from members of the two boards, and a few audience members, there were some audience members who still objected to the fireplace, even with the revised design.

Opposing comments included that the city council would do better to focus its attention on finding ways to bring more business to town; that the council is misguided if it thinks that the fireplace is going to draw more people to the downtown, especially in the winter; concerns about the cost of the fireplace; and the precedent the council is setting by accepting a donation such as the fireplace for the park. Also, Leon Perron, an opponent of the project who ran unsuccessfully for a seat on the council in November, urged the council to take no further action on the fireplace matter until after the May 9 recall election. In all about 50 audience members attended the meeting.

Contacted by the Courier Wednesday, Jeff Porter, the sponsor of one of the recall petitions that prompted the recall election who is also running against 1st ward council member Dennis Kusina in the election said he doesn't believe the revised fireplace plan will work either.

"There is not enough room to place a firebowl with adequate space to avoid serious injury from fire, benches for seating, space for wheelchairs, and space for pedestrians to walk freely into the park. This cannot be done without enlarging the plaza at what cost?"

Porter also said he believes the citizens of the city have a right to know who the anonymous donor for the project is. He also wants the city to have a gift-receiving policy in place before accepting any gifts.

At Monday's meeting city planner Mike Spencer said the city's planning commission will soon be taking up the job of drafting just such a policy.

Carlson, the mayor, who voted in favor of moving forward to the design phase Monday as part of the downtown development authority board, said he likes the new design better than the original, too. (As mayor Carlson will not have a vote on the ultimate fate of the project unless there is a tie among the city council.)

Carlson said he noted a positive shift in how many people are viewing the project now, especially among downtown business representatives.

"The mayor said he believes the fireplace will serve as another piece in a set of amenities that brings people to the downtown and will serve as a nice compliment to the very popular interactive water fountain

"Bringing people to the downtown benefits everyone," Carlson said. The fireplace is all part of that."

He noted that the water fountain was also paid for through donations of private funds, like the fireplace, and he also noted that other donors have also stepped up offering not only to pay for the first five years of gas usage costs, but also to pay for any overages from the original $40,000 donation incurred because of the changes to the project.

Ultimately, the city council will have to decide how to proceed on the issue. It could choose to proceed with the most recent or another revised plan, to proceed with the original plan, or to scrap the project completely. However, to scrap the project completely, it would have to make two, two-thirds votes – one to suspend its own rules prohibiting it from reconsidering prior decisions more than one meeting after they are made, and a second to actually overturn the decision.

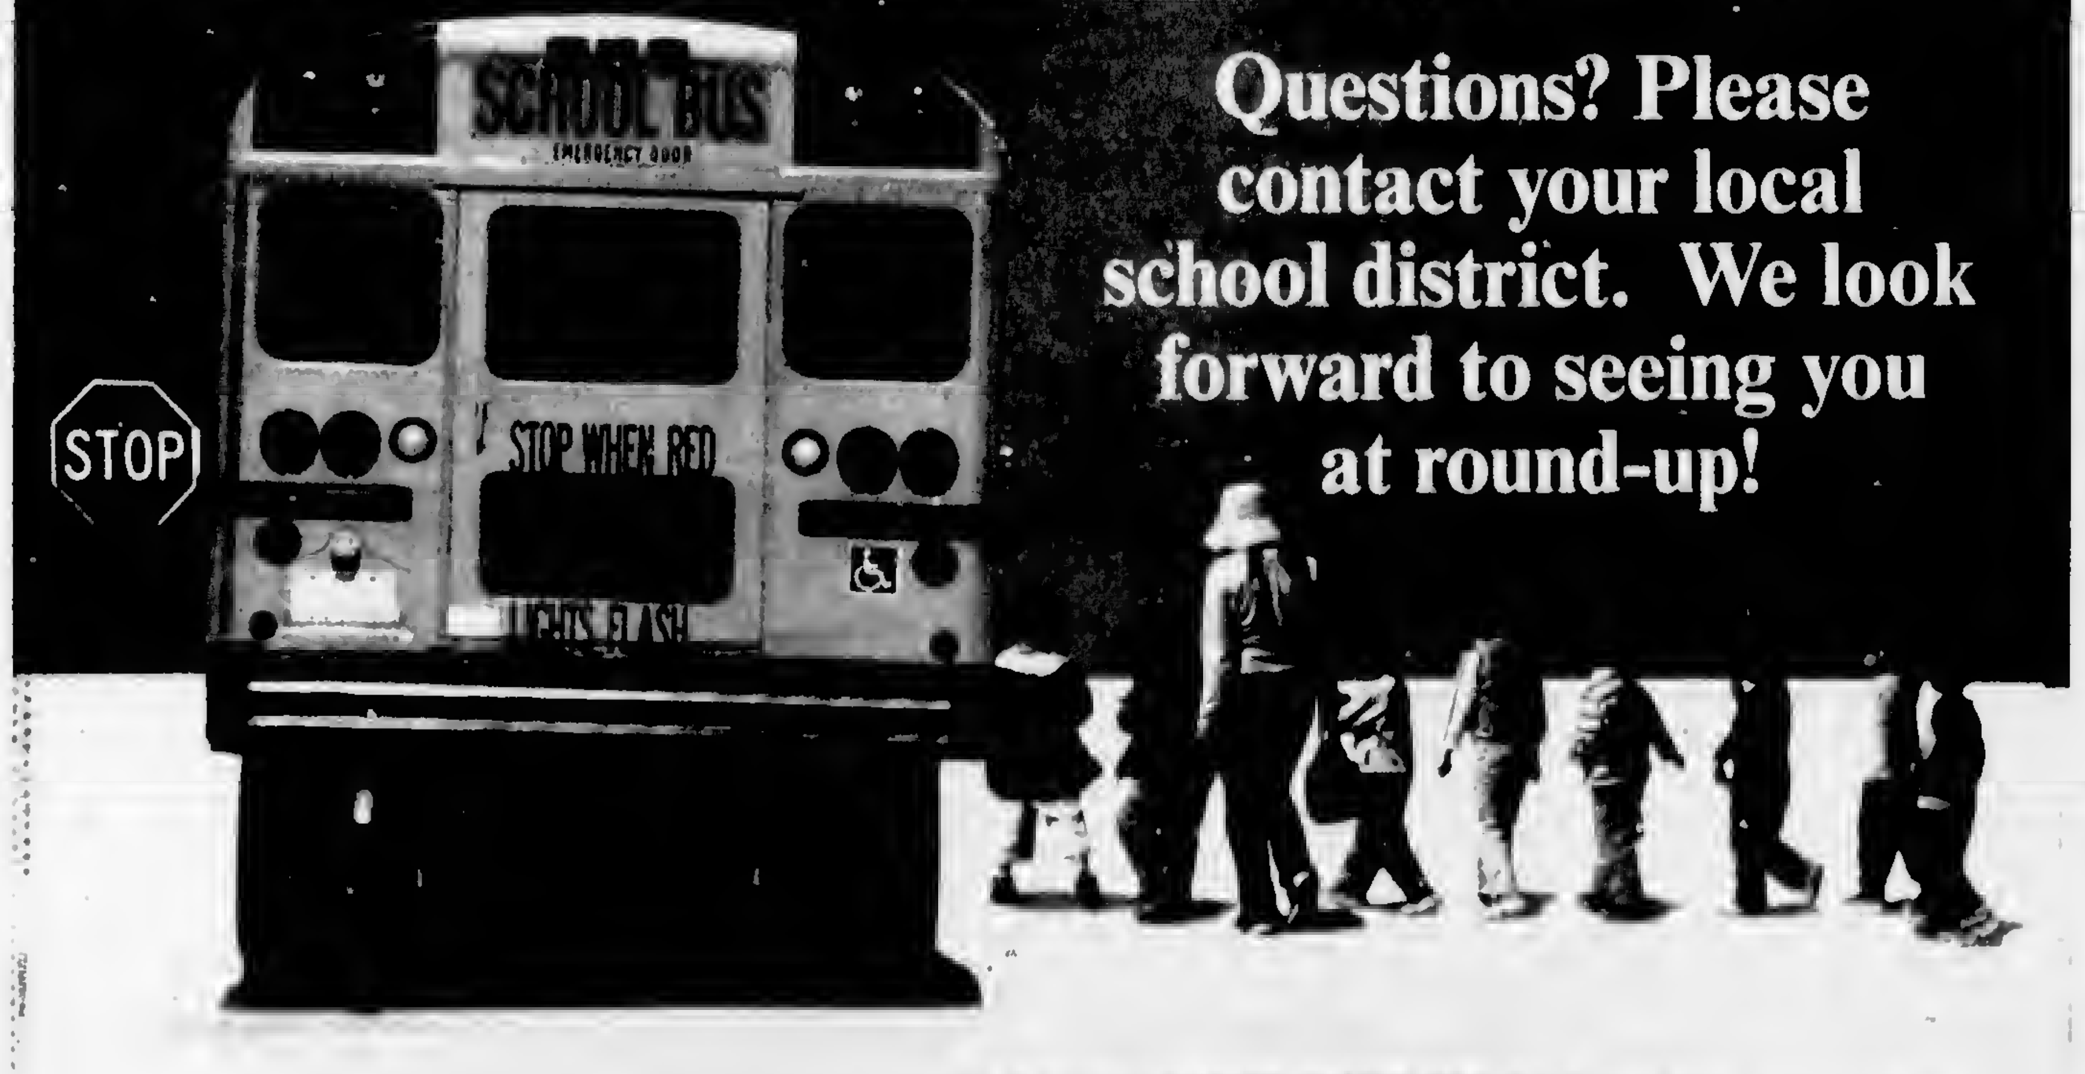
Please bring your child's birth certificate, immunization record and custody documentation, if applicable. The Public Schools of Petoskey and Harbor Springs Public Schools also require proof of residency (no Schools of Choice for Harbor Springs).

Parents should also be aware that recent legislation has changed the entry age. For the 2013-2014 school year, a child who resides in a public district providing kindergarten may enroll if the child is at least 5 years of age on November 1, 2013, rather than the previous cutoff date of December 1st. For children who will be 5 by December 1, 2013, parents may enroll their child through written notification by contacting the school district by June 1.



Questions? Please contact your local school district. We look forward to seeing you at round-up!

Big book donor

Getting into the spirit of Charlevoix Elementary School's month-long March into Reading event, Wyatt Seese, a student in Kristen Beach's fourth grade class, recently donated a large number of books from his collection at home to the school. This year's reading celebration has a hat theme, "Hats off to Reading." School principal Doug Drenth (pictured above with Wyatt) kicked off the month with a read-aloud with the students. The school board and other members of the community have been invited to come in and read to students. The entire school is having a book drive to "stuff the shelves" with children's books. The books will then be distributed to kids through the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry. When the event wraps up at the end of the month, if the students read for a combined 500,000 minutes during the month, Drenth will let top readers try to knock a hat off of his head by throwing a pie.

Recall election ballots set

Deadline for write-ins to file is April 26

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Although all deadlines have now passed for candidates to add or remove their names from the ballots for the upcoming May 7 Charlevoix City Council recall election, qualified candidates can still run in the election as a write-in candidate.

Charlevoix City Clerk Carol Ochs said in order for votes for write-in candidates to count in the election, the person must have filed the proper paperwork to be considered as a write-in candidate with city hall by April 26.

Ochs said any write-in votes cast for people who have not filed to run as a write-in candidate by that date will not be counted in the election.

The last of three deadlines for people to file nominating petitions to have his or her name appear on the ballot passed at 4 p.m. on Thursday, March 14.

Here's how the races — as they will appear on the ballot — will shape up:.

In the 1st Ward, incumbent Dennis Kusina will square off against challenger Jeff Porter.

In the 2nd Ward, incumbent Bryan Vollmer will face off against challenger Gabe Campbell.

The 3rd Ward will feature a three-person race among incumbent Jill Picha and challengers Shirley Gibson and Dennis Halverson.

Campbell and Porter are also the sponsors of two of the three the recall petitions that forced the recall election against their respective opponents in the upcoming election. Resident Julee Roth was the sponsor of the petition that was circulated against Picha.

Whoever wins the respective recall election races will immediately assume or retain that seat on the council and will serve the remainder of the term, which expires on Nov. 18.

The deadline for filing petitions to run in the November general election — for the same seats that will be contested in the recall election and the city clerk's — will follow shortly after the recall election is over on May 14.

Board mulls budget cut options

Needing to cut about $1 million, board considers two-building format

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Dozens of Charlevoix teachers and parents filled the Rayder Room on Wednesday at Charlevoix Middle School to hear administrators present two options to the board of education that would cut hundreds of thousands of dollars from the district's operating budget.

The two options center around the district's buildings. Currently, the district operates an elementary school, a middle school and a high school. The district will end the year with just $40,000 in savings after declining enrollment and cuts in state and decimated its fund balance.

Plan A would shut down one of those buildings and save the district an estimated $200,000. The plan would put grades K-6 in one building and 7-12 in another building.

But middle school teachers and staff who spoke during the public comment portion of the meeting were concerned about the safety and identity of the middle school students.

Revised fireplace plan moves forward

STEVE ZUCKER
COURIER EDITOR

After more than seven months of public debate, a revised version of a contentious community fireplace project in Charlevoix's East Park moved one step closer to becoming a reality Monday.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting, the Charlevoix City Council voted unanimously to move to the final design phase for a low-profile, bowl-style, fireplace to be constructed in East Park's Plaza B.

The motion to move forward with the plan came with several conditions including: Using the low-profile oval shaped design presented to the council at a special meeting last week, that the design incorporate a seating area, appropriate safety features, be as efficient as possible, and that its operational and maintenance costs be "self funded" through donations.

Monday's council action comes on the heels of a special meeting last week during which the city's planning commission and downtown development authority board both voted to recommend to the council that it move forward with the low-profile design. That design came out of a steering committee that worked with two consultants who developed the revised plan.

The action to move forward with the plan actually took place through two motions. The council, at the suggestion of city attorney Bryan Graham, handled the matter this way to allow council member Shane Cole to participate in the discussion and vote on the fireplace.

The first motion was to move forward to the final design phase of the project, as detailed above. The second motion, on which Cole abstained from voting, was to fuel the fireplace with natural gas.

When the fireplace was first approved in August, Cole had abstained from participating in discussion and voting on the matter because his wife works for DTE Energy, which would be the gas supplier for the fireplace. Graham told the council by splitting the vote this way, it would eliminate the conflict of interest issue.

Lasater: Public lake access not what it once was

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

As sheriff, George Lasater remembers he was shocked to see many public access sites around Lake Charlevoix and Walloon Lake disappear over the last two decades.

Lasater was Charlevoix County sheriff for more than 30 years and is now a county commissioner. He said he was sad to see sites that were once open to any member of the public, begin to be encroached upon by private property owners.

Any local lake road ending at the water is considered a public access site under state law, with a few minor exceptions. That means that property between the end of the road and the water can be used by anyone as a place to launch a boat, go swimming, or put in an ice shanty.

"We're surrounded by beautiful lakes and not everybody can afford to live on the lake," said Lasater. "So we need to have these sites available so the average, law abiding, tax paying citizen can have access."

The sites that are identified and maintained by local governments are actively used, he explained.

"It's just a nice place for a family to go."

When he says the sites are disappearing, he means that property owners on either side of them will sometimes make changes to the property to make it appear as if they also own the site. Some people will landscape to make it appear that way, some will put up private property signs, others will put up fences to keep the public out. Sometimes, for many years, the areas just become overgrown because they are not maintained and it is no longer clear the area is open to the public, he said.

Lasater hopes to raise awareness about the issue so that those in charge of the areas, primarily townships and road commissions, will pay attention and begin to maintain the sites and even put up signs so that the public knows they are available for use.

He has a 45 page document listing the public access sites in the county and plans to work with the townships and other commissioners to check in on them so that improvements can be made, if desired.

One specific site he is aware of is on Lake Charlevoix, near Horton Bay, where Sumner Road ends at the lake. Bay Township, he recalls, went to court over that site because a property owner had been encroaching on it. The township won the case in 1994.

"The court decision was that it had to be a public access site," he said.

William Wehrenberg is a Bay Township trustee and says he is aware that the disappearance of public access sites has been an issue in his township as well as several others in the county during the past few decades.

"Over time, residents would put docks out and put boats on the docks," if other residents attempted to use the dock, they would "chase you away," he said.

Melrose Township deputy treasurer Tom Mackie, has also dealt with the same problem.

Melrose passed an ordinance in 2010 asserting the township's authority to maintain and allow public access to its road ends. It also works to maintain the road ends to keep private property owners from encroaching.

But, it has still also had to take legal action in order to keep the sites available to the public.

"People want a place to put their boat in from Memorial Day to Labor Day," said Mackie. They can't put a boat in and leave it there for the entire season, he said.

"As a citizen and as an official at this time, I feel we should make these places known, open and let the public have access to our beautiful lakes," Lasater said.

Island resident suffers minor injuries in rollover crash

BEAVER ISLAND — A Beaver Island woman escaped serious injuries on Friday, March 15, despite icy roads contributing to a single-vehicle rollover accident.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office news release, the authorities on Beaver Island were dispatched to East Side Drive and Hannigans Road in Peaine Township for a rollover accident at 4:32 p.m.

According to the sheriff's office report, Jean Kinsley, 64, of Beaver Island, was traveling northbound on East Side Drive when she lost control of her Chevy Blazer on icy roads. Kinsley's vehicle slid sideways into a snowbank flipping the vehicle on its top. Kinsley was transported by private vehicle to the Beaver Island Health Center with minor injuries.

Only pay attention to life's important numbers

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Numbers: Are they important?

It seems we use them daily so I would say, "Yes." We check our blood pressure and weight and for me, in particular, I check my speed when driving in small towns. We order things with numbers from our debit or credit card and we're careful not to share our social security numbers. We are not as excited to find our body mass index number and tend not to count the number of chips we just pulled out of a bag. We have numbers telling us when we are allowed to vote, drink, drive, and serve our country. From birth we are surrounded by numbers. How much did he/she weigh? What day were they born and how many inches long is our new child/grandchild?

Our lives revolve around numbers. When I was 12 I wanted to be 13. Now that I am almost 64 I want to be 46. In school I looked at grades but percentages were more important as I wanted to see if I was closer to a B or B-. When I had a term paper to write I would ask how many words or how many pages were needed to pass. I have a tendency to look at the obituaries and of course thrilled not to see my name but I look closely at the age and think, Hmmm ... I have three more good years left.

In general conversation we'll hear, "We're number one." "Your number is up." "Third time's the charm," "Trouble happens in threes," and "What's your cell number?" I often ask my husband, "What year did this movie come out?" or "When did this song hit the charts?" Now that Detroit Tiger baseball season is near we'll be asking, "What's his batting average?" I started writing out birthday cards to our grandkids and it was then I realized that in this odd numbered year they are all turning even numbers: 2, 4, 6,8,10, and 12. Maybe it's a sign I should start buying lottery tickets.

I usually don't take such an interest in numbers but last week when our new pope was elected on 3-13-13 it made me wonder again about numbers. A close reading of the Bible reveals number patterns and numbers in general throughout. There are twelve Apostles, and then the number seven for the day of rest and of course there are seven plagues. The Trinity makes three and Moses spent forty days on Mount Sinai and received the Ten Commandments.

Others have shown an interest in numbers way before my time as there is the study of Numerology. I looked up my Life Number and was happy to find that my number was considered a compatible match with my husband's. I truly think you know the person you've spent considerable time with so I wouldn't put all my faith in one number; but I am happy he considers me his number one fan.

Our society loves things done for us so when the "Top Ten Toys" or "Top Ten Best Buys" come out they have our attention. Store items are displayed to confuse the math challenged. A case in point: An item was listed "buy three for $ 8.97" but the list price for each item was $2.99. So where's the savings? I will often times add up the items in my head before I get to the checkout counter. It gets the brain working and then I know if I need to pull out cash or my debit card. Prices for items are usually marked ending in a five or zero which makes it easier for the consumers like me to add things up.

Even though numbers play a role in our lives whether Biblical, financial, health or signs from a spirit world, what numbers are important are the number of times you say, "I love you," "I am sorry," "You're welcome" and "Thank you." Those numbers are infinitesimal and truly much more important than those in your checkbook. So with that information I will end with a thank you for reading this column filled with words — 685 to be exact but who's counting?

LETTER to the editor

Editor,

On Oct. 31, 2006, Maj Douglas E. Sloan (from Charlevoix) was killed in action in Afghanistan while leading his soldiers "from the front." Maj. Sloan was highly respected by his fellow officers and loved by his soldiers. After researching his service, I have come to believe that he was more than just a genuine hometown hero. He is our post-9-11 equivalent of World War II's Maj. Dick Winters (as portrayed in HBO's "Band of Brothers" mini-series). He is a real hero who gave up his life in defense of our freedoms. Please join us in contributing to, and then dedicating, a long-deserved memorial to this fallen soldier on Memorial Day, May 27, 2013.

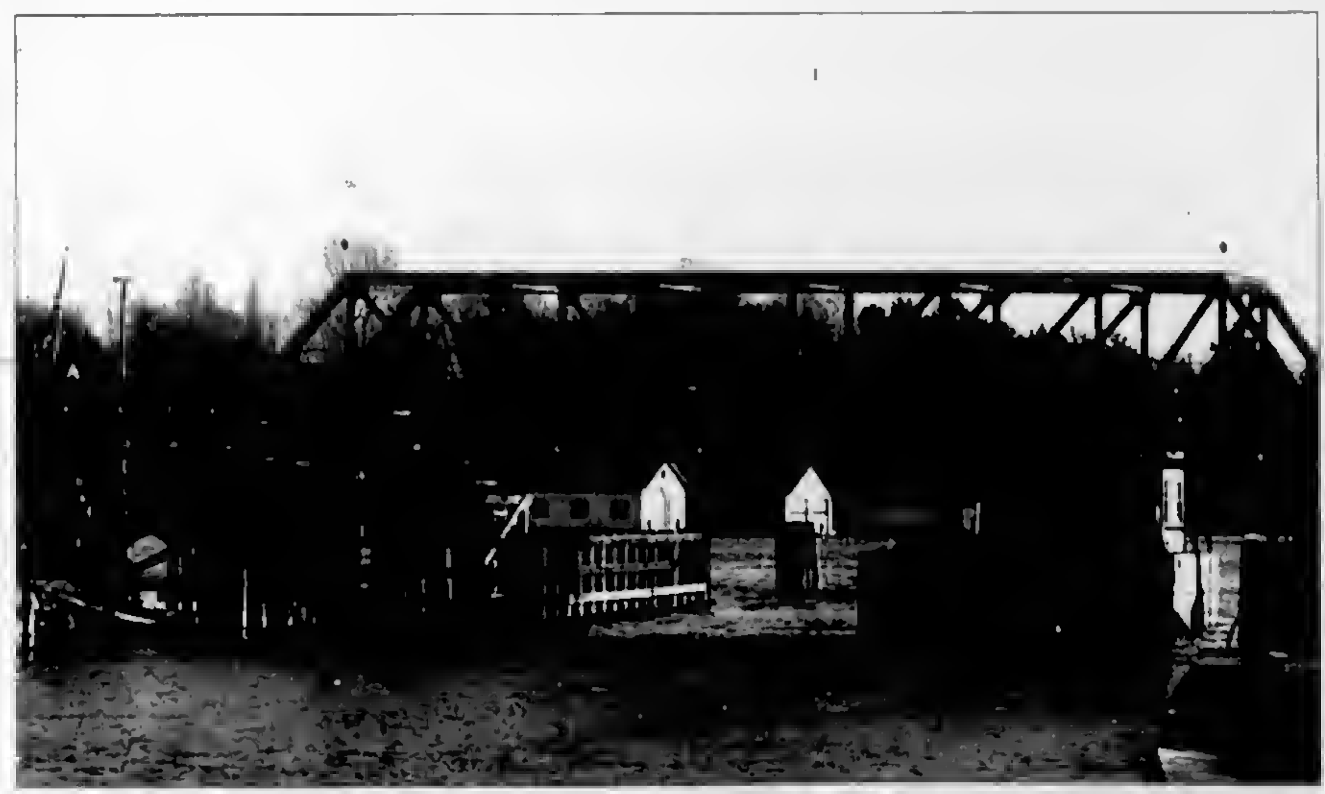
An account has been set up at Charlevoix State Bank, 111 State St., Charlevoix in the name of "Friends of Doug Sloan" to accept contributions for the memorial.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCEITY

In May of 1947, a temporary bridge began to be placed across the neck of the channel at Round Lake to carry traffic during the construction of today's Memorial Bridge. The north highway section would today slice through the east end of the Edgewater complex on its way up to Nicholls Street. The structure was completed and opened in August. For the next 22 months, Charlevoix had to endure this slowpoke that in terms of our current road and water passages would be our worst nightmare. It sat on a huge square pontoon (lower right) into which water was pumped to settle it in place. When the bridge had to lumber open, some of the water was pumped out, it rose a few inches from its anchorage, then was slowly turned, riding on the pontoon, by a motorized system of cables and winches to point eastward into Round Lake. Some turning cycles could take half an hour. The joke of the times was that, if caught by the bridge, just turn off the ignition, lie down on the car seat, and have a good snooze. Schoolkids had a ready excuse for tardiness or lateness returning home. The new bridge was ready by late June, 1949 and the temporary came out immediately. Never was Charlevoix so glad to see anything go.

Jordand River Arts Council launches project for exhibit/reference collection

EAST JORDAN —The Jordan River Arts Council has launched its yearlong Sketchbook Project with the help of a 2012 grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Council.

One hundred sketchbooks have been given to artists who will fill them and return them in a year to the arts council for exhibit. A work of art inspired by the sketchbook will also be displayed.

"Sketchbooks are generally created for the artist alone as a place to take risks, try out ideas, learn from mistakes, and collect inspirations," said Cynthia Tschudy, co-curator of the project. "Our hope is that by creating and sharing these books with the public, insight will be gained into the creative visual journey."

The intention of the arts council is to use this collection to establish a sketchbook library for reference by the community. The Jordan Valley District Library will eventually become the depository for the books.

As part of the project, local high school art classes have been offered sketchbooks to be used as a collaborative class effort. Steve Toornman and Meredith Krell, two Charlevoix artists, have been introducing the project to the schools. These artists are bringing their combined experiences, distinctive approaches and passions for sketching to the classroom in order to assist the students in brainstorming unique ways to complete the project.

The Sketchbook Project exhibit will open Feb. 22, 2014, at the Jordan River Arts Council in East Jordan. For information on this or other projects, go to www.jordanriverarts.com or call (231) 536-7812.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a local charitable organization dedicated to enhancing the quality of life for all citizens of Charlevoix County by building permanent endowment, addressing needs through grantmaking, and providing leadership resources to serve the community. More information about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation may be found at www.c3f.org or by calling (231) 536-2440.

Outstanding recyclers recognized

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — Boyne City Public Schools and Shirley Roloff of Charlevoix were recognized Wednesday as the Charlevoix County Recycling program's recyclers of the year.

"Every year, we select individuals and groups that have worked hard with recycling so that those people can be recognized and encourage others to do similar things," said Nancy Ferguson, chair of the county's recycling committee, as she presented the awards at the committee's meeting in East Jordan.

Roloff was the original chair of the committee, beginning in 1999 when it was formed. It met twice a month and surveyed the community, proposed a recycling millage which was successfully passed, educated citizens on the benefits of recycling, selected six drop-off sites and ordered bins.

The county-wide recycling program was up and running by October 2000.

"As a chair of the recycling committee, Shirley brought a dedicated enthusiasm to the role," said Ferguson. "Recycling is a legacy that Shirley assisted in bringing to the county... It is one that we hope will continue to grow and flourish in the future."

The recycling effort at Boyne City Public Schools was also recognized.

Recycling in the district is a cooperative effort of a large group of students and staff members. Custodians, kitchen staff members, teachers and students all take responsibility for small jobs that contribute to the program.

Having a recycling bin for cardboard and one for cartons and containers on site helps facilitate the recycling effort at all three schools.

At Boyne City Elementary School, students from the 21st Century Community Learning Center after school program coordinate the collection of scrap paper, magazines and catalogs for recycling. The 21st Century Make A Difference Club collects the materials which average about 3,000 pounds each year.

The custodial and kitchen staffs lead the collection of milk cartons and juice boxes at lunch. Including breakfast, lunch and the after school program, about 350 cartons are recycled daily at the elementary school. The custodians also collect and recycle cardboard for the entire elementary school.

Students from the 21st Century program have joined the recycling effort at Boyne City Middle School as well. They have been collecting cardboard, magazines and milk cartons since September. Debbie Day's special education class has been in charge of recycling all of the office paper for the past three years at the middle school. They have collected 3,210 pounds of paper so far this school year.

At Boyne City High School, weekly paper recycling throughout the entire building is handled by the National Honor Society student organization. In the cafeteria, milk cartons are collected with the help of student volunteers and assistance from the custodial and kitchen staff. The custodial staff also manages the recycling of plastic bottles.

"Thank you for your efforts," said Ferguson to the winners as she presented them with their awards.

Double Eagle awarded

Brothers earn Boy Scouts' highest rank on same day

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

Having a son attain the highest rank in Boy Scouting, Eagle Scout, would be a proud moment for any parent.

Now imagine how proud Bryan Lindfors, scoutmaster for Charlevoix's Boy Scout Troop 11, and Jennifer Lindfors were when they had not one, but two sons awarded the prestigious rank on the same day.

On March 3, Troop 11 hosted a Court of Honor to bestow the rank of Eagle Scout on Charlevoix High School students, 17-year-old Jonathon Lindfors and his brother, Nathan Lindfors, 14.

To advance to the level of Eagle Scout is a cumulative process, according to troop leader Bryan Lindfors, father of the Eagle Scout Rank recipients. In all, 21 merit badge requirements must be achieved. Merit badges are earned by learning life skills, accomplishing merit badge goals and by performing community service projects. They are centered on the Boy Scout principles of "Be Prepared" and "Do a Good Turn Daily."

For his part, Jonathon, a Charlevoix High School junior, was instrumental in the erection of a new "Welcome to Charlevoix the Beautiful" sign that greets boaters coming through the Pine River Channel into Round Lake from Lake Michigan. In September of 2012, he asked and received permission from the Charlevoix City Council to remove the old sign along the south side of the channel and to replace it with a new one matching the signs welcoming visitors approaching the city's north and south entrances by car. During the year Jonathon was able to solicit money and materials from local organizations and businesses for the project, amounting to around $12,000. The project, including the removal of overgrown vegetation along with the old sign, and the addition of landscaping around the new sign, was completed by Jonathon and his team of volunteers in June of 2012.

Jonathon's brother and freshman Charlevoix High School student, Nathan Lindfors, set his own goal, as he aspired to complete the requirement of completing a "significant community project" in order to attain the rank of Eagle Scout. His idea was to enhance the entrance to the Charlevoix Middle School, by constructing cement benches, "to give the kids a place to sit when they have to wait outside before the first bell rings." Nathan set about with his own team of volunteers and completed the construction of six cement benches, surrounded by brick pavers, along each side of the walkway leading to the main entrance of the building between January and August of 2012.

The two young men, who were also given recognition by Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider and by Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. at Monday's city council meeting, are convinced that their experience as Boy Scouts has made a difference in their lives.

"Scouting teaches leadership, responsibility and how to be self-sufficient," said Jonathon. "I have been exposed to many skills while earning my many merit badges. Through scouting I have had many adventures and learned to love the outdoors. I am thankful for my scouting experience and would recommend it to others."

"Scouting is not just holding doors and helping old ladies," Nathan added. It's finding the solution to the problem. It's stopping at a car accident and knowing how to help besides calling 9-1-1. It's starting first and quitting last. It's taking the blame before giving it. It's being true to yourself and true to others."

Troop 11, under the direction of Bryan Lindfors, along with several parent volunteers, presently has 12 active scout members and is seeking more. Boys ages 11-17, who are interested in outdoor adventures, such as camping, canoeing and hiking as well as in learning life skills while enjoying the fun and fellowship of other boys, may contact Lindfors at (231) 675-3475.

Retiring commission on aging director Jack Messer honored

Retiring Charlevoix County Commission on Aging Director Jack Messer received a special tribute signed by Gov. Rick Snyder, Rep. Greg MacMaster and Sen. Howard Walker Wednesday, March 13.

Messer will retire at the end of March after three years as director of the commission on aging.

When the Marine Corps veteran and long-time Michigan State Police trooper accepted the director position, the commission was facing several years in a row of deficits.

Messer implemented changes including charging fees for services based on income, reducing expenses and asking voters for a senior millage. The commission is now financially stable.

"Throughout his years of service, Jack Messer met every unique challenge with conscientiousness and diligence," reads the tribute. "He has served the aging population of Northern Michigan with great esteem, helping to maintain the dignity that our seniors deserve. His passion for the job, but more importantly the services the commission provides, cannot be overstated."

Zonta to host literary luncheon May 18

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club will host its annual Literary Delights — a Michigan Women Authors' Luncheon from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday, May 18, at the Charlevoix Public Library. Tickets for the event are $40 per person and include a catered lunch and basket raffle drawings.

Three Michigan women authors, Kathleen ("Kathy") Paterka, Amy O'Neill and Suzanne Malpass (Rogers) will be speaking at the event and copies of their books will be available for sale and signing at the event. All of the proceeds of the event go to support projects to advance the status of women locally, nationally and internationally, including the organization's Sights of Success event, which is a free, day-long event offered to middle school girls to build teamwork, self-esteem and confidence.

The featured author for February was Amy O'Neill, who lives in Blissfield with her son, boyfriend and their two dogs. She is the daughter of a mortician (father) and factory worker (mother). As a child, Amy was always telling stories and her mother would ask "Is this a long story or a short one?"

Her novels include: "Finding Home," "Taking Chances-Small Town Series Book 1," "Working Down for the Count-Small Town Series Book 2" and "Playing with Fire: California Dreamin.'"

O'Neill uses her life experiences in her writing and hopes to inspire other women who are facing difficult times.

For more information or to purchase a ticket for the event, contact Joy Halverson at (231) 547-4813. Reservations for the event are required

Participants sought for Women Can/ Women Do event

This year's Women Can/ Women Do fundraising luncheon will take place on Wednesday, June 19, at Castle Farms in Charlevoix. The event combines a luncheon with a purpose because dollars raised at the luncheon support programs and services of the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan.

Event organizers are in the process of reaching out to the community to find businesses that would like to participate by becoming one of the table designers responsible for creating unique and interesting table designs to showcase their products and/or services. Table favors for guests are included in the display at each table.

Another aspect of the event planning is securing table captains, which are responsible for filling seats at one of the 30 tables.

Both table designers and table captains are volunteer committee members who donate their services so the venue at the Castle is transformed into spring-like garden party atmosphere.

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan has been providing crucial programs and services to thousands of women, children and families in the community for more than 35 years. Women Can/Women Do Charlevoix County is one of three annual fundraising luncheons organized by this nonprofit agency to help ensure the continuation of services.

Those interested in becoming either a table captain or a table designer, or in reserving a seat for the luncheon, may contact the Women's Resource Center's administrative office at (231) 347-0067.
